SUPREME COURT SPEEDS ISSUANCE OF LEWIS RULING; BARS WALKOUT

Orders Mandate Issued 11 Days Ahead of Customary Time — Upholds Right of U.S. to Fire Communists.

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —The Supreme Court ordered today that its mandate in the John L. Lewis case be issued on March 20—11 days ahead of customary time.

The Government had asked the court to act immediately to enforce its decision against Lewis and the United Mine Workers.

The court's decision requires that within five days after its mandate is issued Lewis must withdraw a notice to the mine workers that the union's working contract with the Government is ended. If not, it will cost the United Mine Workers $2,800,000.

When upholding the contempt convictions of Lewis and the UMW for disregarding a United States District Court order against last fall's coal strike, the Supreme Court reduced a $3,500,000 fine against the union to $700,000. It said, however, that the original amount of the fine should be collected if Lewis did not withdraw the order. A $10,000 fine against Lewis was upheld.

The effect of today's ruling is to bar the door against a new walkout on March 31.

Ruling on Communists.

In another decision, the court in effect upheld the right of the Civil Service Commission to fire a government employe on the ground he is a Communist sympathizer.

In other actions today, the court:

Ruled 8 to 1 that loans from the Farm Credit Administration must be repaid before other creditors collect from the estate of the borrowing farmer. Justice William O. Douglas dissented.

Refused to review a contention by C. D. Beck of Sidney, O., that constitutional guarantees of freedom of speech permitted him to tell his employes a union was a "racket." The National Labor Relations Board had ruled it was an unfair labor practice barred by the Wagner Act.

Lewis ended the mine strike last fall by ordering the miners to work until March 31.

Under normal procedure, the Supreme Court's mandate (order in connection with the contempt decision) would not have reached the lower court until March 31. That would have left five days in which the miners could have remained away from the pits without being subject to the full amount of the original fine.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark had requested early action by the Supreme Court in order to avert what he said was danger of another walkout of 400,000 miners.

Decree on Communists.

In the civil service case, the Supreme Court refused to review protests by Morton Friedman, who was ousted from a job with the War Manpower Commission by order of the Civil Service Commission. The refusal leaves in effect rulings by lower Federal courts which upheld the commission's order.

Figures in 'Impulse' Killing

Body of ROBERT WAHRMAN, 8 years old, a rope still around his neck, being examined by J. GREGORY NEALON, coroner of Albany county, New York.

YOUTH, 14, HANGED BOY 'ON IMPULSE,' SAYS PROSECUTOR

Carl De Flumer Awaits Examination on Murder Charge in New York State Killing.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 17 (AP) —Carl de Flumer, 14-year-old junior high school pupil, is in Albany county jail today awaiting examination Wednesday on a first degree murder charge in what authorities termed the "impulse hanging" of Robert Wahrman, 8.

The slender, dark-haired De Flumer was arraigned in police court yesterday as his sobbing parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl M. de Flumer, watched. A plea of not guilty to a first-degree murder charge is mandatory under state law. The penalty on conviction could be death.

District Attorney Julian B. Erway said the De Flumer boy had admitted the killing. Erway said he believed the hanging was the result of "an impulse."

Funeral services for the Wahrman boy will be held tomorrow at the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church. His third grade companions will act as bearers.

The boy's nude body was found by three boys late Saturday hanging in a section of woods in Loudonville, exclusive residential suburb.

A length of clothesline had been wound around his neck, looped around a tree limb and tied to another tree.

Erway declined to release a statement he said the De Flumer boy had made other than to quote him as saying "I just decided to hang the little fellow" as he and

SHAMROCKS SCARCE SO IRISH WEAR BIT OF GREEN RIBBON

Archbishop Ritter Celebrates St. Patrick's Day Mass —Dinner Tonight.

A bit of green, be it a shamrock or green-dyed carnation, bloomed today on St. Louisans of Irish descent in the annual observance of St. Patrick's day. Shamrocks, however, were hard to get, so many adorned themselves with green ribbon.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter celebrated the annual St. Patrick's day mass at Old St. Patrick's Catholic Church, 1207 North Sixth street. A large gathering, drawn from all parts of the St. Louis area, attended this annual event at the parish where the late Msgr. Timothy Dempsey long was pastor.

The fourth annual St. Patrick's Day dinner of the Irish Society of St. Louis will be held at Hotel DeSoto at 7 o'clock this evening. The Rev. Bernard Pender, pastor of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, East St. Louis, and Circuit Judge Edward M. Ruddy, will be principal speakers.

Father Pender's clerical habit will be brightened by the green of shamrocks flown from his native County Roscommon in Ireland. Hundreds of these imported Roscommon shamrocks were in the hands of an East St. Louis florist and were distributed at a luncheon today at Father Pender's church, 3300 Summit avenue.

WHY NOT KELLY GREEN TODAY?

LOS ANGELES, March 17 (UP) —Diamond Dye of San Gabriel saw red when people teased him about his name. He got so blue about it that he asked Superior Judge Frank G. Swain to change it. The judge approved the name Don Dye.

"Mighty white of you," he told the jurist.

ROBBER FIRES, WOUNDS SELF

Bullet Ricochets From Wall, Hits Him in Leg.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 17 (AP)—A robber's bullet boomeranged last night and hit him instead.

A man identified as Charles E. Bamberg fired at a customer who tried to halt his getaway with $53 from a tavern. The bullet missed the customer, ricocheted from a wall and struck Bamberg in the leg, landing him in Emergency hospital facing charges of robbery.

Taxpayer Sends Half His Shirt With Return; Promises Remainder

WASHINGTON, March 17 (UP) —The Internal Revenue Bureau, swamped by an avalanche of 1946 returns, asserted today that when some men make out their income tax returns they lose all inhibitions.

There's the harassed taxpayer in Columbus, O., for example. In the space at the bottom of the form which says, "Do not write in this space," he wrote: "Who the hell says I can't?"

A man in Chicago attached the following quotation to his return: "From him that hath not, shall be taken away even that which he hath."

"That, you lugs," he wrote, "is from the Bible. Apparently that's the only part you believe in."

A taxpayer in New York enclosed the proper forms and a check for partial payment. He also included one half of a white shirt. He informed the bureau he would send the rest of the money and the other half of his shirt as soon as possible.

A taxpayer in Columbia, S.C., mailed in no return, no check—just a note. It read:

"Dear sirs: Where the hell is my refund? Yours truley."

A Cincinnati man sent in his return and a set of false teeth. "I won't need these any more," he wrote, "I haven't enough money left to eat on."

A husband in California wrote: "Please tell my wife I have received no refund check. All her friends have received refund checks. She accuses me of cashing our check and spending it. Please write and tell her as she won't speak to me."

CITY ACTIVITIES ECONOMY SURVEY RECOMMENDED TO COMMISSION UNIT

Report Suggests Cuts in Spending in Some Agencies — Treasurer Denies Office Refused to Aid in Inquiry.

A survey of all city activities, by the economy section of the Citizens' Tax Commission, or by a special committee to be named by the Mayor, is recommended in a memorandum prepared for the Commission's economy section by H. J. Mohler, superintendent of Missouri Pacific Hospital, and made public today.

At the same time, City Treasurer John J. Dwyer made public a letter sent by him to Robert E. Blake, chairman of the Citizens' Tax Commission, denying statements that the Treasurer's office has refused to co-operate in the inquiries made by the economy section. Dwyer repeats an offer of co-operation which he said was made previously.

Mohler's Recommendations.

In his recommendations to the economy section, Mohler said:

"It is well understood that during war periods with rising costs, many unusual expenditures are required, that can later, with more mature consideration and when more normal conditions prevail, be eliminated. For that reason the Congress of the United States is at present giving considerable attention to the budget recommendations of the President, with a view of reducing expenditures through economies in various ways, and in order to accomplish this purpose committees are investigating the various governmental activities.

"It is my opinion that the same course should be pursued at the present time in the city of St. Louis, and that a committee should be appointed, either from the economy section or from citizens at large, by the Mayor with a view of surveying all city activities. This undoubtedly will require some time and cannot be brought to a conclusion by the deadline established for this committee, but nevertheless such a committee could render splendid service. They should be aided by the establishment of a research bureau with personnel trained in surveys and investigations, aided by the Governmental Research Institute, and with full assurance that their recommendations and suggestions will be given due consideration. I am sure that with the full co-operation of the city authorities, it would result in a large amount of savings in city expenditures."

Places for Economies Cited.

Mohler quoted from reports of the Governmental Research Institute, privately supported fact-finding agency, as to St. Louis Police Department manpower and costs, indicating that "the Police Department is one place where expendi-

SNOWFALL GIVES DELAYED SPRING ANOTHER SETBACK

Snow, heavy in some sections and light in others, fell during the night and again reminded St. Louisans winter had not yet been pushed away by spring. Meterologist Harry F. Wahlgren reported one-tenth of an inch of snow at the Weather Bureau. A forecast of temperatures in the high 40s for tomorrow was made late this afternoon.

Wahlgren said snow was general over the northern two-thirds of the state and light traces of snow in the southern sections. Lowest temperature in Missouri was 14 at Chillicothe yesterday while highest temperature in St. Louis was 40 in the afternoon.

Nine inches of snow blanketed North Dakota yesterday and the coldest place in the country was 15 below in Bemidji, Minn. The warmest place in the United States was Phoenix, Ariz., where the temperature was 84.

MARCH WHEAT UP 10C LIMIT

Reaches $2.96½ at Chicago, New 30-Year High.

CHICAGO, March 17 (AP)— March wheat advanced 10 cents a bushel, the limit permitted in a single session, to a new 30-year high today. Corn jumped more than 4 cents to a new 27-year peak. Trading was less active.

The March wheat peak was $2.96½ a bushel. In May 1917, wheat reached $3.25. March corn hit $1.78 a bushel, up 4¼ cents. In May 1920 one corn contract sold for $1.97¼.

HOW TO LICK DELINQUENCY

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —Amid cheers and applause in the House, Representative Gross (Rep.), Pennsylvania, a farmer who "took in and raised" four children in addition to his own eight, today said "the only answer to juvenile delinquency lies in the home."

"If the school teacher gives 'im a lickin' in school, give 'im another lickin' when he gets home and you'll soon do away with a lot of this juvenile delinquency," he said.

RUSSIA URGES 20-YEAR PLAN FOR GERMAN REPARATIONS, 4-POWER CONTROL OF RUHR

U.S. IN NEW NOTE ON HUNGARY SAYS REDS ARE TRYING TO SEIZE POWER

Again Asks Soviet General to Permit Allied Investigation and Raises Kovacs Case Once More.

By JACK QUINN

BUDAPEST, March 17 (AP) — The United States, in its second note in 12 days to Russian authorities in Budapest, protested today that minority groups led by the Communist party in Hungary were "attempting to seize power through resort to extra-constitutional tactics."

The note, signed by Brig. Gen. George H. Weems, American representative on the Allied Control Council for Hungary, was addressed to Russian Lt. Gen. V. P. Sviridov. It said Communist tactics were threatening "the continuance of democracy in Hungary."

The note renewed demands for an inquiry, saying: "The United States Government considers that the powers signatory to the agreement concluded at Yalta in regard to liberated Europe are obligated to take concerted action to investigate political conditions in Hungary.

"In my government's view it cannot be contended that such an investigation would, as you suggest, improperly impair the legal rights of the Hungarian courts, or that my government's concern with regard to the case of Bela Kovacs constitutes an infringement of the right of the Soviet occupation authorities to take reasonable measures for the maintenance of the security of occupation forces."

Kovacs, secretary general of the middle-of-the-road Smallholders party and a member of Parliament, was arrested by the Russians recently.

The note, delivered to Sviridov at noon, was in reply to a communication of March 8 in which the Russian general categorically denied American charges of Soviet interference in Hungarian internal affairs and declared that he could "not consent to this intervention by the American Government."

The new American note said that investigation of the alleged plot to restore the regime of Adm. Nicholas Horthy in Hungary to

MORGAN MANSION TO BE RAZED WHEN RUSSIANS VACATE

GLEN COVE, N. Y., March 17 (AP)—Owners of the $1,500,000 J. P. Morgan estate said today they planned to tear down the 57-room mansion following the departure of the Soviet Government tenants, who, the owners said, damaged the huge house to the extent of about $25,000.

J. J. Kramer, attorney for Morgan Island Estates, Inc., the owners, said the Russians surrendered the 317-acre estate Saturday after the company accepted $7500 in full settlement of the lease, which was to expire next Sept. 30. The lease specified a rental of $15,000 annually.

Silk hangings on walls and windows were destroyed and walls marked, Kramer said. "As a result," he added, "it is useless now for anything but a school or hotel and that would not fit in with the plans of persons who have bought half-acre tracts from the estate and plan to build homes and live there."

The Soviet Purchasing Agency, which rented the property was reported moving to the nearby Pratt estate.

Last summer neighbors complained the tenants were not taking proper care of the large gardens. Neighbors also said nude bathing parties took place on the private beach.

BURGLAR ASLEEP ON THE JOB

Owner of Home Finds Him Under Bed Snoring.

CLEVELAND, March 17 (UP)— When Horace B. Moore entered his bachelor apartment, he heard snores coming from his bedroom. Fast asleep under his bed, snoring peacefully, was a man with a handkerchief mask over his face.

When police arrived they vindicated Moore's suspicion that he had caught a burglar. The sleeper's pockets were full of Moore's belongings.

M'ARTHUR URGES SIGNING EARLY PEACE WITH JAPS

General Favors Turning Control Over to U.N., Withdrawing Troops as Soon as Treaty Is Concluded.

By MILES W. VAUGHN

TOKYO, March 17 (UP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur proposed today that the Allied powers quickly write a Japanese peace treaty, withdraw all their troops immediately after its signature and turn over control of Japan to the United Nations.

"Conditions presently are ripe to initiate peace conversations," the Supreme Commander told a foreign correspondents' luncheon. "After the peace treaty, the control of Nippon should be entrusted to the Allied nations."

MacArthur urged an end to the "economic blockade." Its effects on Japan are more deadly than the 'atom bomb, he said. He proposed an immediate reparations settlement.

MacArthur in a rare public appearance surprised the correspondents by answering questions for publication. His answers disclosed his ideas on the future of the defeated country.

CLINGS TO ROPE IN WELL 3 HOURS TO SAVE HER BABY

Mother Climbs Into Cistern, Grasps Child, Holds Him Above Water.

REED SPRING, Mo., March 17 (UP)—A young Ozark mother who clung to a rope for three hours while holding her 17-month-old son above the frigid waters of a cistern until help came was credited today with saving the child's life.

Mrs. Luther Fly was drawing water from a well when she saw her baby crawl to the top of a nearby cistern and fall into eight feet of water. Grabbing the well rope she fastened it to the top, let herself down to the water and grasped the child.

Bracing herself against the walls of the cistern, she held the boy in one arm and clung to the rope with the other until her husband came home three hours later.

HUSBAND KILLS MAID AS SHE WALKS WITH EMPLOYER'S BABY

He Ends Own Life After Murder on Street in Berkeley, Calif.

BERKELEY, Calif., March 17 (AP)—Rebuffed as he sought a reconciliation with his estranged wife, Kenneth Banks, 27 years old, shot her to death and then fatally wounded himself late yesterday. The killing occurred as Mrs. Joyce Banks, 26, nursemaid employed by a physician, was walking along a street with the doctor's 2-year-old daughter at her side.

Police Officer John McCann said Banks fired three bullets into his wife's body. She died instantly. He then put a bullet into his own chest. Banks died today.

NUERNBERG NAZIS CREMATED, ASHES SIFTED INTO RIVER

Remains of Goering and 10 Executed Leaders Dispersed in Stream in Munich.

By CLINTON B. CONGER

(Copyright, 1947, by United Press.)

FRANKFURT, March 17 — The bodies of Hermann Goering, who committed suicide, and his 10 fellow Nazi leaders who were hanged were cremated on the day of the mass execution last Oct. 16 and the ashes were sifted into a stream at Munich—birthplace of the Nazi party.

Thus, for these 11 top-flight Nazis at least, the road ended where it began after a cataclysmic cycle of destruction.

The United States Army dropped a curtain over the events following the Nuernberg hangings to preclude any possibility of furnishing a "shrine" for Nazi fanatics. Now word has come that photographs of the dispersal of the Nazis' ashes are being offered for sale in the United States. So the secret, unveiled by United Press correspondents after weeks of checking, no longer is a secret.

The bodies were cremated in a cemetery building in the Ostfriedhof area of east Munich. The gas crematory oven could handle only one coffin at a time and it took all day to do the job.

Late at night an American officer took 11 heavy urns, and the military party left the crematory.

The precise time and place of the next scene in the drama are not known. At least three Americans were present—a high Army security officer, a mortuary officer and a civilian mortician, maybe a fourth. It was broad

Girl Whose Chums Helped Pay for Eye Operation Sees Much Better

DETROIT, March 17 (AP)— Ruth Erickson, 11 years old, writes the names of her friends in big letters because her vision is limited. The names of the members of the "Secret Six Club" she writes in the largest letters of all.

It was the "Secret Six," more than anyone else, who raised $1000 to make it possible for Ruth Erickson to have an operation to remove a cataract which threatened to blind her right eye.

The girl's school life is shared by 15 others of limited vision, ranging from the first to seventh grades. She herself is in 5A.

The youngster's father is a streetcar repairman, and there wasn't enough money in the family of four to pay for an operation. The Erickson girl mentioned the situation to her close friend, Emma Zaccagnini, 10. The chum passed the word to five friends and they got jobs mowing lawns, washing cars, tending babies, running errands and doing anything to earn money for the operation.

At first it was all very secret, but when a householder saw six lawnmowers in action in front of his house after he hired one boy to do the job, the secret got out. Newspaper stories and radio appearances by the children brought a flood of response in letters and cash. The club treasurer, Yvonne Leo, 11, turned over $63 to the Ericksons and contributors swelled the total to $1000.

The operation was carried out in mid-October after a postponement in August because of the Erickson girl's illness, which was of a minor nature. Another operation may be necessary next October, the surgeon said. There is a reserve of more than $500 left, which will go into an education fund for the girl if further medical treatment is not required.

MOLOTOV SUBMITS 10-BILLION BILL, ASKS FOR PLANTS, CURRENT OUTPUT

Demands Cancellation of U.S.-British Zonal Merger—Charges 3 Western Powers Broke Potsdam Accord.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

MOSCOW, March 17 (AP)—Russia today demanded 10 billion dollars in German reparations to be paid over 20 years, four-power control of the Ruhr and the establishment of central agencies in the Reich to administer the reparations program.

The demands were set forth before the Council of Foreign Ministers by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov who asked for the removal from Germany of capital goods such as factories for reparations, a division of German assets held abroad and reparations from current production. He said the 20-year payment period should date from the signing of the Potsdam agreement in 1945.

Molotov attacked the United States, Great Britain and France, all of whom he accused of violating the Potsdam agreement. He declare dthat the United States and Britain should dissolve the fusion of their occupation zones, which he said violated the Potsdam agreement. He said the British also had broken the pact by taking over the coal and steel production of the Ruhr. He asserted France violated the Potsdam accord by forming a customs union with the German Saar, a rich coal producing region.

Marshall Gives U. S. Stand.

United States Secretary of State George C. Marshall, who is expected to confer soon with Prime Minister Stalin, advised Molotov that "we cannot accept a unified Germany under a procedure which would in effect mean that the American people would have to pay reparations to an ally."

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said Britain would undertake no obligations in Germany that would increase its costs.

Molotov suggested that German steel production be raised from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 tons annually to pay reparations. Marshall and Bevin both said they favored an increased level of German production.

The Russian demands went beyond what even the most pessimistic western observers thought the Soviet Union would seek.

Bevin for Increasing Output.

Bevin, first of the ministers to present his views on economic unity, asked for an increased level for German industry.

Bevin pointed out, however, that any economic merger of all the occupation zones of Germany would require that all the zones share equally in the cost. He said he would make his full proposal later, but added that the carrying out of the Potsdam provision for reparations only in capital goods was a British idea of the right method.

Bevin made it plain that before the British would agree to any economic unity in Germany, the Soviet Union would have to furnish detailed data on what factories they had removed from the eastern zone and on what was left and the ownership of the remaining assets.

"Any agreement on economic unity which ignores these essential requirements or German economic unity would add to our burden," he was quoted as saying. "I cannot and I will not be a party to any such agreement."

Before presenting Russia's reparation claim, Molotov recalled the Yalta and Potsdam meetings of the chiefs of state of the Big Three powers as proof that agreement had been reached that Russia should get 10 billion dollars of the 20 billion reparations claimed against Germany.

Molotov said that the 10-billion-dollar claim represented less than one tenth of the damage suffered by the Soviet Union. In one of his main points, Molotov proposed that reparations be valued at 1938 world prices.

Molotov made other demands, including measures to improve German financial and currency conditions, measures to increase German exports, the placing of the control of cartels and trusts under the state and measures to obtain the co-operation of German democratic parties.

One of Molotov's major surprises was his suggestion that the reparations be spread over a 20-year period dating from the Potsdam agreement. The original Potsdam decision reached by President Truman, Prime Minister Stalin and Prime Minister Attlee

ENVOYS' RETURN FROM GREECE AND TURKEY AWAITED; PORTER IN CAPITAL

MacVeagh and Wilson Likely to Be Called, Along With Head of Economic Mission, to Testify on Aid Program.

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —Members of Congress awaited with mounting interest today the imminent return to the United States of Ambassadors Lincoln MacVeagh and Edwin C. Wilson from Athens and Ankara, respectively.

Diplomatic officials revealed yesterday that the American envoys to Greece and Turkey had been ordered home for consultations. The disclosure came almost simultaneously with the departure for home from Athens of Paul Porter, head of the American economic mission to Greece.

Porter seemed certain to be called before congressional committees for direct questioning on data which he said at Athens should provide this country "with the factual basis for further defining its policy in regard to Greece."

It appeared likely that MacVeagh and Wilson also would be invited to testify in line with the growing Congressional desire for all possible information behind the historic foreign policy shift.

Porter returned to the United States by plane today. He landed first in New York, where he declined to discuss economic conditions in Greece, and then came on to Washington. He told reporters here he planned to see Truman later this week after the President returns from his Florida vacation.

Meanwhile, as Congress awaited a legislative blueprint of President Truman's program to spend $400,000,000 in bolstering Greece and Turkey against threats of Communism, Senator Smith (Rep.), New Jersey, expressed concern at any "by-passing" of the United Nations.

Smith, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, told a reporter he fears that if the United Nations is ignored entirely in the present crisis, its future ability to help keep the world's peace will be weakened.

Senator Moore (Rep.), Oklahoma, proposed that Truman designate former President Herbert Hoover to direct relief activities in Greece and Turkey.

After a White House visit last Wednesday, however, Hoover told reporters that "under no possible circumstances" would he accept any such role. "At my time in life," he said, "I have reached the stage of advice and consultation."

Hoover's suggestion that Congress attach a "please repay" tag to a proposed $350,000,000 expenditure for relief in several European countries and China was before the House Foreign Affairs Committee today as it studied legislation to authorize the outlay.

Representative Eaton (Rep.), New Jersey, the committee chairman, told reporters the committee failed to agree on the legislation today and would hold another session tomorrow.

Eaton had planned to introduce legislation for the proposed aid to Greece and Turkey today, but he said drafting of the measure has not been completed. He told repotrers "the bill is incubating in the colossal minds of the State Department and among our people here."

Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, continued to compile questions on all phases of the program to be put to top-ranking Government officials at public hearings.

Warning by Saltonstall.

In Boston, Senator Saltonstall (Rep.), Massachusetts, warning that the United States cannot survive a third world war, called in a speech last night for clarification of Truman's program for aiding Greece and Turkey so Congress will "realize all the implications."

Senator Lodge (Rep.), Massachusetts, pledged his support to Truman's program for Greece and Turkey but warned that the United States cannot "resist Communism in one place and appear to support it in others." He said that if Congress rejected the President's efforts to check Communiesm, "the last hope of ever organizing peace would vanish."

Senator Ferguson (Rep.), Michigan, said he wanted a full disclosure of any thus far unrevealed secret agreements made by the late President Roosevelt before Congress acts on the Truman program.

Acheson meanwhile conferred with Senate leaders and received assurances that early congressional action on Greece and Turkey will be forthcoming.

BRITISH LIFT MARTIAL LAW IN PALESTINE JEWISH AREAS

JERUSALEM, March 17 (AP) —The Palestine government lifted martial law today after 15 days of British army rule, imposed to check violence by the Jewish underground, over sections of the Holy Land.

Shortly before martial law was lifted, a Jerusalem military court sentenced to death Moshe Barasani, 21-year old Jew, for carrying a hand grenade.

Last night, a bomb damaged the news conference room of the Jewish agency here in what police termed the first recorded underground attack on that institution, official Jewish adviser to the British.

Tells Te Deum Forum Here Reds Seek to Destroy U.S. and Catholic Church as Barriers to World Domination.

LOUIS F. BUDENZ

The time has come to end "appeasement" of Soviet Russia, and President Truman's proposal to assist Greece and Turkey in their efforts to combat Communism is a step in the right direction, Louis F. Budenz, former Communist leader, asserted last night.

Addressing a Te Deum forum at Kiel Auditorium Opera House, he charged that Russia seeks to destroy the American republic and the Catholic Church as the principal obstacles in the path of world domination.

Budenz, a former St. Louisan, joined the Communist party in 1935 and served as managing editor of the Daily Worker, but renounced Communism in 1945 to return to the Catholic church. He now teaches economics at Fordham University.

Broken Pledge to Italy.

"We promised the Italians they would not be treated as belligerents if they removed themselves from the war," Budenz said, "but under Soviet pressure we have failed to keep our word, tolerating demands for reparations and other treatment of Italy as a belligerent."

As another example of American "appeasement" of Russia, he cited the case of the Germans forced out of Czechoslovakia.

"At the behest of Russia," he said, "14,000,000 Germans were thrown out of their homes in the middle of winter at little more than an hour's notice. Many of them—perhaps most of them—are Catholics. Men, women and suckling babes were driven from the homes their families had occupied for hundreds of years. Yet the Soviet Government says it doesn't believe in oppression of the German people.

"By American consent to this act to appease Russia, the Communists have made many converts."

The United States should stand for a just peace based on religious principles, he continued, and should see to it that small nations like Bulgaria, Romania and Yugoslavia receive just treatment. He also advocated exclusion of the present Polish Government from membership in the United Nations, and steps to end the Communist "fifth column" in the United States.

Crime a Common Practice.

Passport falsification, with perjury and forgery, is a common practice among Communist agents, Budenz asserted, stating that Earl Browder and Charles Krumbein, national treasurer of the Communist party, went to prison, and several charges of passport fraud were pending against Harry Gannes, once foreign editor of the Daily Worker, when he died.

"Browder once told me the real reason I was made head of the Daily Worker was that my case presented no 'techincal difficulties' —I had never violated any laws of the United States at the behest of the Kremlin," he continued.

The New Times magazine, Budenz charged, is a disguise for the Communist International magazine. "In almost every issue it gives directives to attack America. This country is represented as greedy, as starving the rest of the world in order to dominate it. Every Communist editor, taking the cue from these attacks, assails the United States as imperialist and as starving the peoples of the world. Communists go into the trade unions and other organizations to inflame them against America by these falsehoods."

Asked what an individual can do to overcome Communism, Budenz replied that people should spread factual information to show that the Communist party is the "quisling party" of the United States. "The facts are in my book," he said, referring to "This Is My Story," which was published today.

He urged individuals to advise their Congressmen of their views, and emphasized reliance on prayer for strength and enlightenment.

Case of "Comrade Juniper."

In testifying last week before the House Labor Committee in Washington, Budenz discussed a prewar strike against Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. in Milwaukee. He said that a "Comrade Juniper" had opposed calling the strike at the instigation of Communist leaders, but only because of fear that workers out of patriotism might hesitate to walk out.

Budenz told the committee who "Comrade Juniper" was, and offered to identify him publicly, but the committee decided that only Chairman Hartley (Rep.) of New Jersey should make the disclosure.

In an interview here yesterday, Budenz related, he was asked if a radio news commentator's identification of "Juniper" was correct. "I don't deny or affirm the truth of this identification. I have taken this position solely because of my pledge to the House committee not to divulge the name at this time," he said.

Budenz in his lecture made no reference to his former residence here. From 1917 to 1920 he was secretary of the St. Louis Civic League, which worked for establishment of playgrounds and neighborhood recreation centers. He was a leader in the opposition to the United Railways compromise ordinance of 1917, by which franchise extensions were granted to the streetcar company.

In an open letter distributed outside the Opera House before the lecture, the Communist party of St. Louis accused Budenz of "helping American Hitlerism by spouting against the Communist party."

HIGH WINDS KILL 15 BRITONS, CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

Worst Floods in 50 Years Afflict South England, North Part of Island Snowbound.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

LONDON, March 17 (AP) — Fifteen persons were killed and property damage of millions of dollars was caused by high winds which swept in from the Atlantic last night and blew themselves out today over a still flooded and snowbound Britain. The floods were the worst in 50 years.

Milder weather was forecast by the Air Ministry, although "considerable rains and gales" were expected tomorrow.

The night winds attained a velocity of 98 miles an hour at times, uprooting trees, deroofing buildings and wrecking houses.

Most of the dead were victims of falling trees and debris. Five were killed when houses collapsed. A falling pipe killed another; two school girls were crushed to death in a bus which was struck by a falling tree. A man was found dead this morning under a fallen tree outside his home. Two cyclists caught in the gale were crushed by trees. Another victim died of head injuries after being bowled over on the street.

In Southern England, thousands of families were marooned in their homes by floodwaters. Many highways were cut and some branch railway lines were out of service.

Mountainous snowdrifts still paralyzed transportation in northern England and Scotland.

The storm harassed shipping all around Britain. A vessel was reported in distress 35 miles off the southeastern coast. The American ship Ernie Pyle put in at Plymouth after an engine breakdown off the Scilly islands. The vessel was bound for New York with 800 displaced persons.

Newspapers estimated that a total of 3,000,000 head of cattle and sheep have perished, buried alive in heavy snows.

KRUG OFFERS PLAN TO HELP U.S. IN LACK OF MINERALS

NEW YORK, March 17 (UP)— Secretary of the Interior Krug proposed a program today to offset this country's dependence on foreign sources for "an increasingly important group" of minerals.

Addressing the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, Krug said 30 years of industrial expansion had demonstrated that American mineral resources are exhaustible "in a very real sense" and that "we must seek outside sources for an increasingly important group of minerals."

He listed some as tin, nickel, platinum, industrial diamonds, flake graphite and quartz crystals.

Krug's program included more intensive search for minerals within American borders and improved mining, producing and refining techniques; acquisition of scarce metals from outside sources, and accumulation of stockpiles.

EDISON DISBELIEVED ATOM CONTAINED INTERNAL POWER

PHILADELPHIA, March 17 (AP)—An undated paper on which Thomas Alva Edison penciled his disbelief in the internal energy of the atom is among rare documents offered at auction here today.

The collection was owned by the late Frederick Stanhope Peck of Barrington, R.I.

Edison in pencil answered 44 questions. To the question, "Will it be possible to harness the power in the atom . . . ?" Edison wrote, "As to the atom, I do not believe it has any internal energy as claimed. Everybody else believes it has. . . ."

22 Crewmen Rescued at Sea From Stern End of Split Tanker

Storms Had Prevented Earlier Transfer of Men, in Hulk Since Wednesday—Planes Hunt for 12 in Lifeboat.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

HONOLULU, March 17 (UP) — The Navy today announced the rescue of 22 men from the storm-beaten stern section of the tanker Fort Dearborn.

The Navy said the seamen, stranded on the half-ship since last Wednesday, had been rescued by the amphibious command ship U.S.S. El Dorado which had been shepherding the broken hulk. They were later transferred to a Navy patrol escort vessel.

Winds as high as 60 knots had prevented their rescue since the Fort Dearborn broke in two during a storm about 1100 miles northwest of Hawaii.

Ten other men, including the Fort Dearborn's skipper, Capt. Richard W. Mahoney, were taken off the foundering bow section of the ship last Friday and were being transported to Hawaii aboard the American President liner Gen. W. H. Gordon.

Twelve other members of the crew still were missing at sea after abandoning the stricken vessel in a lifeboat and now are the object of a widespread air search.

Miss M. Villaneuva, Manila newspaper woman aboard the Gen. Gordon, reported that the 10 crew members of the Dearborn taken aboard the Gen. Gordon were in good spirits and had appeared in the dining room.

She radioed the United Press that the only disheartened man among the survivors was Cheng Chin Mai, who lost his $5000 savings which he intended to invest in Shanghai.

The survivors aboard the Gen. Gordon included Capt. Mahoney, Chief Mate Milton E. Taylor, who was resting comfortably in the ship's hospital with a broken leg suffered before the Dearborn's crack-up; Second Mate R. W. Reed and his son, Purser Robert Reed.

daylight in the little Munich suburb of Solln.

European Theater Mortuary No. 1, at Heilmannstrasse 25, stands on a 60-foot cliff above the Isar river.

A stairway winds down the cliff, and 30 yards from the foot of the stairway is a creek which rises from springs in the hills and flows down to the Isar.

Seventy-five yards beyond the stream, called Wenz creek, run two placid branches of the Isar. They are about 30 yards wide. One is a natural bed, and the other, like Wenz creek, is a power canal.

It may have been the creek on one of the two Isar branches. But at any rate it was somewhere on the isolated river plain that 11 bright aluminum cylinders were lined up in the mixed sand and high grass along the water. They were about 16 inches high and six inches in diameter, tightly sealed.

One by one the cylinders were chopped with axes, smashed open with boot heels. Their contents were sifted into the water which eventually finds its way into the Danube.

BURIED MANILA GEMS FOUND

MANILA, March 17 (AP)—E. A. Perkins, American attorney, was $9000 richer yesterday because of the persistent toil of Manila police. A week ago he reported that he had buried $9000 worth of jewelry in the front yard of his Dewy boulevard mansion the night before the Japanese took Manila. He had been unable to find it and presumed it was stolen.

The patient polices paded up the entire lareg yard and found all the jewels, which had been scattered unnoted in the dirt thrown out by the Japanese in building an air raid shelter.

DONNELLY VETOES 4 SENATE BILLS ON REVENUE LAWS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 17 —Gov. Donnelly today vetoed four Senate revision bills, designed to make provisions of minor revenue collection laws conform to the new Department of Revenue Act, because they failed to revise. Errors and technical defects in the bills, which were not detected in their course through legislative committees and the two Houses, would have made the bills unworkable or caused confusion, he said.

The bills re-enacted certain duties for agencies such as the State Board of Health, the Board of Penal Commissioners and food and drug commissioner, which have been abolished.

Donnelly approved five other bills, also making revenue acts conform to the Department of Revenue Act, which were in proper form.

'SOUP KITCHENS' AUTHORIZED FOR GERMAN CHILDREN, AGED

INQUIRY INTO RED SECRET POLICE IN KILLING IS SOUGHT

Norman Thomas Makes Request in 1943 Murder of Italian Paper Editor in New York.

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)— Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet said today that the New York county district attorney's office would consider a request to investigate the role of the Russian secret police (NKVD) in connection with the unsolved killing of Carlo Tresca, Italian language labor newspaper editor.

Grumet's comment was made after a group, headed by Socialist leader Norman Thomas, left with him a statement which urged the district attorney "to summon a grand jury to investigate the role of NKVD and certain American Communist party leaders" in the Tresca killing in New York on Jan. 11, 1943, and the disappearance of Juliet Stuart Poyntz.

Miss Poyntz, onetime Communist leader, was declared legally dead in October 1944, seven years after disappearing from her mid-Manhattan residence in June 1937. At the time, Surrogate James A. Foley noted that charges had been made that she was "kidnaped and removed to Russia."

The Thomas group said in its statement that the book, "This Is My Story," by Louis F. Budenz, former member of the Communist party's national committee and a former St. Louisan, "reveals highly important information about the terrorist activities of the NKVD, the Russian secret police, in the United States."

Thomas said the group had received "assurances" from Grumet, saying: "We don't expect a miracle." He said the group told Grumet that federal and local prosecutors should "band together in an all-out effort to stamp out Communist terrorists and political murders."

Thomas said the group urged that "a grand jury investigation or a John Doe investigation" should be conducted to stop "Soviet agents from enlisting aid of Americans in these plots and murders. It's time for law enforcement to put an end to this terror, but it's an international problem."

Thomas said his group considered as a political murder the death of George P. McNear Jr., president of the Toledo, Peoria & Western Railroad, in Peoria, Ill.

Accompanying Thomas were Author James T. Farrell and City Councilman Louis P. Goldberg, representing the 47 signers of the statements.

P. S. CO. CASE PRESENTATION IN ARBITRATION IS DEFERRED

Arbitration proceedings at Hotel Coronado in a wage dispute between the St. Louis Public Service Co. and its employes entered its third week today. The presentation of the company's case, expected to begin today, was deferred pending further cross-examination of the union's witnesses.

In the last two weeks, the AFL Amalgamated Association of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes, Local 788, presented testimony and data in support of its demands for a 35-cent hourly increase in wages, shortening the work week from 48 to 40 hours and various improvements in working conditions.

The company's presentation is expected to document its opening statement that if all 40 demands made by the union were granted, the company's labor bill would be increased by $7,000,000 annually and necessitate higher fares. Rodowe H. Abeken, attorney, is chairman and impartial member of the three-man panel.

PARAGUAY STATE CAPITAL REPORTED TAKEN BY REBELS

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 17 (AP)—The Brazilian news agency Asapress reported today that Paraguayan rebels had captured Piedro Juan Caballero, capital of the province of Amambay on the Brazilian border, and scored other successes in the 10-day uprising.

The same dispatches said the rebels had taken the stronghold of Pena Hermosa and released about 1000 officers interned there by Paraguayan President Higinio Morinigo. Among them was listed Col. Alfredo Galeano, one of the leaders of the garrison at Concepcion, where the revolt began.

(The Paraguayan Government asserted that loyalist troops had captured Belen Cue, 50 miles southeast of Concepcion, and that full-scale military operations were proceeding against dissident troops in the north.)

CLAY TO BE FULL GENERAL

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —President Truman today nominated Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, commander of United States forces in Europe, for the temporary rank of full general.

Truman nominated Maj. Gen. Clarence Ralph Huebner, Clay's chief of staff, to be a lieutenant general. Both hold the permanent rank of brigadier general.

tures can be cut if a real effort is made."

The report of the Department of Personnel and Civil Service Commission for 1946 was cited, showing 8549 classified employes in the city departments under civil service, of whom 1185 are 65 years old or over, 147 of these being between 75 and 91. "There is every indication," the report said, "that there is good reason to feel that economies could be effected by careful investigation of these age groups."

City institutions under the Department of Public Welfare were reviewed by Mohler. He said the economy section had considered the proposed transfer of City Sanitarium to the state. This, he said, "might result in some saving, provided that the state will accept all senile patients, to the number of possibly 1000, in the sanitarium. This," he added, "is questionable in view of the statement of Speaker M. E. Thompson." The statement, which was outlined, was to the effect that costs of such patients might be charged by the state to the city.

Also, the time required for passage of legislation by the city Board of Aldermen and the Legislature would require time, making any immediate saving impossible, it was stated.

Section on Social Service.

A section devoted to the work of the social service staffs at city institutiions states that "social service investigation at both city hospitals is woefully inadequate." Such service is "practically nil" at the Sanitarium, it was stated, but if it were provided, collections for service could be increased from about $100,000 to $200,000 a year or more.

"It is well understood," Mohler stated, "that economies alone will not take care of the present situation, in which the city administration is desperately in need of additional revenue." Adoption of the expedients suggested, it is declared, "might result in a considerable amount of economies, and give citizens confidence in their consideration of increased taxes that may be required."

Tojo Returns to Trial.

DETROIT, March 17 (UP)—The Foremen's Association of America plans to organize 2,000,000 supervistor employes throughout the country, now that the Supreme Court has sustained their collective bargaining rights.

Robert H. Keys, national FAA president, said the program was authorized yesterday by the independent union's 16-man executive board. He said a campaign might be started later for a general pay increase.

FULL CITY, COUNTY LEGISLATIVE VOTE IS PREDICTED FOR SLUM CLEARANCE

Stemmler Voices Confidence of Support for Bill to Aid Housing After Legislators Inspect Project Here.

City Counselor George L. Stemmler said today he anticipates unanimous support of the St. Louis and St. Louis county delegations in the State Legislature when the slum clearance public housing bill is brought up for passage, which will be "as soon as possible."

This statement followed a tour of the Clinton-Peabody Terrace housing project, operated by the St. Louis Housing Authority, yesterday, which was attended by a majority of the legislators from the city and county. Detailed information as to the operation of the project was given the legislators. Stemmler described the tour as a "quite successful session."

Stemmler announced that Associate City Counselor Aubrey Hamilton will be in Jefferson City tomorrow to confer with St. Louis and St. Louis county legislators and sponsors of the bill to determine the most propitious time to bring the measure up for action.

"We hope it can be brought up this week," he said, "but that will depend entirely upon what the situation is in the Legislature."

Quick Action Sought.

Hamilton will be accompanied by Paul J. Kaveney, vice chairman of the city's Civil Service Commission and attorney for the St. Louis Housing Authority. Kaveney said they will seek "immediate action" on the bill and expressed hope it might be perfected by Wednesday.

As to the criticism directed Saturday against the "board of strategy" by Representative Harry Schendel, Democratic House member, that the city delegates had been told to refrain from talking on the measure, Kaveney said, "They are free to discuss it, and we hope they do."

He said there apparently had been "some misunderstanding" of his advice to the St. Louis delegation when he took the bill to Jefferson City for introduction. At that time, he said, he enlisted the support of the House leaders, both Republicans and Democrats, who signed the bill as sponsors.

He then took it to the St. Louis delegates for their signatures and advised them "not to try to carry the ball, let the House leaders do that, but be on hand to help."

Recalls Stand Last Session.

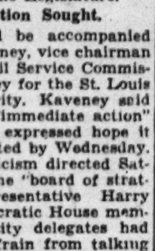

Stemmler said that at the last session of the Legislature, at which the measure failed of passage, it was the opinion of the backers of the bill that it would be advisable to allow the members from the rural areas to take the lead in order to avoid giving the impression the legislation was "just something the big cities wanted." He said he did not know that this was any part of the "strategy" this session.

The bill would continue tax exemption for public housing projects, which was provided under the old constitution.

The new constitution eliminated such projects from the exempt group unless specifically exempted by act of the Legislature.

EDWARD L. DOWD APPOINTED AID TO CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

Edward L. Dowd, lawyer for four years with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, was appointed today as an Assistant Circuit Attorney at $3600 a year. Circuit Attorney James W. Griffin announced at the same time the advancement of a woman assistant, Miss Virginia McGinty, from a $3600 salary to $3900, with the duty of handling preliminary hearings in the Court of Criminal Correction. Griffin recently dismissed two assistants, Paul L. Dobberstein and Harry A. Levi, after the Post-Dispatch had called attention to their practices in gambling cases.

E. L. Dowd.

Dowd is 29 years old, and a graduate of St. Louis University Law School in the class of 1942. He served with the FBI from March 1942 to March 1946, part of the time in Detroit, where he had part in the espionage case involving Grace Buchanan Dineen and seven others. She was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment. Dowd is married, has one daughter, and lives at 5118A Jamieson avenue.

Margaret Truman in Successful Debut; 15,000,000 Hear Her Sing on Radio

Most Critics Comment Favorably—Some Say She Needs More Study for Operatic Career—Director Optimistic.

DETROIT, March 17 (UP)—Margaret Truman was to return to Washington by train late today after launching her professional singing career in a nation-wide radio broadcast last night. The American Broadcasting Co. estimated that 15,000,000 persons listened to Miss Truman.

Her first performance was received favorably by the majority of music critics, many of whom said the 23-year-old singer needed additional study before starting on an operatic career.

Miss Truman said she had no immediate plans except "to get a little rest." She talked with her parents by a three-way telephone hookup last night—the President at Key West, Fla., and Mrs. Truman in Washington—and then said laughingly, "They were just as relieved as I am that it's all over."

Her parents liked the performance, she said, "but, of course, they're a little prejudiced."

Dr. Karl Krueger, director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, with whom Miss Truman appeared as a guest star on the "Sunday Evening Hour," said, "I was very happy and proud to have presented Miss Truman at her debut. I think she will have a great career."

The studio audience was limited to some 30 newspaper critics, photographers and radio representatives.

Orchid From Grandmother.

Miss Truman, whose debut was postponed for one week because of an attack of laryngitis, sat calmly on the stage beside the conductor's podium, wearing a two-tone blue dress with a chiffon skirt and velvet top. She wore a single orchid, sent by her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Truman, of Grandview, Mo.

Krueger nodded and smiled when the time came for her songs, and she stepped quickly and confidently to the microphone. There was no reference to her being the daughter of the President. She was presented only as "a young American soprano."

She sang "Cielito Lindo" (Padilla), "Charmant Oiseau" from Le Perle du Bresil (David) and "The Last Rose of Summer" from the opera Martha (Flotow). The latter was in English. It was included at her father's request.

The President listened from a couch in the house at Key West where he is vacationing. His press secretary, Charles G. Ross, said Truman "listened with pleasure."

Mrs. Truman listened to the program in the private family apartment of the executive mansion. She was quoted as saying she was "very pleased."

Miss Truman's grandmother, 94, confined to her bed with a broken hip, was said to have liked the program very much.

The program sponsors said Miss Truman would be paid a "modest sum."

(The Associated Press said an authoritative source set Miss Truman's fee for the concert at "at least $1000, perhaps $1500.")

What the Critics Say.

After the broadcast, Miss Truman was a guest of honor at a party in the ballroom of her hotel. She then went to her room to read congratulatory telegrams and await the reaction of critics.

That criticism included:

Francis D. Perkins, New York Herald Tribune: Her singing gave an impression of a pleasing natural quality, considerable fluency, and, as heard over the radio, a satisfactory volume. Her command of vocal technique seemed, however, incomplete; her tones were generally steady, but not always focused, a slightly nasal timbre noticeable here and there.

Noel Straus, New York Times: she made a good impression.

Ben Gross, New York Daily News: A bit ragged at times, but yet showed considerable promise.

Seymour S. Raven, Chicago Sun: Miss Truman is by no means ready, on the basis on this one hearing, for a concert career. She needs a fuller vocal education and a broader sense of musicianship.

Russell McLaughlin, Detroit News: She gave evidence of steadiness, diligence and ambition.

Harvey Taylor, Detroit Times: She sang as any fairly talented but fairly inexperienced pupil would sing at her first public appearance.

Mildred Norton, Los Angeles Daily News: Miss Truman has a voice that should be a great asset to any Sunday School choir.

Robert S. Stephan, Cleveland Plain Dealer: A coloratura soprano of excellent clarity. Its appeal was in its simplicity. All three of her numbers revealed a carefully-coached talent . . . her diction was good.

J. Dorsey Callaghan, Detroit Free Press: Miss Truman reached a nice legato and a deep appreciation of the musical values of her songs. Save for two lapses from pitch, her voice was pure.

Glenn Dillar Gunn, Washington Times-Herald: Margaret Truman's debut was a definite, immediate and honestly earned success . . . those who remember Mme. Galli-Curi in her prime discovered a resemblance.

Claudia Cassidy, Chicago Tribune: Her immature soprano was unobjectionable, unremarkable, a parlor voice pleasant in quality, but too pinched off in the upper range to be a true coloratura.

TRUMAN LISTENS 'WITH PLEASURE'

KEY WEST, Fla., March 17 (AP)—President Truman, kept away from the beach again by overcast skies, spent this morning reading telegrams congratulating him on his doughter's radio debut. He decided to fly back to Washington Wednesday, leaving shortly after lunch with a view to having dinner in the White House.

He spent last night in the commandant's quarters, talking over the radio debut of his daughter, Margaret, after telephoning her at Detroit to congratulate her on her broadcast with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said the President heard the three songs of his daughter "with pleasure."

Truman telephoned his mother, Mrs. Martha E. Truman, 94 years old, bedridden by a hip injury at her home at Grandview, Mo. He put in a call also for the White House, where he talked with his wife and her mother, Mrs. David Wallace.

'Inherently Sympathetic Voice Miss Truman's Chief Asset'

She Displays Natural Vocal Appeal, Has Stylistic Possibilities, but Top Scale Is Not Yet in Full Control.

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN, Music Critic of the Post-Dispatch.

Margaret Truman, a young American soprano from Washington, D.C., made her professional debut last night in a concert broadcast from Detroit. She was accompanied by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Karl Kreuger.

The foregoing description of the event follows the form of announcement used over the radio. Since no reference was made to the fact that Miss Truman is the daughter of Harry S. Truman, President of the United States, it may be inferred that she is strictly on her own and asks for no quarter from friend or foe. Nevertheless, the general public could hardly be expected to make the complete dissociation of identities that would have been necessary for her performance to be regarded as a purely musical event. For that reason there must have been uncounted numbers who listened because of the connotations of her name. It could hardly have been otherwise.

Trying for a Debutante.

These circumstances and the conditions existing at the concert would have been peculiarly trying for any debutante singer, but, without going into that, it can be said that the voice itself—a light soprano—has a smooth texture, with a fresh expressive inner quality, that the tone is well focused and the scale fairly even throughout the disclosed range with the exception of the very top where the tone thins out and is not under good control. This was particularly noticeable in her second number, "Charmant Oiseau" from Felicien David's little known opera, "La Perle du Bresil."

This aria, in fact, was too bold a choice for a fledgling. Veteran coloraturas use it as a tour de force because of the fancy cadenza with flute obbligato at the end, and it requires a high degree of assurance, control and agility to toss it off successfully. Miss Truman omitted part of the cadenza, possibly on the spur of the moment since she was suffering, apparently, from shortness of breath.

These evidences of over excitement and tension were not apparent in her first number, "Cielito Lindo," by the Spanish composer Juan Padilla. She sang this with seeming assurance and a display of temperament that gave it an effective measure of brightness and charm.

Her third number, "The Last Rose of Summer," was conveyed with restraint. The restraint in this case may have proceeded from caution, but tentative interpretations are not unusual with young singers. Indeed, it is the rule that maturity of expression comes only with experience. So it was decidedly in Miss Truman's favor that such expressive elements as were shown were in good taste. Her use of inflection, in general, was sensitive and showed no inclination toward distortion for the sake of effect.

Her chief asset at the moment is an inherently sympathetic voice which has been well treated so far. How it will develop can hardly be predicted on the basis of such limited evidence. Conditions surrounding the performance were not conducive to ease of execution and radio transmission necessarily involves a departure from strict fidelity. What could not be falsified was enough to indicate stylistic possibilities as well as natural vocal appeal. She will be limited, however, both as a singer and an artist unless she can extend and reinforce the top of her scale.

Last night's concert, which included several orchestral numbers, was carried by the American Broadcasting Co. network. It was broadcast in St. Louis over Station KXOK.

$5000-A-WEEK MOVIE OFFER TO MISS TRUMAN BOOSTED TO $10,000 BY PRODUCERS

HOLLYWOOD, March 17 (UP).

TWO Hollywood writers who had offered Margaret Truman $5000 a week to appear in their picture "Las Vegas," increased the offer to $10,000 today.

Ed Scofield and Sam Taylor, turned producers after claiming to have won $103,700 at Las Vegas (Nev.) gambling tables, received a polite rejection of their original offer. Miss Truman explained then that prior commitments would prevent her from coming west for the filming of the picture in April.

"She has a very fine voice and we certainly would like to have her in our picture," Scofield said.

U. S. WARRANTS ISSUED FOR TWO IN BANK FRAUD

Monahan, Ward Charged With Misapplying $12,474—Accused of Taking $95,000.

Federal warrants were issued today against Edward M. Monahan, a former assistant trust officer of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., and Thomas J. Ward Jr., University City contractor, charging them with misapplication of $12,474 of funds of the bank.

The warrants were issued by United States Commissioner John A. Burke, on complaints filed by Assistant United States Attorney Herbert Freer. The $12,474 cited is part of $95,000, which the bank announced last Friday had been misappropriated by Monahan and Ward through fake bills for construction on property managed by the bank.

Gerald B. Norris, chief St. Louis Federal Bureau of Investigation agent, submitted partial results of an investigation to Freer today. The results of the inquiry, begun Friday, cover the $12,474 mentioned in the warrants. It was reported that Monahan and Ward will surrender for arraignment before Commissioner Burke, probably late today.

The warrant against Monahan charges him with abstracting and wilfully misapply $12,474 of funds of the bank, a member of the Federal Reserve System. Ward is charged separately with aiding and abetting in the misapplication of funds. The charge, under the Federal Reserve Act, is a felony, punishable on conviction by a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5000 fine.

Monahan, a trusted bank employe for 30 years, approved bills submitted by Ward for purported repairs and improvements on real estate managed for the bank's trust department customers. Ward, operating the Maffitt Construction Co., had done work for the bank for years, and in the last 20 years was paid $153,000 for construction work, the bank announced. This sum included $95,000 for work that was not done, Ward and Monahan admitted to bank officers.

Property against which fake repair bills were charged included holdings of about 50 trust estates. The estates are protected against loss by bond, and refunds to the accounts are being made as quickly as the fake bills are separated from legitimate repair bills.

Monahan, 52 years old, lives in a modest new home at 1351 Eighty-second boulevard, University City. The property is mortgaged, it was reported.

Ward lives at 7336 Princeton avenue, University City, with his wife. He has a son and a married daughter.

RUBBER STRIKE DEADLINE FOR 100,00 NEXT SUNDAY

CLEVELAND, March 17 (AP)—About 100,000 members of the CIO United Rubber workers in plants of the "big four" rubber companies will go on strike next Sunday at midnight unless their demands for a wage increase are granted, it was announced today by L. S. Buckmaster, union president. The "big four" are Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone and United States Rubber.

RED INK USED TO CLARIFY DAYLIGHT SAVING BALLOT

Warning That 'No' Must Be Indicated If Voter Desires to Keep Ordinance in Effect.

Plans of the Election Board to clarify the daylight saving ballot, in the primary election April 1, by printing part of the ballot in red, were praised in a statement today by former Circuit Judge Fred J. Hoffmeister, chairman of the Citizens' Committee to Oppose Repeal of Daylight Saving Time.

"The board deserves the heartiest congratulations by voters of St. Louis for making every effort to clarify the ballot on repeal of summer daylight saving time," Hoffmeister said.

"St. Louisans must be warned, however, that the most serious danger does not lie in the Election Board's power to overcome. This is that people must vote "No" if they favor summer daylight time. They are voting not on daylight saving itself, which we have already, but on an ordinance to repeal the present daylight saving ordinance."

He urged organization leaders to impress on their memberships the importance of voting "No" to prevent the existing daylight saving ordinance from being repealed.

Frank L. Ramacciotti, Election Board chairman, said the board's effort to clarify the ballot will include, not only the use of red printing, but also printing of the proposition on a separate ballot.

The part to be printed in red, he said, will be just below the words "Yes" and "No," and will read as follows: "To retain daylight saving time, scratch 'Yes'; to abolish daylight saving time, scratch 'No.'"

PILOT FOUND 19 HOURS AFTER JUMP IN 'CHUTE

Injured in Fall From Tree in Which He Landed Near Scott Field.

First Lt. Dewey L. Neidy of Bakersfield, Calif., suffered a broken leg when he parachuted out of his Thunderbolt pursuit plane Saturday night over Damiansville, Ill., 15 miles southeast of Scott Field, and lay 19 hours until rescued yesterday afternoon.

At the Scott Field station hospital today he was reported to be in good condition.

Lt. Neidy, 25 years old, was flying from Hensley Field, Dallas, Tex., to Scott Field on a training mission when his gasoline supply became low, due to head-winds. He parachuted out at about 8:15 p.m. His plane crashed in a field about four miles south of Damiansville.

Landing in a tree about 100 feet up from the ground, Lt. Neidy attempted to climb down when he slipped and fell.

Before he bailed out he had sent a radio signal to the field and a search was organized. Shortly before the Army searching party reached him, however, hunters discovered the pilot. Rescuers said he was in good spirits, despite his 19-hour wait with an untreated compound fracture.

Other planes in the same flight with Lt. Neidy had landed at Lambert-St. Louis Field, also short of gasoline. Pilots of the other planes had not seen Lt. Neidy bail out, however.

The seventy-first fighter wing of the Missouri National Guard assisted in the search.

U. S. ATTORNEY GOING INTO HOUSING COSTS

Will Present Case of Iron Hutments to Grand Jury if Warranted.

United States District Attorney William H. Hart of the Eastern District of Illinois said today he will investigate the unprecedented high cost of the corrugated iron hutments for veterans in East St. Louis and, if the facts warrant it, present the case to a Federal grand jury.

The American Legion Post 53 in East St. Louis and the Central Trades and Labor Union in East St. Louis have demanded a grand jury investigation.

Hart said he plans to talk to veterans and labor leaders tomorrow. He also will discuss the situation with E. P. Griffin, chairman of the St. Clair County Housing Authority, Hart said.

The George L. Cousins Contracting Co. of St. Louis is completing five hutments in the 400 block on Third street in East St. Louis at a cost of $11,175 each. The staff of experts employed by Roy Wenzlick, nationally known real-estate economist, told the Post-Dispatch these buildings could be duplicated today for a cost of not more than $5000 each.

The Cousins firm is doing the work for the Federal Public Housing Authority on a "cost plus a fixed fee" basis. Hutments are to be rented to veterans at rates not yet fixed. Each hutment contains two apartments.

WELFARE LEADER ASSAILS STATE RELIEF POLICIES

Calls Appropriations in Past 'Harsh and Cruel, Bad Economy in Long Run.'

Missouri relief appropriations in the past not only have been "harsh and cruel, but also have been plain bad economy in the long run," the Rev. G. Richard Wheatcroft, chairman of the Adequate Public Assistance Committee of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare, declared today.

He described the plight of some 177,000 Missourians forced to take general relief or other assistance payments under the present restricted budgets, "while the state has $50,000,000 in financial reserves." The Rev. Mr. Wheatcroft is pastor of Trinity Episcopal Church at Kirksville, Mo. He spoke at a meeting of the St. Louis Chapter of the Welfare Association, at the York Hotel.

Present general relief allowances of 52 per cent of minimum needs, he said, mean "slow starvation" for the 28,000 persons forced to accept relief. Malnutrition, which accompanies relief diet, is a chief cause of tuberculosis, he said, and "each tuberculosis patient costs the state between $4000 and $5000—thus our relief budget is bad economy."

Although the State Division of Welfare requested $7,000,000 from the present session of the Missouri Legislature for general relief in the coming fiscal year, the Rev. Mr. Wheatcroft pointed out that the House committee considering the measure cut this figure to $2,000,000. On the floor of the House, he said, it was raised to $3,000,000, "through the work of the Missouri Association for Social Welfare."

He urged that the full appropriation be demanded when the measure reaches the Senate. "The unemployables—the sick and the lame—on general relief cannot go to the polls to speak for themselves," he said. "We must speak for them."

Old-age assistance monthly checks, averaging $33.99 to each of 107,000 persons 65 years old or older, must be cut 10 per cent if the present appropriation figure is not increased, he said. The Rev. Mr. Wheatcroft declared that the 28,000 children receiving an average of $14.18 a month can have only 70 per cent of their minimum needs met at that figure. He also urged that administration funds be increased.

$2140 A PERSON IS AVERAGE OF SUM HELD IN SAVINGS

CHICAGO, Feb. 13 (UP)—Americans have salted away 300 billion dollars—more than the national debt—in various kinds of savings, an analysis showed today. If this sum were divided equally, each person in the country would have about $2140 in savings.

The analysis was conducted

WHAT! You Don't Have $2,140?

Can't understand that. It says you're supposed to, right there in the papers.

Yes, we know, prices have been high and you saw that yacht just like the Joneses. Remember, it's better to keep up with what the Smiths are saving than what the Joneses are spending.

Start pouring those extra dollars into your Savings Account at Industrial. We'll do all we can—and start paying interest the day of your deposit. It won't take as long as you think.

(Confidentially, it's OK with us if you save more than $2,140. We'll pay interest no matter how large the amount.)

ASSAILS DONNELLY AS 'BUCK PASSER' ON MERIT SYSTEM

House Speaker Says Governor Should Name Director, Let Him Seek Law Revisions.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, March 17—Speaker Murray E. Thompson (Rep.) of the House today charged Gov. Donnelly (Dem.) with trying to "pass the buck" to the Legislature, in blaming delays in placing the new state merit system in operations on failure of the Legislature to revise or repeal conflicting laws.

"If the Governor will try to take care of his duties on the second floor of the Capitol," Thompson said, "the Legislature will try to look after its duties on the third floor."

This renewal of the political feud between House Republican leaders and the Governor was occasioned by a statement by Donnelly Saturday. The Governor said he was ready to appoint a director for the merit system, but hesitated to do so because legislative failure to revise conflicting acts had not put the state in position to enforce the Merit System Act.

Appointment of the director has been held up by Donnelly since the names of three eligible applicants selected through competitive examinations were submitted to him last Dec. 19 by the state personnel advisory board.

Donnelly said acts fixing salary ceilings and employment conditions for employes of penal and eleemosynary institutions, which are in conflict with the Merit System Act, must be corrected before the merit system could be effectively administered.

"I was impressed by the Governor's statement that the delay has been caused by the Legislature," Speaker Thompson said today. "It is the first time he has mentioned it."

Thompson said the Merit System Act, passed by the 1945-1946 Legislature, prescribed certain duties, including the duty of the Governor to appoint a director.

"This has not been done," Thompson said. "It appears to the Legislature that the Governor, in trying to cast the blame on the Legislature, is on thin ice. He is trying to act as a Legislator and ont as a Governor."

Thompson asserted Donnelly should make the appointment of the director, who then could call to the attenntion of the Legislature any statutes that should be revised to permit proper administration of the Merit System Act.

The Merit System Act, applying chiefly to the state penal and eleemosynary institutions, will place about 5000 of the state's nearly 12,000 employes under a merit system.

YOUTH, 14, HANGED BOY 'ON IMPULSE,' SAYS PROSECUTOR

red-haired Robert Wahrman returned from playing in a barn.

"'He cried, stopped crying, then I put a rope over his head,'" Erway quoted De Flumer as saying. "The boy put the rope with a slipknot around the child's neck and pulled it tight. It was a case of suffocation from strangulation. Apparently the boy pulled the child from a reclining position on the ground, swung the rope over a tree and secured the end of the rope to the branch of another tree."

He said the boy stripped the body of clothing "to remove the evidence." A crucifix and religious medals were found hanging about the dead boy's neck.

Young De Flumer was brought in for questioning late Saturday night, within eight hours after the body was found.

Accused Boy Sobs.

De Flumer remained stoical during the five-minute arraignment yesterday. His mother hysterically cried "Can't I see him?" as the boy was led from the court room. The parents were permitted to talk with him for about 20 minutes in an anteroom.

The youth retained his calm until a reporter asked him as he was being led to jail, "How are you feeling, Carl?"

He replied, "I'm feeling all right," then sobbed, "but I'm sorry."

The De Flumers have one other child, a daughter, Joan, 8. The Wahrman boy was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Wahrman.

Although the two families lived on the same street, Wahrman, a World War II veteran and New York Central Railroad shop employe, said they were not acquainted and that he did not know his son knew the other boy.

At Philip Livingston junior high school, authorities described young De Flumer as "a rather bright boy" but added he "seemed to be highly emotional." His father is a car builder for the New York Central.

BIDDLE UNESCO APPOINTMENT IS STALLED BY SENATE GROUP

WASHINGTON, March 17 (UP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has pigeonholed President Truman's appointment of former Attorney General Francis Biddle to the United Nations Economic and Social Council (UNESCO), committee sources revealed today.

These sources said the reason was Republican opposition to Biddle's "New Deal" background. They said it was doubtful the committee would act before UNESCO winds up its New York session.

Truman sent Biddle's nomination to the Senate Jan. 29. It has been stalled ever since.

INSANITY PLEA INDICATED IN HUTSEL MURDER TRIAL

Emil Hutsel, who is charged with the murder of his wife last Nov. 15 at their home in Shrewsbury, will plead insanity when the case is tried May 19, it was indicated today in a motion for a continuance filed by Ben J. Weinberger, Hutsel's attorney.

The trial was to start today, but Circuit Judge John A. Witthaus granted the continuance after Weinberger said he had been unable to prepare the defense because of illness, and that he had been unable to employ a physician to examine Hutsel. Hutsel suffered a severe head injury in an accident 15 years ago, Weinberger's motion said, and he now wears a metal plate in his head.

Sunny Harrison, a Negro laborer, has asserted he received $80 from Hutsel to kill Mrs. Hutsel, a semi-invalid, but said he did not go through with his part of the bargain. Harrison and two other Negroes, said to have been employed to kill Mrs. Hutsel, are also charged with murder.

Iraqi Protest on FBI Search.

WASHINGTON, March 17 (UP)—A State Department spokesman said today the department has received a protest from the Iraqi Government over a recent FBI search of the Arab office here. The search was ordered, it was said, under the law requiring registration of foreign agents.

2 OFFICIALS URGE CONTROLS BE KEPT ON RENT, HOUSING

Fleming and Creedon Appear Before House Group — Hardships to Veterans Cited.

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —Two top Government officials today told the House Banking Committee that controls on rents and housing should be extended.

Maj. Gen. Philip B. Fleming, temporary controls administrator, proposed continuance of "essential" rent controls until June 30, 1948.

Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon told the committee that only those controls necessary to get the housing job done are being used now.

The committee is considering a bill by Chairman Wolcott (Rep.), Michigan, to repeal the 1946 Patman Emergency Housing Act in order to free the building industry of all federal control. It would also end rent controls on March 31, 1948, and place them on a different basis than at present.

Fleming said that the proposed bill would lead to higher rents in many instances and to hardships for veterans and the lower income groups.

Creedon, in a statement released by the committee, said that the "few remaining housing controls cannot be removed at this time without causing a serious loss in the production of homes for veterans."

Prior to his scheduled appearance before the committee, which was postponed until tomorrow because of Fleming's long testimony, Creedon had issued a statement saying that he didn't know "how many houses would be started or completed this year." He said he hoped it would be "at least" 1,000,000, a figure he attributed to industry representatives, "and as many more as materials and labor will permit."

Creedon said that a report prepared by two of the agency's staff on 1947 home building prospects was "not an official report."

In the unexpected report his staff supplied data which held that:

1. Continued scarcities of materials will prevent the start of more than 825,000 permanent homes this year, even if full federal financial help and controls are retained and despite earlier White House and building industry estimates that the number would hit 1,000,000.

2. If the federal program is dropped, only about 750,000 new dwellings can be started, including emergency shelters, trailers and apartment created by remodeling existing homes.

3. Therefore, the Government's financial aids should be kept in full operation; the federal curb on non-residential building should continue through September at least; and the Government should continue to channel scarce materials into housing.

FAMILY OVERCOME BY GAS FROM WATER HEATER IN HOME

Mr. and Mrs. John Adelhardt were in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital today suffering from the effects of carbon monoxide gas inhaled yesterday when they were overcome at their home, 7014 Minnie avenue, Jennings. Their daughter, Pearl, also was overcome and treated at the hospital, but later released.

All three persons were unconscious when Dr. Edmund M. Schmidt, a physician who had been called by Pearl before she lost consciousness, arrived at the home from his office, 6704 Florissant avenue, Jennings. Mrs. Adelhardt was found lying on a bed and her husband and daughter were on the floor.

The St. Louis County Sheriff's office reported that the gas had escaped into the home from a gas water heater which lacked an escape vent for burned gases. Mrs. Adelhardt collapsed near a washing machine she was using in the basement, where she was found by her husband and daughter who carried her upstairs to a bed.

WITH A FLAMELESS

electric range

Put a whole meal in the oven. Set automatic timer and temperature controls. Then leave for the afternoon. When you come back, a delicious meal is ready to serve. No wonder our old friend, Reddy Kilowatt, is leading you out of the kitchen. Electricity will do your cooking for you.

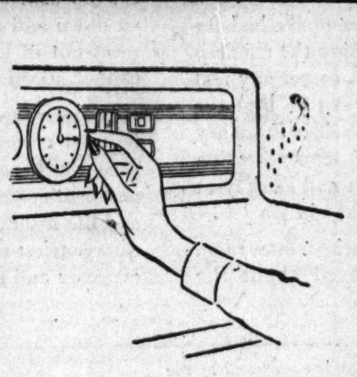

Sounds like magic, doesn't it? Actually, the automatic controls are as easy to operate as ABC. Here's how simple it is to have a delicious meal for your family in the evening—and yet be gone all afternoon...

First, you plan what you want for dinner that evening. You're having a complete oven meal... that roast or fish you bought yesterday... vegetables and dessert. Put the whole, planned meal in the oven of your flameless electric range.

Next, simply turn the dial on your automatic temperature control to the proper cooking temperature. This means that your flameless electric range will automatically supply exact, even cooking heat, at exactly the right temperature.

Suppose you've planned a meal that should cook for 1½ hours. But you plan to leave at 12:15 o'clock and not return till six! Simply set your automatic timer control to take care of this. Your oven will automatically be turned on at 4:30 o'clock... cook your meal for 1½ hours... and automatically turn itself off at 6:00 P. M.

You're on your way... at 12:15 o'clock ... out to lunch, perhaps... then to a movie. The afternoon is yours. Your flameless electric range will automatically do your cooking for you while you're gone—and do it right!

Six o'clock and you're home again... after a delightful afternoon. And what about dinner? As you open the oven—which has just turned itself off—the rich, tempting smell of delicious food tells you all is well. You're ready to put it on the table.

"Gee, Mom, this is swell"..."How do you do it?" "It's easy," you say, "with a flameless electric range, and I've never had a more pleasant afternoon." You, too, will find that a flameless electric range gives you more delicious results... truly "takes the cook out of cooking." UNION ELECTRIC set a two-year period for the completion of reparations removals.

RUSSIA URGES 20-YEAR GERMAN REPARATIONS PLAN

It was recalled, in view of Molotov's suggestion that German steel production be raised to 12 million tons annually, that the four powers provided a year ago for a capacity of 7,500,000 tons and a yearly production of 5,800,000 tons.

He suggested that central agencies be established immediately in Germany for industry, agriculture, finance, transport, communications and foreign trade.

Today's meeting, at which French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault presided, lasted for four and a half hours, the longest of the conference to date.

Marshall Replies to Molotov.

Marshall took Molotov to task for his charges concerning economic activities in the western zones.

"I have listened carefully to Mr. Bevin and Mr. Molotov," he said. "Mr. Molotov's first statement on economic matters largely consists of charges leveled against the actions and motives of the other Allied powers associated in the occupation control of Germany.

"I do not agree with the basis and or the logic of what he said. But the charges and countercharges get us no where except in the development of greater differences. They do not solve our problems; they do complicate them."

Marshall, like Molotov, called for the establishment of central German agencies. He laid stress on the development of an export-import program to enable Germany to pay its own way. He suggested a lengthy program for conference approval and action by the Allied Control Council in Germany, including this proposal on the export-import program.

"An export-import program for Germany as a whole shall be instituted promptly to enable the Germans to pay for the approved imports at the earlier possible date, taking into account the importance of German exports to European recovery," Marshall proposed. "Any interim deficit in the German balance of international payments shall be borne among the occupying powers as may be agreed in the Allied Control Council."

Food Problem and Reparations.

Marshall said the export-import program to make Germany self-sufficient must come before the taking out of any reparations from current production. He explained:

"We cannot accept a unified Germany under a procedure which would in effect mean that the American people would pay reparations to an ally.

"To reach a general agreement, understanding is also necessary among the occupying powers for sharing approximately the cost of importing food needed to prevent starvation and to pay the bill with her own exports."

Marshall continued:

"The Allied Control Authority has no report from the Soviet representatives as to the quantities of materials from current production that has been removed from Germany, but it is believed that these quantities have been substantial.

"We regard these removals to be inconsistent with the Potsdam agreement, which requires Germany to be treated as an economic whole and prescribes the common use of resources and the application of the export proceeds in the first place to the payment of imports."

U.S. Plea for Small Nations.

In a meeting of the foreign ministers' deputies the United States made a plea for wider participation by smaller nations in drafting the peace for Germany. Ambassador Robert Murphy urged a formula that would admit 26 countries, instead of the four powers and 18 smaller countries heretofore invited to present their views to the deputies at London. Murphy's list added Mexico, Bolivia, Iran and the Philippines.

Murphy was opposed by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, who said he wanted each nation approved separately rather than admitted by a general formula. He said he did not object to Iran.

In objecting to a French proposal on the same subject, Vishinsky attacked any participation by Turkey and quoted what he said were the words of a United States politician that "Turkey grew fat on the war." (The United Press said Vishinsky's quotation was from a passage of a speech by Henry Wallace attacking President Truman's proposal to Congress last week to aid Greece and Turkey.)

Marshall's Reply on China.

As the ministers resumed their sessions after a Sunday recess, an informed source said Bevin had drafted a letter to Molotov in which he, like Marshall, rejected Molotov's proposal for a special discussion on China.

Marshall's reply to Molotov was made public by United States delegation headquarters last night. Molotov's proposal was for talks on China under the Big Three's Moscow agreement of December 1945.

Marshall in his written reply, dated Saturday night, agreed to an exchange of information on China but said: "I do not think it desirable to engage in any conference, however informal."

"I suggest," he said, "that each of us furnish the other with stated information before April 1 and that each of us make available a copy of the information furnished to the Chinese Government." The latter Government has opposed any discussion of its affairs, within or without the Big Four conference.

Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, who Saturday became commander of United States forces in Europe and American military governor in Germany, was in Moscow to advise Marshall in the treaty negotiations. Summoned the day he took command, he arrived from Berlin yesterday.

(A Rome dispatch said Italian Foreign Minister Carlo Sforza had asked the Council of Foreign Ministers to permit Italy to participate in the solution of the German problem.)

REDS 'LOOKING AT ALASKA WITH COVETOUS EYES,' SAYS CALIFORNIA CONGRESSMAN

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP).

REPRESENTATIVE Gearhart (Rep.), California, said in the House today that Russia "is looking at Alaska with covetous eyes" by voicing claims that the 1867 purchase arraignment was illegal.

There have been Soviet contentions, he said, that the $7,200,000 purchase price "was in reality but reimbursement of expenses incurred by the then Czar in sending his fleets to New York and San Francisco in 1862" to dissuade the British and French from siding with the Confederacy in the Civil War.

Gearhart said he planned to ask the State Department again whether Moscow has been seeking return of the territory. He noted the department already has disclaimed knowledge of any such maneuver but added:

"We were told that there were no secret agreements made during the Yalta and Tehran conference. Later we learned to our amazement that our leaders had in fact made secret agreements of colossal importance."

"Alaska," he said, "is on a direct line between potential aggressors and our industrial centers. It goes without saying Alaska should be fortified so that it shall become an impregnable barrier to any predatory power."

M'ARTHUR URGES JAP PEACE TREATY BE SIGNED QUICKLY

ship and good will of the Fourth Estate" and announced:

"I am now on record for your questions."

Although no official text of the questions and answers was available, here—based on Associated Press correspondents' notes—is a summary of the conference:

Question. "General, you were quoted recently as proposing that Japan be placed under the United Nations. Would you care to elaborate on that?"

Answer. "The time is now approaching when we must talk peace with Japan. Our occupation job here can be defined as falling roughly into three phases—military, political and economic.

"The military purpose, which is to insure that Japan will follow the ways of peace and never again be a menace has been, I think, accomplished. We have demobilized troops, demilitarized the country, torn down military installations. Psychologically, I believe success has been equally propitious. Japan today understands as thoroughly as any nation that war does not pay. Her spiritual revolution has been probably the greatest the world has ever known.

Views on Jap Democracy.

"The political phase is approaching such completion as is possible under occupation. We have changed the laws, standards and ideals of this country from the feudalistic ideals of the past into the concept of what is the greatest thing in life, next to spiritual beauty—dignity of man. We have made them think nations exist for the welfare of those who compose them instead of the reverse. . . .

"Democracy is a relative thing. It's a question of the degree of freedom you have. If you believe in the Anglo-Saxon idea you will believe this will stay here. If you are a cynic or believe in totalitarianism you may doubt it is here to stay. I believe sincerely and absolutely that it is here to stay.

"I don't by that mean to say this thing called democracy has been accomplished. The process of democratization is one of continual flux, It takes years. But insofar as you can lay down the framework it already is accomplished. There is little more except to watch, control and guide.

"The third phase is economic. Japan is still economically blockaded by the Allied powers. Economic warfare along those lines still is as bitter here as when the guns were firing. And now strangulation is worse because we have returned millions of repatriates from abroad.

"No weapon, not even the atom bomb, is as deadly in its final effect as economic warfare. The atom bomb kills by the thousands, starvation by the millions.

"Japan Exhausted."

"Japan was thoroughly exhausted. All she had left was men. She was living on stockpiles and our blockade after the fall of the Philippines kept materials from coming in. Now they are scraping the bottom of the stockpiles.

"Each little family had its stockpile—of clothing and heirlooms. Now these are being sold to keep men alive.

"Even under the strictest rationing, Japan is not producing enough to satisfy her needs. The difference must be filled by the Allies. If we keep this economic blockade up, more and more will have to support this country.

"It is an expensive luxury. But we will pay for it or let people die by the millions."

There is "not the same unity among the Allies" in the economic phase of the occupation as in the military and political phases. "No clear-cut economic framework has been outlined for Japan, or Germany either, for that matter. But this is not a phase that occupation can settle. We can only enforce economic strangulation.

For Peace Talks Now.

"It would be advisable for the world to initiate at this time peace talks with Japan. But peace won't mean complete relaxation of all guidance or controls. . . .

"Japan on her initiative and without coercion has completed a constitution whch takes the great step of renouncing war. There was a great deal of criticism when this first appeared, but it remains. . . . She also has abolished military installations under the Potsdam declaration.

"Therefore they will be unprotected when we withdraw. Who is going to protect them?"

One method would be "to backtrack and permit small military establishments. . . . But the Japanese are relying upon the advance spirituality of the world to protect them against undue aggression . . ."

It was on this basis, MacArthur said, that he suggested recently to a visiting editor that the United Nations should exercise control over Japan.

"If the United Nations are ever to succeed, this is the most favorable opportunity it has ever had. Japan would be willing and would desire it.

"If the United Nations cannot provide these mild controls, it cannot meet anything."

Elaboration on Treaty.

Q. "Would you care to elaborate a little more on the peace treaty? When do you think it should be?"

A. "For the record, I'll say as soon as possible. In Japan there is a functioning government. But in Germany the government had to be built from the ground up, and there is no government to sign the peace treaty. . . . Over here there is no problem of what to do with Japan. She has been squeezed out of pretty nearly everything we can expect to squeeze out of her. I am not talking of reparations now. But she already has lost Manchuria, Korea and Formosa. There is little left. . . .

"The days of SCAP (Supreme Command for the Allied Powers) should cease completely with a peace treaty because, I think, conditions are ripe for it now . . ."

Against "Bayonet Control."

Q. "How long would you say the United Nations would have to continue controls of democratization?"

A. "I wouldn't want to speculate on that. The Japanese would accept it. . . . It would be considered protective rather than repressive. It could continue as long as it was munificent.

"I would not envision any military formations of any sort after the peace treaty. Bayonet control would be a mocker."

Q. "What about restoration of Japan's economy?"

A. Japan, MacArthur said, was economically poor. "In fact, that was one reason she went to war—she was reaching out to get resources." He pointed out that trade was the lifeblood of these islands and that to stimulate trade Japan must import such necessities as cotton and wool.

"We do not allow Japan to trade. She has got to be allowed to trade with the world. Japan is only permitted a barter system through the bottleneck of SCAP. We've got to take it out of the hands of the Government and put it in the hands of private traders.

"Eighty million people need 20,000,000 tons of food (annually). Seventeen million tons are produced here. . . . There is no way I can see within the appreciable future that these people can get enough food from indigenous products."

Quotes From Churchill.

The job of occupation, he said, is to restore Japan's production to self-sufficiency. "I once read of a statement Winston Churchill made in one of his moments of profound inspiration. Speaking of Germany, he said, 'The problem is not to keep Germany down, but to keep it up.'

"I didn't understand it then, but I do now. Our problem is to keep Japan up."

In recounting difficulties encountered in attempting this, MacArthur said "Japan cannot sell her raw silk in the United States. The scientists have outdone them. Milady would rather have nylon hose than silk hose and they're the boss, as any man will tell you. The scientists have relegated silk to a secondary position—just as they relegated armies and navies to a secondary position with air power and the atomic bomb. Well, that's not quite true, but it illustrates what I mean."

MacArthur said the Japanese were "magnificent farmers," but needed fertilizer for lands exhausted of richness. Formerly, huge amounts were imported from China and Manchuria, "but not a pound has come in since the end of the war," he said. He cited this to show difficulties of restoring production.

MacArthur mentioned that he had read a proposal by a Congressman to cut off Japan's foreign trade for 50 years.

Q. "What would happen if you did?"

A. "There wouldn't be anybody left alive."

Views on Reparations.

Q. "What do you see as the final reparations program?"

A. "I don't think there is any intent to take away from the industrial capacity of Japan that which would destroy it." He noted "some disagreement" between reports on reparations by Edwin Pauley and Clifford Strike, but said "they were both working on the big problem of trying to find the proper balance on questions . . .

"If reparations are cut too deeply, the United States will have to support Japan because we have undertaken major burdens of the occupation," he said.

Q. "What is the possibility of a United States loan to Japan?"

A. "I think Japan can back all the dollars we appropriate, but I think we should hold a first lien against anything we take out of her" in the way of trade. "The United States has not adopted a formula of loans yet, but we are operating on the Army budget, and expenditures probably will be charged against cost of occupation."

HOME OF L. WADE CHILDRESS IS DAMAGED BY FLAMES

A fire late last night at the home of L. Wade Childress, 9030 Clayton road, Richmond Heights, caused damage to the house and furnishings of about $1200, Fire Chief George Hawkins, of Richmond Heights, said. Hawkins said the fire started in the basement and was of undetermined origin.

Childress, who is president of the Laclede Gas Light Co., and his wife have been on vacation at Hot Springs, Ark., for two weeks, Tiney Jones, caretaker, told firemen. Nobody was in the house at the time of the fire.

Jones told the Post-Dispatch he discovered the fire about 10 o'clock last night when he entered the Childress home, a two-and-a-half story brick building, after a failure of the lights in his adjoining cottage. The Clayton fire department assisted in putting out the fire, which was confined to a section of the first floor.

FAMILY MESSAGE NUMBER 14

"It's all about MONEY, again!"

Good money management in the home will help to protect your children from the sense of insecurity which handicaps many throughout their lives by

DR. MARY FISHER LANGMUIR,
Director, Child Study Department of Vassar College; President, Child Study Association of America.

Grownups aren't the only ones concerned about money. Children are quick to sense insecurity, and this fear may have permanent effects upon their lives.

When Mummy and Daddy wrangle over bills, or complain about never having enough money, they may not realize that young ears are taking it all in—and storing it away.

A child who lives in such an atmosphere of anxiety may get the feeling that the whole family is a failure. This often accounts for poor marks at school. Or he may grow up with the idea that money is everything.

The whole family suffers

And this sort of thing is equally bad for parents. How can they enjoy the children under such circumstances, or get any real fun out of life? It may even be that the children will begin to take sides in money quarrels, thus increasing family tension and friction. Or the strain and anxiety at home may handicap Daddy in his job.

Where families follow a wise money plan, they can feel more relaxed about the future, and begin to enjoy the present. Mother and Daddy—and as soon as they are old enough, the children too—should sit down and agree upon what they want most out of life, and what they can and cannot afford to spend.

Large or small, the family income should be used according to certain broad rules—so much set aside regularly to cover payments coming due such as rent, taxes and life insurance; so much saved up for emergencies; and so much for daily living expenses and recreation.

The main thing is to know what you are doing all the time. The whole family will feel happier and more secure if you are free from unforeseen money troubles and emergencies.

HOW TO PLAN FOR FAMILY HAPPINESS

Regardless of the size of income, any family can have more happiness and fewer worries by planning the use of the family money.

First: provide in advance for payments coming due, such as rent, taxes, mortgage charges, life insurance and other insurance. The easiest way is to bank small amounts each payday that will add up to the totals when due.

Second: set aside something extra each payday in the savings account until you build up an emergency fund.

Then you know what is left to spend on everyday family needs such as food, clothing, recreation—and what you can afford to set aside for such future family plans as a new home, education, travel.

Because the life insurance companies and their agents have long helped people to plan for family security and happiness, they are conducting this program of information as a public service to the 73,000,000 owners of life insurance and to every American family.

5 ATTACK PORTAL BILL IN MINORITY REPORT

Group in Senate Committee Says It Would Bring 'Labor Unrest.'

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) —A five-man minority of the Senate Judiciary Committee today asserted that the committee's portal-to-portal bill would bring "labor unrest."

The bill, aimed at wiping out nearly six billion dollars in portal back pay suits, "goes much further and affects situations that have no relation to portal-to-portal," the minority said in a report to the Senate.

The group pledged support of a substitute bill offered by two Democratic committee members, Senators McCarran of Nevada and McGrath of Rhode Island. It would knock out suits now on file in the courts, but leave future questions regarding portal pay as a matter for negotiation between labor and management. Senators Kilgore (Dem.), West Virginia; Magnuson (Dem.), Washington, and Langer (Rep.), North Dakota, joined in signing the report.

The committee's majority viewpoint was expressed by Senator Donnell (Rep.), Missouri. He told the Senate that if pending portal-to-portal pay suits are successful "in any material portion" the courts can expect a further influx of litigation."

Donnell spoke in favor of the majority reports. He headed the subcommittee which prepared the legislation.

The minority contended that "there is no basis in fact or in law to justify Congress in going further and relieving an employer from responsibilities in cases which no not involve portal-to-portal activities." They said that: "Changes" in the Wage-Hour Act under the majority bill, would handicap enforcement, require new judicial interpretations, and "should not become the product of this current hysteria."

U.S. NOTE CHARGES REDS TRY TO SEIZE POWER IN HUNGARY

date had been conducted by "Communist-dominated police organs" and that the Communists had declined to agree to a parliamentary investigation. The Smallholders are in a majority in Parliament. The note said also that the four-man court conducting trials of the alleged Horthyist plotters was made up of "three representatives of parties aligned in a minority bloc as against one responsible to the majority Smallholders."

The note said further that Kovacs, accused by the Russians of espionage against the Soviet Army, was not seized "until the Hungarian Communist party had, without avail, resorted to numerous stratagems" to get him to waive parliamentary immunity so he could be arrested by Hungarian political police.

Copies of the note were to be delivered to Premier Ferenc Nagy and the British representative on the Control Council. When the American note will be published in the Hungarian press is problematical. The last American note of March 5 was not published here until Sviridov made his reply.

Moscow Note to Britain Upholds Sviridov's Stand.

LONDON, March 17 (AP) — Government quarters said today a Russian note had turned down a British call for an impartial Allied investigation of charges of Soviet interference in Hungary's internal political affairs.

The Soviet note said such an investigation would be an unwarranted intervention in Hungary, the sources said.

The British and American governments sent notes to the Russians several days ago protesting against Russian action in Hungary. Lt. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, Russian chairman of the Allied Control Council for Hungary, promptly rejected the British-American charges and Moscow, by its note, has upheld him.

SUPREME COURT SPEEDS ISSUANCE OF LEWIS RULING

Supreme Court said he was fired as a result of a "witch hunt" which he stated "is now proceeding in the Government service and elsewhere."

The United States district court here held the commission had a right to fire persons whose loyalty was in doubt. The United States Court of Appeals affirmed the district court action and Friedman then appealed to the Supreme Court.

The commission said its dismissal order was based on Friedman's activities with the American Peace Mobilization. Referring to this group, the district court said there "were reasonable grounds to believe this organization was formed under auspices of the Communist party designed to influence the American people to oppose participation in the war against Germany. Within a month after the German invasion of Russia, its name was changed to American People's Mobilization and then favored assistance to Britain and Russia in the war against Germany."

Friedman was chief of the classification division of the War Manpower Commission, with the duty of seeing "that the positions of the employes were propertly allocated." He was fired in September 1944 after having held various government jobs from October 1935. He now practices law in New York City.

Labor Ruling.

In the labor free speech case the Beck company contended its managing partner had the constitutional right to call the union a "racket," to tell employes that, if they joined the union they were "sticking their necks out," and to urge them to go to a union meeting, but to return with changed minds—when at the same time he told the workers the decision was up to them and if they wanted a union it was all right with him.

The case arose in the war when the company was making busses for the army. The NLRB found the company had engaged in unfair labor practices because of anti-union statements and because of its course of conduct. It ordered the practices stopped and directed restoration of two employes who the board said were discharged for union activities.

The company in petitioning the Supreme Court for a review said the two were fired after the War Department objected to slowing production. The firm said it was told by an ordnance official to "pick out the fellows that you know are actually holding her (production) up, and fire them."

The court agreed also to review a Chicago court's decision which dismissed an anti-trust suit against the Yellow Cab Co. and five other taxicab concerns.

FORMER CONVICT ADMITS HE KILLED ALTON MAN IN '37

Arrested as He Leaves Prison on Parole—Held in Beating, Shooting of Watchman.

William (Ironhead) Craycraft was being held at Edwardsville today charged with the murder in 1937 of August Mayford, an Alton watchman. Craycraft was arrested Saturday as he walked out the gate of the Illinois State Penitentiary at Menard, on parole from a robbery sentence.

State's Attorney C. W. Burton said the confession Craycraft signed yesterday was to be presented to the Madison County grand jury today.

While he was in prison, Craycraft made several conflicting statements, officials said, admitting that he and two companions had slugged and shot Mayford the night of Oct. 16, 1937. The body was found a month later lying in brush along the bank of Cahokia Creek, two miles west of Edwardsville.

In his statement yesterday, Craycraft said Mayford had stopped him, Virgil Scott and Ralph Sanders in downtown Alton while the three were preparing to rob a jewelry store and warehouse.

When Mayford asked them, "What are you doing here?" Craycraft continued, he and Sanders struck Mayford, knocking him unconscious, and threw him into an automobile in which Scott was waiting. They drove to Sanders' home in Venice, he said, where they decided to drive into the country to dispose of the watchman.

They threw Mayford, who was still unconscious, out of the automobile at the spot at which the body was found, and fired several shots into his body, Craycraft said. Eight bullet holes were found in the body. Craycraft said he removed $20 to $30 from Mayford's wallet.

Craycraft, Scott and Sanders participated with other men in at least 15 robberies in 1937 and 1938. They were known as "strip bandits" because of their practice of forcing their victims to disrobe in order to delay pursuit.

Craycraft had served about eight and one half years of an indefinite sentence for the robberies. A deputy sheriff was at the prison gate Saturday, waiting to arrest him on a murder warrant issued late Friday by Justice of the Peace Charles O. Anderson at Edwardsville.

Scott is not scheduled to be released from the Menard prison until 1954. Sanders died there last year.

CUT, BRUISED WHEN HE FALLS OUT 3D-FLOOR HOTEL WINDOW

Charles Graham, Nashville, Tenn., suffered cuts and bruises yesterday afternoon when he fell out a third-floor window at the Park Hotel, 1231 Olive street, and landed on the roof of a one-story addition at the rear of the hotel.

Graham's wife, Lily, told police her husband was sitting in the open window, drinking a bottle of beer, when he toppled out the window. Police were called and took Graham to City Hospital where his injuries were diagnosed as cuts and bruises of the head and left leg. He is 45 years old.

Shhh-h-h!

NEW YORK—Ernest H. Peabody, president of the New York City League for Less Noise, says the police did a good job of trying to keep things quiet last year; they even issued 8600 warnings to subdue noisy bicycle bells and sirens.

During the year police issued 205,660 noise warnings and 45,345 summonses.

Steaming Flagpole.

ALBURQUERQUE, N. M.—In a traditional rivalry at the University of New Mexico, arts and sciences college students regularly undertake to pull down the engineers' flag just before the engineering students' annual St. Patrick's Day dance.

This year the engineers dug an 80-foot trench from the powerhouse, piped live steam inside the hollow flagpole and dared all comers to climb it.

The flag still flies.

Happy Tub.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass.—When police responded to a neighbor's complaint that someone was making too much noise in an apartment, they found a man — fully clothed—splashing in a bathtub and singing loudly.

He stopped singing—under orders—but the officers reported that when they left he was still splashing contendedly in the tub.

BOARD MAY DEFER RESUBMISSION OF SCHOOL TAX RISE

Governmental Research Bureau to Make Further Study of System's Finances.

The Board of Education at its meeting tomorrow evening is expected to defer action on the question of resubmitting the defeated school tax and bond issue proposals pending a further study of school finances by the Governmental Research Institute.

The institute, a privately financed fact-finding agency, approved the second and third propositions calling for a $10,000,000 bond issue for emergency building funds and a 10-cent increase in the tax rate to provide funds on a pay-as-you-go basis for a long range program of building and modernization. These are expected to be resubmitted as originally drawn.

However, the institute did not pass on the merits of the first proposition which would have increased the school tax rate by 25 cents on the $100 of assessed valuation to provide funds for current operations and avert an anticipated deficit of $2,000,000 at the end of the current school year. The institute, since the defeat of the measures, has agreed to study the schools' finances and prospective needs, but Victor Brannon, director of the agency, said today the study could not be completed in time for tomorrow night's meeting.

The board's action on two other matters to be brought before it is less predictable. These matters are elimination of the board's policy against the employment of married women in the elementary schools and placing the graduates of Harris and Stowe Teachers Colleges on a full competitive basis with all other applicants for such positions instead of continuing their present preferential position.

Policies Criticized.

Both policies of the board have been subjected to increasing criticism of late but Superintendent of Instruction Philip J. Hickey has pointed out that under the state statutes establishing the colleges, the board is legally obligated to give Harris and Stowe graduates first chance at teaching jobs in the elementary grades.

Elmore M. Putney, president of the board, announced today that motions to drop any reference to marrital status from the requirements of teaching applications and to ask the legislative committee of the board to request legislation removing the compulsory "monopoly" now enjoyed by Harris and Stowe graduates would be introduced at the board meeting tomorrow.

A considerable sentiment appears to exist among board members for allowing matters to remain as they are until Prof. William Burke of Washington University has completed his plan for an over-all merit system for all employes of the board. Prof. Burke was commissioned to draw up such a plan last November and was given a year in which to do so. He announced at that time that research would require six months.

While no cogent reasons have been advanced publicly for retention of the long-standing board policy against married women teachers, some members have said that a large segment of the public is opposed to any change in the rule. A number of civic, labor and teacher organizations have announced their desire to have the rule changed and some observers have attributed the defeat of the tax and bond proposals to the unyielding attitude of the board toward such suggestions.

Mayor to See Any New Plans.

Putney and Joseph A. McClain, chairman of the Board of Education's Citizens' Tax Committee, during a conference of more than an hour with Mayor Aloys P. Kaufmann today, agreed to submit any new school financing program to the Mayor for his concurrence before final action on the program by the Board of Education.

The Mayor, who had withheld comment on his position on the school measures before the March 7 election, repeated today his earlier statement that he would support a sound school financing program.

Most of the six candidates for the four positions on the board to be filled at the municipal election on April 1 have announced they would favor the selection of teachers on a strict merit basis without regard for marital status or the institution where they received their training provided it had an acceptable status. Putney said today that he hoped the board would write off the two rules at the meeting tomorrow.

UNION DEMAND ON LA PRENSA AFTER PRINTING OF AFL REPORT

BUENOS AIRES, March 17 (AP) — A newly formed labor union had on file today, with Government support, financial demands on La Prensa, Latin America's largest newspaper, following its publication of an American Federation of Labor report which charged that Argentine labor was a "political tool."

The Secretariat of Labor and Social Welfare, acceding to the union demands, has informed La Prensa it must discoutinue its subscription lists and grant men and boys selling its weekday editions an additional margin of a half centavo (one eighth United States cent) and an additional centavo for the Sunday edition. The newspaper was given until tomorrow to answer.

The Peron Government was reported incensed because La Prensa devoted seven columns of space to the AFL report.

TWO ADMIT THEY TOOK PART IN FOUR TAXICAB HOLDUPS

Two Negroes admitted yesterday, police said, they had participated in four holdups of taxicab drivers in the St. Louis area since Dec. 8. They were arrested after one of them was recognized by Negro Detective James Cook as a man sought on charges of holdup and kidnaping in Mississippi.

The man wanted in Mississippi said he was John Henry Smith, 20-year-old laborer, police said. Cook arrested him last Wednesday on the basis of photographs distributed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Smith implicated Paul Jackson of Madison, police said.

Smith is wanted for holding up a laundry truck in Mississippi six months ago and forcing the driver to accompany him several miles in the truck, police said.

9 IN AUTO KILLED IN CRASH WITH SWITCH ENGINE

4 Girls, 5 Men Lose Lives in Accident Near West Frankfort—Two Sisters Victims.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., March 17—Nine Franklin county young men and women were killed early yesterday when their automobile collided with a backing switch engine at a crossing of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad on State Highway 149 a half mile west of the West Frankfort city limits.

Five of the dead were from West Frankfort:

Wilma Arnett, 20 years old, telephone operator, and her sister, Goldie, 19; Peggy Williams, 18; Thelma Vineyard, 18, and Johnnie Gaddis, 22.

The other dead were:

Leo Coffel, 21, son of the Christopher chief of police; Randall Harris, 24, and Howard Niblett, 23, both of Christopher, and Mike Puskar, 23, Valier.

The automobile belonged to Niblett.

The National Safety Council said it apparently was the worst highway accident on record for a single automobile.

All But One Killed Instantly.

West Frankfort police said all but one of the victims, Goldie Arnett, were killed instantly in the accident, which occurred as the young people were returning home after attending a walkathon at Herrin. Police said Miss Arnett died before reaching the hospital. Police did not learn who was driving the car.

Police said Miss Vineyard had joined the group for a ride home after a "spat" with her escort.

State police said the automobile collided with the tender of the locomotive and was dragged 50 feet. The impact knocked the shoes off several of the victims.

Authorities said the accident might not have occurred if the automobile had not been overcrowded. They believed the driver's vision was obstructed because there were nine persons crowded into a five-passenger machine.

C. R. Guthrie, the engineer, and Frank King, the fireman, both of Herrin, Ill., said they approached the crossing at a speed of 12 to 15 miles an hour.

Guthrie said the automobile was traveling "very fast."

"Apparently, they didn't see us until on top of the crossing. It looked as if they tried to stop, but couldn't, then speeded up," state police quoted Guthrie.

Guthrie said the engine was just a short distance from the crossing when King turned and yelled: "Stop her; there's a car coming."

Engineer Unable to Stop.

"I tried to stop but couldn't," Guthrie said. "I heard a terrific noise but did not feel any impact. I stopped as soon as I could and ran to the car.

"One man was part way out of the car. They all looked dead. We didn't touch them. It was horrible."

He said he and King ran to a telephone about 200 feet away and called a yard office for help. Then they returned to the crossing to flag down automobiles for assistance.

"All of the people in the car looked like youngsters," Guthrie said. "Everything was still and quiet. I feel awful sorry for all concerned. The car was folded like a tin can that's been beat around in a game of shinny."

Guthrie said the locomotive had been engaged in switching operations nearby and was backing up, hauling no cars, at "a normal backing speed."

The crew on the engine escaped injury.

State police said there was no evidence "of any liquor in the car."

Franklin County Coroner D. J. Clayton said the impact was so great that the motor and hood were driven back into the body of the automobile. Clayton said he would hold an inquest, probably tomorrow night.

Clayton said there was a light similar to a street light at the crossing, but that he had not determined whether it was turned on at the time of the accident.

A Chamber of Commerce committee appeared before the Illinois Commerce Commission March 4 to ask for improvement of safety devices at the crossing, where a number of accidents have happened in past years.

DAUGHTERS' BABY TALK ANALYZED BY LANGUAGE PROF

CHICAGO, March 17 (AP)—A university professor reported yesterday after extensive research that, when his baby daughter, Hildegard, said "ba," she might be talking about a ball, a box, a block or piano—or maybe something else.

The study was made by Werner F. Leopold, who teaches German and linguistics at Northwestern University.

His findings were established by observing his two daughters—Hildegard and Karla—learn German and English.

"Ba" to Hildegard, he discovered, could also mean Paul, or the German "bauch" (tummy) or "baden" (bathe).

Hildegard's "boo" was her expression for spoon, balloon and butter. It could also be intended, the professor said, for Hildegard's interpretation of the sound of thunder.

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived today by plane from Florida where they have been vacationing. They will remain here until their return to England in May.

Paging the Lady who wants new ideas for one-dish meals

BY VIRGINIA MILLER
Union Electric Assistant Home Economics Director

Demonstration is tomorrow at Union Electric at 2 p. m.

If you're one of those busy homemakers who saves time and work with frequent one-dish meals, don't miss this show. Learn about some delicious new one-dish meals that you can make in a very short time right on the surface of your flameless electric range. Noodle Medley, for instance, a meal children will want again and again. Perfect Lenten meal, too. Lots of other ideas for one-dish meals that you can quickly and easily cook on your flameless electric range. In addition, all kinds of valuable cooking information and hints to help you cut kitchen time and work in half!

Popular U-shaped Kitchen

The U-shape is ideal because it permits an arrangement of the major kitchen appliances that will save hours of work and time. And to make sure she saves even more time and work, the modern homemaker will include in her plans . . . a flameless electric range, an electric refrigerator, and an all-electric sink which includes the automatic electric dishwasher and electric garbage disposer.

Noodle Medley
. . . it's easy to make and sure to please!

½ cup fat or oil
½ cup diced onions
½ cup diced green peppers
1 cup diced celery
1 can red kidney beans
1 cup button mushrooms (if desired)
2 cups uncooked noodles
3 cups tomatoes
Salt, pepper, paprika

Melt fat or oil in chicken fryer with flameless electric range switch turned to "medium" speed. Saute onions and green peppers until lightly browned. Layer celery, beans, mushrooms, noodles and tomatoes in order. Season to taste. Cover and turn switch to "high" speed until steaming. Turn switch to "low" speed for 15 minutes and then to "off" for 5 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Have any cooking questions?

Call Main 3222, station 637!

Need help with that new recipe? Puzzled about what to serve for Sunday dinner? Want information about laundry and kitchen arrangement? Call Union Electric! Main 3222 . . . station 637. An experienced Home Economist will gladly talk with you . . . and help you solve any of your homemaking problems!

50 STEEL WORKERS STRIKE FOR 15 CENTS AN HOUR RISE

Fifty employes of Lasalco, Inc., 2818 LaSalle street, went on strike today in a wage dispute. They are members of CIO United Steel Workers of America, Local 1094.

A spokesman for the company said the union's last demand was for an "across-the-board" increase of 15 cents an hour. He said the company countered with an offer of 10 per cent which would give some employes 7½ cents and the remainder 12½ cents. Negotiations have been in progress for four weeks.

The company manufactures electroplating equipment. Its contract with the union expired March 1. Employes took a strike vote several weeks in advance of the walkout.

KILLED IN CARD-GAME DISPUTE

Cornelius Smith, a 53-year-old Negro barber, was shot and killed early yesterday at Delmar boulevard and Leffingwell avenue by another Negro barber in a dispute over a card game.

Jessie Sykes, 2634A Dickson street, told police he shot Smith who lived at 2658 Delmar boulevard, after Smith had threatened him with a poker and a shotgun.

EX-ST. LOUISAN'S BODY FOUND IN BAY AFTER PARACHUTE JUMP

The body of Maj. David A. Smiley, a former St. Louisan, was found yesterday in the waters of St. Andrew's bay near Panama City, Fla. Maj. Smiley had been missing since March 7 when he and four other men parachuted from their airplane when it ran out of fuel during a severe thunderstorm near Youngstown, Fla.

Personnel from the plane's base, Tyndall Army Air Field, Panama City, found the body. An extensive land, sea and air search had been conducted.

Maj. Smiley's body will be brought to Hannibal, Mo., for burial Thursday or Friday, members of the family said.

Maj. Smiley, a veteran of both World Wars, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Grechen Morris Smiley, who will return to St. Louis. They formerly made their home in Hannibal. He is also survived by a daughter, Joan Tee, of Maplewood; a sister, Mrs. James E. Aleshire of Richmond Heights, and his father, J. W. Smiley of Hannibal.

The four other men who parachuted to safety were: Capt. William Cunningham, pilot, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Cunningham, 3107 Edgar avenue, Maplewood; Lt. Dale E. Riley, son of Mrs. George Heltibrand, 3615 Commonwealth avenue, Maplewood; Sgt. Philip Wall of Bridgeport, Ill., and M. Sgt. C. T. Linsey of Eolia, Mo.

FORMER WAA SALESMAN PLEADS GUILTY OF BRIBERY

Ernest A. Gunkel, former salesman for the War Assets Administration, pleaded guilty today of accepting a $200 bribe from a veteran for agreeing to provide the veteran with advance information on availability of surplus electrical equipment. United States District Judge Richard M. Duncan deferred sentence for two weeks and ordered Gunkel placed in custody of the United States marshal pending sentence.

Gunkel, who lives at 3711 Manola avenue, Pine Lawn, and received a salary of $440 a year, was arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents last Sept. 24 after he took the money from Malcolm C. Huvard of Atlanta, Ga. Huvard had reported to the FBI after Gunkel solicited the bribe.

Gunkel's lawyer, in an appeal to the court for clemency, asserted his client had not defrauded the Government, but was simply trying to "gouge" Huvard in return for supplying him with advance information.

300 TRUCK DRIVERS DISCUSS PLAN FOR INDEPENDENT UNION

About 300 freight truck drivers discussed plans yesterday with ousted members of AFL Teamsters & Chauffeurs' Union, Local 600, for creation of an independent truckers' union. They met at Polish-American Hall, 1939 Cass avenue.

The meeting was called by Walter Bishop, provisional president; Michael Borner Jr., provisional vice president and John Cummins, provisional secretary-treasurer, in the name of the Independent Truck Drivers and Allied Workers. All three were expelled from Local 600 after having been found guilty of instigating and participating in wildcat strikes.

The group has filed a petition with the National Labor Relations Board requesting certification as bargaining agent with members of the St. Louis Team and Truck Owners' and Allied Motor Carriers' Association. It claims to represent 1500 drivers.

2 SOLDIERS, WOMAN ACCUSED OF TRYING TO ROB CAB DRIVER

Two Scott Field soldiers and a young woman were arrested in Southwest St. Louis early today after John Arcobasso, a taxicab driver, reported that one soldier hit him on the head with a brick in a robbery attempt.

Arcobasso, who was treated for a scalp wound, told police the attack occurred at Eichelberger street and Hampton avenue, where he had driven the soldiers and the woman after picking them up at a downtown corner. Arcobasso ran after he was struck and the soldiers and their companion fled. Police arrested the soldiers and a woman a short time later and Arcobasso identified them.

One soldier, who said he is Pvt. Fred Whitt, admitted striking Arcobasso, police said. All were booked suspected of attempted robbery and assault.

Aims at Rat, Kills His Mother.
FREDERICK, Md., March 17 (AP) — Mrs. Rosa C. Johnson, mother of eight sons, died yesterday in Frederick City hospital of a gunshot wound inflicted accidentally when her 18-year-old son, Martin, aimed at a rat and hit her instead.

$534 IS REPORTED TAKEN IN 3 WEEKEND BURGLARIES

Three burglaries were reported to the police over the weekend. Early today Lawrence Beham, a buyer for the Dacey Produce Co., 1200 North Broadway, reported the company's safe had been entered and $85 belonging to him and $17.75 of company money was missing.

Lewis J. Messerly, operator of a filling station at 2304 South Seventh street, told police burglars took $51.90 in merchandise and $118 from a cash drawer sometime after midnight Saturday. Of the cash, $23 belonged to the Industrial Aid for the Blind, 2533 Sullivan street, he related.

Joseph Schneider, 3526A Minnesota avenue, told police his residence was entered through a side window Saturday night and $261.50 was taken from a metal box in a clothes closet.

50 INSURANCE AGENTS HERE JOIN STRIKE FOR $50 A WEEK

About 50 agents of the Monumental Life Insurance Co. branches here joined a three-state walkout in a demand for a minimum weekly guarantee of $50. The companies' offices in St. Louis are at 634 North Grand boulevard, 3608 South Grand boulevard, and 6635 Delmar boulevard.

Picket lines were established at all company offices in Ohio, Michigan and Missouri. Three hundred and fifty agents went on strike. They are members of the CIO Industrial Insurance Employes Union, an affiliate of the United Office and Professional Workers of America.

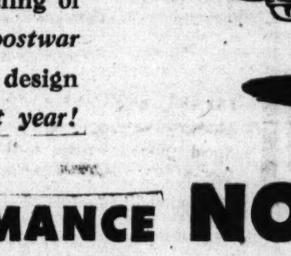

Leo P. Rock, company president, said at Baltimore the demand would add a cost of $845,000 or 60 per cent to the collecting of premiums. Agents receive commissions in addition to base pay rates. Missouri agents of the company voted 10 days ago to authorize the walkout.

$500,000 PAYROLL ROBBERY

CHICAGO, March 17 (UP) — Several robbers, one of whom carried a sub-machine gun, held up a meat-packing company today and took $485,000 in checks and $16,000 in cash, representing the company's payroll.

Company executives said the money was being taken to a bank by a company guard when an automobile drove alongside and blocked the machine. Two or three men on foot converged on the machine. One of them shoved a sub-machine gun into the driver's ribs while the others took his pistol and the money. Two girl messengers, accompanying the guard, fainted.

$1000 MERCHANTS EXCHANGE GIFT FOR RIVERFRONT FUND

Members of the Merchants Exchange of St. Louis voted today to donate $1000 to the general fund being raised by the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association for the purpose of offering prizes for the best architectural designs for the Jefferson Memorial on the riverfront.

Walter J. Krings, secretary, said the decision to appropriate the money from either current or surplus funds of the exchange was approved by a vote of more than two-thirds of the members.

The money will be turned over to the memorial association which is raising a $225,000 prize fund for the architectural contest. Preliminary plans for the competition, which will be judged by a special jury of architects and government representatives, call for grants totaling $50,000 or more to competitors successful in the first stages and final prizes of equal amounts.

FINED AS SMOKE LAW VIOLATOR

The St. Louis Crystal Water and Soda Co., 704 South Boyle avenue, was fined a total of $75 on three charges of violating the anti-smoke ordinance today by Police Judge Joseph B. Catanzaro.

Smoke Inspector Harry Perkins testified he had observed dense smoke emitting from the company's buildings on three occasions last November. The company's defense attorney explained to the court that efforts had been made to conform to the ordinance.

Cards Beat Rookie Reds for Fifth Straight; Dusak Wallops Home Run

Only One Hit Off Brazle in Four Innings

CARDINALS' SCORE

CARDINALS	0	1	2	0	1	0	0	2	6	10	0
REDS	0	0	0	0	1	1	0	1	0	3	8	6

Batteries: Cardinals — Brazle, Blake (5), Yochim (8) and Garagiola, Wilber (5); Reds—Beggs, Polivka (4), Wehmeier (7) and Lakeman.

By J. Roy Stockton
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

TAMPA, Fla., March 17 — Johnny Neun tried out his rookie Reds this afternoon and the Cardinals scored their fifth straight victory in the Grapefruit League, 6 to 3, before 1243 cash customers.

Al Brazle started for the Redbirds and pitched one-hit ball for four innings. Eddie Blake then worked three and Ray Yochim two innings.

Erv Dusak hit a two-run homer in the ninth and Enos Slaughter tripled in the third. Al Lakeman homered for one of the Cincinnati runs.

The Cardnials will meet the Yankees tomorrow in the third game of their series, with John Grodzicki, Wayne McLeland and Al Papai due to pitch.

Two infield singles and an error produced a Cardinal run in the second inning. Sisler beat out a grounder to Frey and Garagiola was safe on Corbitt's fumble. Marion forced Garagiola at second and Diering then singled off Begg's glove, scoring Sisler.

Slaughter, a slow starter, tripled in the two-run third inning. Schoendienst started with a single and after Musial flied out, Enos hit to left for three bases and scored behind Schoendienst when Corbitt made a wild relay to third. When the Cards took the field for the Red third, Dusak replaced Slaughter in right field.

Ken Polivka, a left-hander, went to the hill for the Reds in the fourth.

There were three errors and a run in the Cardinal fifth. After Lakeman missed a pop foul, Schoendienst singled to right. Musial was safe when Frey missed his grounder, Schoendienst reaching third. Lakeman dropped Dusak's pop foul and Erv then flied to Usher, Schoendienst scoring.

Basso batted for Sisler in the fifth and then went to left field and Wilber hit for Garagiola and went in to catch.

Eddie Blake went in to pitch for the Cards in the fifth and Lakeman greeted him with a home run over the left field fence. Usher and Frey singled in the Red sixth and Usher scored from third after Haas's fly to Dusak.

Herman Wehmeier, a right-hander, pitched for the Reds in the seventh.

Blake, after yielding five hits and two runs in three innings, retired for pinch hitter Howerton in the eighth and Ray Yochim took over the pitching assignment.

Usher, first up in the Red eighth, beat out a grounder to Glaviano and Frey walked. Haas sacrificed and Usher scored as Cross was throwing out Durrett. Glaviano made a good stop of Lakeman's hot grounder and threw him out to prevent a tying run.

Cross walked to start the ninth and after Musial popped out, Dusak hit over the fence in left-center for a home run, scoring behind Cross.

Breaking Up a Correnti Assault

MARION STEPS UP BATTING BY TAKING A SHORTER STRIDE

By J. Roy Stockton
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17—Eddie Dyer's Cardinals probably will be a harder-hitting team this coming season than they were last year and a small measure of the added power may be furnished by Marty Marion, of all people.

Marty batted only .233 last year and he's not the kind to be satisfied with that kind of a mark, even if he has built himself a reputation for his defensive skill. He was complaining about his hitting early this spring and even solicited advice. Would somebody please tell him how to get more power? The advice was forthcoming in large quantities, because ball players all know how a job should be done. The consensus was that Marty was throwing himself off stride by taking a long step as he started his swing. Shorten that stride, he was told, and he would improve.

It's difficult to change a batting habit, but Marty went to work on it. Occasionally he would forget. But when he remembered, when he took a short stride and left himself free to get more of his body into the swing, instead of doing it all with his arms, he found he was getting more distance with his drives.

Good Day to Remember.

In the game with the Phillies yesterday, Marty remembered. He went to the plate in the first inning with two runners on base and Blix Donnelly pitching. Blix probably figured he was on his way out of trouble, with Marion at bat. Any former teammate would believe that. But Marion took a short stride, a full swing and drove a powerful double over the left fielder's head, driving in two runs. Then in the fifth inning, against Schoolboy Rowe, Marty hit a man-sized single to figure in another rally that helped make the game one-sided, a victory 8 to 4, the fourth in succession for the world champions.

There's no reason Marion should be a low .200 hitter, except that he does it all with his arms too frequently. He has keen eyes—he must have to field the way he does—and he doesn't strike out too frequently. It would help to win many a ball game if he could remember throughout the season and add about 50 points to his 1946 batting total.

The victory, over the Phils was in hand so early that Manager Dyer had rookies at all positions before the thing ended. And even against the rookies the Phillies still looked rather feeble. Ben Chapman must find some help, a shortstop certainly, and more power, if the club is to make the new owners happy this year.

Jim Hearn, Les Studener and John Griffore did the pitching for the Redbirds, against Donnelly, Rowe and Dutch Leonard. Hearn went five innings, the first Cardinal to go more than three, and his pitching was better than the eight hits off his delivery would indicate. There were pop hits and a couple that were wind-blown, just out of reach, and twice in clutches he threw an effective double-play ball.

Louis to Put Title on Line For 24th Time

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Joe Louis announced today through one of his managers, Marshall Miles, that he would make the twenty-fourth defense of his world heavyweight boxing title June 26 in the New York Yankee Stadium.

Miles made the announcement in the absence of Joe himself who has been in Los Angeles since completing his recent exhibition tour of Latin and South America. The tour ended March 12 in Cuba and Joe left immediately for California.

The announcement was made by Miles after a conference with Sol Strauss, acting director of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club, during the illness of Promoter Mike Jacobs. The club will promote the bout.

In addition to the winner of the Bruce Woodcock-Joe Baksi match, another possible challenger who has been mentioned is Jersey Joe Walcott, Camden, N.J., Negro.

Woodcock Is Extended To Beat French Heavy.

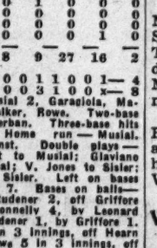

MANCHESTER, England, March 17 (AP)—Bruce Woodcock, British empire heavyweight, had to go all out tonight to defeat Stephan Olek of France in a 15-round bout. Woodcock weighed 200¼ pounds, Olek 187½.

The British champion, who is scheduled to fight Joe Baksi of Kulpmont, Pa., on April 15, was in bed with influenza less than two weeks ago.

Training Camp Notes

Hank Greenberg Finds the Range With Two Homers and Single—Drives in Five Runs as Pirates Triumph.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., March 17—A spring training victory or home run doesn't mean a thing when baseball's opening day rolls around, but Pittsburgh fans were keeping their fingers crossed today after Hank Greenberg's smashing performance against the Boston Braves yesterday.

Greenberg.

Ordinarily Hankus - Pankus is no ball of fire in the grapefruit league and that's why his two homers and single against the Braves was considered highly significant. He drove in five runs.

Up to yesterday, Greenberg had made only three singles in 16 trips to the plate.

In the fifth, against Lefty Spahn, Greenberg belted a low curve over the left-center fence for his second homer. And that blow was heartening to Manager Billy Herman and the Pirate brain trust. For curve-ball pitching is the National League forte and Hank is going to see plenty of wrinkle balls when the race opens.

Tampa—Grady Hatton, the Cincinnati Reds' sophomore third baseman, was a casualty yesterday as the Boston Red Sox whipped the Redlegs, 6-4. The young Texan stopped a ninth-inning single by Pete Layden with his jaw, but was not believed seriously hurt.

San Diego—Pitcher Orval Grove says the Chicago White Sox have the "best-looking bunch of rookies I've ever seen at a training camp, especially the pitchers. If Gebrian, Gillespie, Harrist and Evans keep pitchers will have a tough time making the club." Coach Buster Mills added: "I've been on six major league clubs, but the White Sox are the best of all. The spirit for (Manager) Ted Lyons is amazing. If the Sox are a contender, he'll bring it out." The Sox veterans, Red Ruffing and Thornton Lee, beat the New York Giants yesterday, 9-3.

Los Angeles—First Sacker Eddie Waitkus aggravated his ailing arm on a throw to second base and Chicago Club Manager Charlie Grimm announced he will be sent to Boyes Springs, Calif., for treatment by Denny Carroll, retired ex-Detroit trainer. Waitkus will then work out in Oakland until the Cubs arrive there Friday for a three-game series with Casey Stengel's club. The Cubs pounded Bob Feller for five runs and eight hits, including Andy Pafko's three-run homer, to whip Cleveland, 8-1.

Balboa, C. Z. — Montreal and Jackie Robinson stole attention from the parent Brooklyn Dodger team yesterday, with the fans showing a clear preference for Robinson's outfit. More than 4000 fans—a record—jammed the park in Cristobal yesterday to see Robinson hit a home run and single in four times at bat as Montreal defeated a Panama pro team, 9 to 5. Brooklyn drew only 2000 in a game at Cristobal early last week.

The Dodgers beat the Canal Zone All-Stars in 11 innings, 4 to 3, getting the winning run on Ed Stanky's triple.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—Right Fielder Elmer Valo of the Philadelphia Athletics was setting the pace for the A's sluggers with an average of .476 in 19 trips to the plate in spring exhibition games.

Cardinals 3 to 2 Choices to Repeat

STEUBENVILLE, O., March 17 (UP)—The St. Louis Cardinals are not the red-hot favorites they were a year ago, but Betting Commissioner Jimmy Snyder could not find a team to beat them today. Snyder listed the champions as 3 to 2 to win the National League flag again.

This was in contrast with the 7 to 10 quotations he made on the Redbirds' chances last spring.

Snyder said that Brooklyn and Boston figure to make the 1947 race more hazardous for the Cardinals than the Dodgers did last year.

Muny Soccer Title Play in The Semifinals

Those soccer fans who have been hugging the hearth these raw Sunday afternoons while the earlier rounds of the Municipal Soccer Association playoffs were being fought out can look forward now to a couple of good games next Sunday afternoon. With only four teams left, the semifinals will be played in the Senior division. No matter how the draw falls at tonight's meeting, two keenly contested games are assured.

The survivors are:

Rafterys, who yesterday defeated St. Philip Neri, 4 to 2;

Carondelet A. C., who shut out Sts. Mary and Joseph, 3 to 0;

Correntis, who eliminated El Borracho (North), 3-0, and,

DeAndreis, victors, 6-1, over St. Engelbert.

All but DeAndreis figured prominently in the recent national cup series in which Carondelet took the local amateur title and Correntis won the open. DeAndreis is generally considered on a par with the others in spite of its failure as a cup team.

The paid attendance of 3633 at yesterday's triple header at Fairground Park just about matched the turnout of the previous Sunday and left Municipal League authorities worrying about their finances.

In defeating St. Engelbert in a rough game, DeAndreis broke a record of eight straight failures to score a penalty kick. This time Will Murphy tallied. Manager Eddie Begley is worried today for fear his inside left, Bill Fogarty, may draw a suspension. He was ejected from the game for fighting.

Browns Are Throttled By Marchildon, Scheib

By L. A. McMaster
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 17—The Browns made only two safeties in the first six innings of their St. Patrick's day game with the Athletics here this afternoon. Phil Marchildon yielded one in three innings—a single by Chuck Stevens—and Carl Sheib the second, a one-bagger by Mark Christman.

Jack Kramer worked three rounds for the Browns and gave up six hits, all singles, while walking one and fanning three. Bob Muncrief was tagged for five safeties in three frames, including triples by McCosky and Joost, good for a Philadelphia run in the fifth.

Russ Christopher was Connie Mack's third hurler and Denny Galehouse then took over the Browns.

Manager Muddy Ruel and his men are wondering today what new kind of a trick an opposing team will use next to halt them in battle. They lost to the Washington Senators, 10 to 9, yesterday in a game which at the end had one of the freakiest plays veteran members of the press box ever saw.

There were Brownies on first and third with one out in the ninth and one run needed to tie when the Nats made a play on which there were three assists to a putout at first base, and the man on third was unable to move. Also, the batter should not have been out.

Catcher Les Moss lifted a pop fly which came down just a couple of feet in front of the plate. As it neared the ground, the wind blew it out a little and Catcher Frank Mancuso and Pitcher Walter Masterson both tried for it. Each touched the ball, both missed it and it bounced out toward third base, where Cecil Travis fielded it and tossed to Mickey Vernon at first for the third assist.

Moss failed to run. Had he gone down to first, he probably would have made it. Russ Peters, who had been on first, easily made second. Another infield out ended a promising rally. There were 26 hits in the game, the Browns having 11 and the Senators 15. There were eight doubles, five by the Nats. Judnich made the only threebagger, a blow to right field which hit a light standard and bounced back on the field, scoring two runs. Stan Spence hit the only homer and it counted for three runs.

Washington took a 5-0 lead at the start, then the Browns counted eight times before the Griffs dented the plate again. When they did score, it was the three runs on Spence's roundtripper.

Ray Shore started on the mound for the Browns and was not the pitcher who performed so brilliantly against the Braves a week ago. He was touched for Washington's initial five runs. Clarence Iott pitched the middle three and hurled shutout ball, although there were three hits off him in one frame.

Fred Sanford was the third and losing St. Louis pitcher.

Early Wynn blanked the Browns for three innings, then Buck Newsom, wearing a big double O on his back, went in. He struck out two of three batters he faced his first inning, then was walloped for five runs in the fifth and one in the sixth. Six hits were made off him.

Walter Masterson's wildness helped Ruel's men to their seventh and eighth runs, then Sanford yielded a double to Myatt, a pass and Spence's home run. In the eighth a walk, two singles and a wild pitch gave Washington two and the ball game.

Hoc-Soc Tourney.

Four games will be played tonight at Neighborhood Association gymnasium as the citywide Hoc-Soc title tournament opens. The schedule: Bob White vs. Leos; Club 603 vs. Blue Eagles; Indians vs. Spades; Sacred Heart vs. Twelfth Street A.C.

Kentucky Plays L. I. U. In Invitational Event

NEW YORK, March 17 (UP)—Defending champion Kentucky meets Long Island U. and Duquesne plays Utah tonight in first-round games in the national invitational basketball tournament, with hunch players predicting strong possibility of an "upset-of-the-year" by L.I.U.

Kentucky, so loaded with talent that it left Bob Brannum, 1944 All-America center, at home in favor of little freshman guard Al Cummins because it preferred Cummins's speed to Brannum's size, won 32 of 34 games during the season and was a heavy favorite to retain the crown it won last year.

But many observers expected the Wildcats' toughest game of the tournament to come in the first round against Coach Claire Bee's Long Islanders, who won 17 of 21 season games.

Oklahoma Favored Over Billikens in N.C.A.A. Playoff Game Tonight

St. Louis To Rely On Slow Break

By Robert Morrison
Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17—Having scored more victories in one season than any St. Louis University basketball team on record, the Billikens tonight will attempt to add to their historic stature in an N.C.A.A. fifth district play-off game with University of Oklahoma.

The biggest moment in the life of Billiken basketball begins with this game that will qualify the winner for the western N.C.A.A. regional tournament, which in turn affords a chance at that organization's national championship.

But the Missouri Valley title winners from St. Louis are the underdogs and, suffering under the weight of a three-game losing streak that closed their 18-10 season, the Bills face in the Sooners a team that has won its last nine consecutive games.

Sooners Really Score.

With 21 victories out of 27 games, the Oklahomans of Bruce Drake have generally displayed a more efficient offense than the Billikens. Against opponents that offer a direct comparison, Oklahoma has the better record.

Only against the Oklahoma Aggies, 1946 N.C.A.A. champions who are out of the picture this year, did the Bills do better than the Sooners. St. Louis beat the Aggies twice; Oklahoma got an even break.

But Against Missouri, Oklahoma won three times by 8, 14 and 6-point margins while the Billikens broke even by narrower differences. And against Kansas, Oklahoma won one of three games, losing twice by 6 and 2-point margins, while the Billikens were trounced by the Jayhawkers, 49-35.

For all games the Big Six champion Sooners have averaged 54.4 points on offense, compared to St. Louis's 46.4, but the Billikens have a better defensive edge, holding opponents to 41 points while Oklahoma yielded a 44.3 average.

Ossola May Start.

So, unless Johnny Flanigan's boys snap out of their season end's decline, the Billiken big moment probably will end almost before it has started.

Considering some changes in his lineup, Flanigan was expetced, however, to start his regular mainstays at most positions. Those would be Ed Macauley at center, Lou Lehman and Danny Miller at guards and Bob Schmidt at one forward. At the other forward, perhaps a "B" team star, Joe Ossola, will see more action than before with D. C. Wilcutt yielding his usual position.

Other "B" standouts such as Clay Cary, Harvey Null and John Cordia also were scheduled for more action unless the regulars produce quick results.

The Sooners, according to reports, will play a running game but this time, in contrast to his strategy in the defeat at Notre Dame, Flanigan will not send his Bills out to run against a running team. At South Bend, the Irish practically ran the Bills' legs off before the middle of the first half.

Stop Tucker!

This time, the Bills will play their slow-break to which they are accustomed and hope for the best—hoping too that the flat feet of the Sooner's All-America, Gerald Tucker, are very flat indeed.

Tucker, top scorer in the Big Six, is not the only Oklahoma offensive threat. He has been ably assisted by Dick Reich, who averaged 9.2 points in nine conference games.

If the Billikens are successful, they will return here for a Friday game with Oregon State in the first round of the Western N.C.A.A. tourney which also matches Texas against Wyoming. The national final between east and west regional representatives is set for March 25 at New York. York.

At the height of a 10-minute brawl at New York's Madison Square Garden last night, MURPH CHAMBERLAIN of Montreal Canadiens team was knocked right into the press box. Fists and sticks flew all over the place. Two players drew 10-minute penalties. Canadiens defeated New York Rangers, 4 to 3.

Montreal Players Use Fists and Sticks on Rangers and Fans in Brawl at Hockey League Match

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Montreal's Canadiens owned their fourth straight National Hockey League pennant today, the New York Rangers still held a slim chance of reaching the Stanley Cup playoffs, and both clubs nursed wounds received last night in the fiercest brawl seen in the circuit in many years.

The battle broke out in the dying moments of last night's game at Madison Square Garden as the Canadiens turned back the Rangers, 4-3, to become the first team in league history to finish on top of the standings four seasons in a row.

Montreal's victory gave the Canadiens a ten-point lead over the Toronto Maple Leafs, with each team having three games left to play.

The brawl in the Montreal-New York game started when Kenny Reardon of the Canadiens, who was injured in a mixup with Bryan Hextall of the Rangers, was being helped from the ice with blood flowing from his mouth.

A spectator near the Ranger bench directed some remarks at Reardon, who leaped at him, setting off a battle royal among some 20 players of both teams.

Montreal players stormed the Ranger bench, swinging sticks and fists at both Rangers and spectators.

The fighting went on for ten minutes and when order was restored Bill Juzda of the Rangers, who absorbed considerable punishment, and Maurice Richard and Murph Chamberlain of the Canadiens drew 10-minute match misconduct penalties.

The winning goal came at 16:29 of the final period when Jim Peters took a pass from Kenny Mosdell and beat Goalie Chuck Rayner to snap a 3-3 tie.

Helen Stephens' Coeds Score Sixth Victory in Play With Men's Teams

Working on a record of six victories in their last seven games against men's teams, Helen Stephens's Olympic Coeds face two hard games this week. Tomorrow night the Coeds will oppose the American Legion team at Columbia, Ill., and on Thursday will face the Red Devils at St. Jacob, Ill.

Iva White, who has averaged 20 points a game through the series with men's teams, scored 26 points as the Coeds defeated the Harrisburg (Ill.) V.F.W. team, Saturday, 48 to 47. Miss Stephens, player-coach of the Coeds, considers Miss White the outstanding woman player of this area.

Flyers Drubbed, 12-7, in Final Game of Season

PROVIDENCE, R.I., March 17 (AP)—The Rhode Island Reds trounced the St. Louis Flyers, 12 to 7, last night in the season's last American Hockey League game for both teams, setting a new total goal record for a single game at the R.I. auditorium.

Although neither team had a chance to make the playoffs, the free-scoring game drew 5126 fans.

The Flyers led, 5 to 4, at the end of the first period but the Reds outscored them thereafter, leading 7 to 6 at the end of the second and adding five more goals in the third.

Johnny Chad led the Providence attack with three goals, while Harvey Fraser and Allen Stanley got two each.

Jerry Cotnoir, young recruit goalie, played his first home game for the Reds, replacing the veteran Mike Karakas, and turned in many smart saves.

Paul Gladu, who scored twice for the flyers, drew a 10-minute misconduct penalty in the first period for slashing with his stick at a fan in a box seat.

Playoffs Begin Tomorrow.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 17 (AP)—Playoffs among the first three teams in each division of the American Hockey League will begin tomorrow, League President Maurice Podoloff announced.

Hershey, Eastern Division winners, and Cleveland, Western Division winners, will start their best-of-seven series at Cleveland, playing the second game in the Ohio city on Thursday. The next two games will be played at Hershey on Saturday and the following Tuesday, March 25. If the series goes beyond four games, the teams will meet at Cleveland on Thursday, March 27, at Hershey on Saturday, March 29, and at Cleveland on Tuesday, April 1.

The best-of-three second-place playoff between Springfield of the Eastern Division and Buffalo of the Western Division will start at Springfield with the teams shifting to Buffalo for a game Thursday. If necessary, the third game also will be played at Buffalo on Sunday.

The best-of-three series between third-place finishers, New Haven in the Eastern Division and Pittsburgh in the Western, will start at New Haven. The teams will move to Pittsburgh for the second game Thursday, and, if necessary, play the third game there on Sunday.

Winners of the playoffs between the second and third place teams will meet in another best-of-three playoff with the winner meeting the winner of the first-place playoff in a best-of-seven series.

High School Stars To Be Honored by Quarterbacks Club

Local high school basketball players named to the Quarterbacks Club annual all-star team will be honored at the club's luncheon, Wednesday at Hotel De Soto. President O. G. Kohlmeyer will present awards.

Henry (Red) Sanders, head football coach at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., will be guest speaker and will comment on motion pictures of the Vanderbilt-North Carolina game of Nov. 9.

Playoff Schedule.

CHICAGO, March 17 (AP)—The initial playoff series in the National Basketball League involving the top four teams of each division will begin tomorrow night with Syracuse at Rochester and Toledo at Fort Wayne in the eastern bracket and Oshkosh at Sheboygan and Chicago at Indianapolis in the western division.

Winners of the first series, based on three out of five games, will meet in a two-out-of-three series to decide the playoff champions of each division. The two titlists then will play a final three-out-of-five series for the crown.

U. City Player Wins 3 Titles At Badminton

BALTIMORE, Md., March 17 (AP)—Barbara Scarlett of Baltimore and Ted Moehlmann of University City, Mo., won the girls' and boys' championships, respectively, in the finals of the first national junior badminton tournament here yesterday.

Miss Scarlett teamed with Sue Devin of Baltimore to win the girls' doubles event, while Moehlmann went her one better by pairing up to take the boys' doubles and mixed doubles titles.

Moehlmann won his singles title by turning back Wilbur Bullen of Waban, Mass., 15-0, 15-2. He joined with his University City teammate, Don Brown, to win over the Atlanta (Ga.) combination of Allen Hardy and Scrappy O'Sullivan, 15-7, 18-16, for the boys' doubles crown.

The 16-year-old then teamed with Pat Galbreath, also of University City, to defeat Helen Pipes of Wellesley, Mass., and Bullen, in the mixed doubles championship round, 15-10, 15-1.

Miss Scarlett won her final singles match from Jean Harvey of Baltimore, 11-4, 11-3. The Scarlett-Devin team won the doubles championship by defeating Jean Mallory, Brookline, Mass., and Helen Pipes, 15-4, 15-5.

Eighty-six youngsters under 18 from Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Missouri, Illinois, Georgia, Texas and the District of Columbia took part in the three-day tournament.

Final Races Tonight In Ozark Swim Meet

The men's 300-yard medley race will feature the final night of the Ozark A.A.U. all around swimming championships at the Missouri A.C. tonight.

Jim McKenna, St. Louis U. star, is leading in the senior division with 797.59 points, followed by Al Bingenheimer of the Downtown Y.

Races also will be decided in three other classes.

Beaumont's Kovar and Other Stars to Return Next Fall

By Harold Tuthill

Missouri's No. 1 and No. 3 high school basketball teams today were receiving the congratulations of their classmates on their achievements at Springfield. Beaumont, state champion for the third time in six years, was especially elated because the Bluejackets beat a hustling Versailles team in the final, 59-42. Beaumont also was victorious in 1942 and 1943, as well as in 1933.

Normandy, 65-52 consolation winner over Hermann for third place, also could pride itself on excelling any previous basketball team at the county school. If Normandy had not dropped a 60-58 thriller to Versailles in the semifinals it would have been an all-St. Louis final. As it was, Normandy and Beaumont, too, scored more points against the speedy Versailles aggregation than the other Tiger opponents. Beaumont's victory was so decisive that Coach Jim Ball, former Southwest Missouri State Teachers College star, told Beaumont's mentor, Tom Stanton:

"My team has been defeated before, but we really were licked by you."

Looking Forward to '48.

Beaumont's opponents can only look for more trouble next year because half of the 10 state champions will be back. That includes all-state Fred Kovar and Bob Koch as well as John Grimm, Tom McKenzie and Don Dippold. Those graduating are Paul Douglass, Dick Rischer and Gene Kunz of the starting five and reserves Bob Brown and Dan Neumann.

Normandy's high-scoring machine will be all but wrecked as seven of the first 10 graduate. That includes all-state Doug Finley and second-choice Bob Ries, Center Dale Portmann, Guard Dewey Millay and Forward Dave Klasing of the regulars and Bob Holthaus and Dick Schill of the second team. Returning are Ken Lorenz, Ed Potter and Bernie Waters.

Another state star to be lost by graduation is Versailles' sensational southpaw, August (Bud) Heineman who put on about as great a show as John (Red) Reagan did for Bismarck in 1944. The Southwest Missouri Teachers are interested in getting Heineman. So is the University of Missouri.

New Attendance Record.

The tournament continues to grow in popularity. Last year's record gross receipts of $9500, representing about that many spectators, was surpassed this time with a total attendance of 13,919 who paid $12,603. Saturday night was the first time in the history of Southwest Missouri Teachers that the crowd was too large for their field house. Persons were turned away after about 4200 packed the place.

Brookhattan Defeats Hakoah 2 to 1 in Soccer Cup Series

NEW YORK, March 17 (UP)—The Brooklyn Wanderers and the Baltimore Americans continued their battle for second place in the American Soccer League and fighting yesterday marred Brookhattan's 2-to-1 victory over the Hakoah A. C. in the National Challenge Cup competition.

The Wanderers maintained their second-place edge over the Baltimore club by upsetting the champion Philadelphia Americans, 3 to 2, at New York, while Baltimore whipped the Kearny Americans, 8 to 2, at Baltimore. Ray McFaul led Baltimore's attack with a five-goal masterpiece.

In another league game, the Brooklyn Hispanos blanked the Philadelphia Nationals, 2 to 0, at Philadelphia.

Brookhattan, the first American soccer league team to enter the Challenge Cup series, bested the Hakoah team at New York in a rough game which saw two players put off the field for brawling.

Kansas City Driver Wins Two Boat Races

TAMPA, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Jack (Pop) Cooper of Kansas City, Mo., won both heats in both the 91 and 225 cubic inch inboard motorboat events at the Dixie National Regatta yesterday to take the grapefruit circuit championship in those classes.

The championship is based on the standings of the racers in all regattas held in Florida during the winter season.

Don White, Pontiac, Mich., won the seasonal title for Class A hydroplanes, although he placed second to Tommy Haygood of Orlando, Fla.

Two racers had piled up enough points in earlier regattas to win regardless of the results yesterday and their events were canceled when the water became rough. They were Vic Scott, Forest Hills, N.Y., in the B and C class outboards, and Moreland Visel, Los Angeles, in the 135 cubic inch outboards.

JOSEPH ALSOP

Britain Is Necessary Partner Of U.S. in World Affairs; Close Understanding Will Be Needed

England Has Been Shouldering World Responsibilities Beyond Its Capacity and May Again, as in Greece, Have to Ask America to Assume the Burden.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

(Copyright, 1947.)

WASHINGTON, March 17.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN has faced up to the world crisis. With his message to the Congress on Greece, he has inaugurated a new American foreign policy more active, more positive and longer in range than anything previously attempted. The message is only a first step—the President has indicated this. His judgment has been confirmed by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, whose part in the historic decision just taken has been of inestimable importance.

The kind of thing that must now be looked for is at least suggested by an inconspicuous episode in the preparations for the Moscow conference.

Before such meetings in the past, it was always the strict rule to avoid any consultation with other powers, and especially with Britain. The idea was to give the Soviets no ground for suspecting us of "ganging up."

But before Secretary of State George C. Marshall went to Moscow, this rule was tossed into the discard. Marshall stopped en route in France for a sort of state visit, intended primarily to assure the French of American support and strengthen anti-Communist forces there.

Still more important, however, was the unannounced trip of Marshall's adviser, H. Freeman Matthews, to London.

Matthews flew over some days before Marshall left, carrying in his briefcase the whole American plan for the conference. He went after a hint had been received from Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin that an opportunity would be welcomed to co-ordinate the American plan with the British.

The decision to send Matthews was taken with the thought in mind that some elements in the British government were leaning toward a new deal with Moscow as one way out of Britain's dilemma. Matthews's trip was preventive.

The plain truth is, moreover, that the kind of temporary coordination of policy provided by Matthews's visit may not be enough in the long run. The British are our necessary partners in the great task of bringing economic and political stability to the part of the world not under Soviet domination.

With President Truman's message, we have begun to assume a much larger responsibility for this task. We have done so because the British were finding their burden too heavy. Each partner now needs to know more exactly what the other can be relied on to do.

That may ultimately mean the need for an understanding, formal or informal, between this country and Great Britain. This thought is already in the minds of the American policy makers.

Some of the compelling reasons for a hard-headed review of the Anglo-American team's common resources and obligations are apparent in a recent letter from London. No man is better qualified than the writer to know the inwardness of the British situation. In the midst of the coal crisis, he wrote as follows:

"At the moment every one is worrying most about fuel. But the fact is that there is practically no major element of our economy where we are not running on the most terrifying fine margins. Relatively small further deteriorations in timber, for instance, might make mincemeat of our construction programs and rail transport.

"Unless the United States can find a way to make more dollars available to the world (and particularly to Continental Europe, which is draining off a great many of our scarce dollars at present), we may soon be in a severe foreign exchange crisis. In food, again, the margins are so fine that serious breakdowns of supply could happen in almost any of the major foodstuffs.

"Economically, there is no question that our great mistake since V-J day has been in trying to get away from austerity too fast. We are in the dilemma that a tired and underfed people cannot be roused to further effort year after year without some incentive. Yet every single major incentive we might offer is ruled out on some ground or other.

"I know you will be interested in the external aspects. There is no question, of course, that we are taking a share in world reconstruction fantastically beyond our ability to pay. We know, for instance, the reasons why we are having to bear the immense burden of feeding Germany in dollars we haven't got. But the fact is that no independent economist could find that it made sense for us to do so. The people will rise to this emergency, as they always do, with understanding and good humor. But it is difficult to see how we can play the part set for us without a considerably better understanding overseas of the extent to which we have had to strip ourselves during the war."

The meaning of that letter is simple. The United States is sooner or later going to have to make other choices comparable to the Greek choice, and perhaps even less pleasing.

If the British cannot carry the burden of half the expense in Germany, for example, we must either take up the slack or open western Germany to the Soviets. It is the same everywhere.

Moreover, in Britain herself, a great change has occurred. Only a year ago, the British were making overtures to our government to have the Combined Chiefs of Staff placed on a permanent footing. This would have been tantamount to permanent, semi-formal alliance. The State, War and Navy Departments met the overtures with great coldness, from fear of offending the Soviets.

Now, however, we fear British withdrawal from the partial Anglo-American military collaboration which was agreed on. The British left-wingers advocate this withdrawal as a gesture to Moscow.

This is the reason why an understanding is needed now, for if we simply let all the critical situations like that in Germany go on weakening the British economy, they will bring on further crisis in Britain. These will make it harder and more expensive to reach an understanding later on. Yet a breakdown of the Anglo-American partnership would be so serious as to be unthinkable.

British Leftists Assail Truman's Greek Aid Plan

Charge U.S. 'Invades' Southeastern Europe and Bypasses United Nations.

LONDON, March 17 (UP) LEFTWING Laborites caused an uproar in the House of Commons today with charges that the United States was "invading" southeast Europe and bypassing the United Nations in proposing to aid Greece and Turkey.

Laborite foreign policy "rebels" leveled the charges in baiting Hector McNeil, Minister of State for Foreign Affairs. McNeil had just informed the House that Britain had not been consulted on President Truman's proposals.

He said the British Government was not aware of any political conditions attached to the American offer of assistance to Greece and Turkey.

Laborite Thomas Driberg demanded to know whether McNeil had "read the full text of President Truman's statement and can you view with equanimity this invasion of southeast Europe?"

Driberg's final words were drowned out by shouts from the Conservative opposition and cheers from his own side of the House.

William N. Warbey, another Laborite "rebel," asked: "Will you give an assurance to the House that the British Government will make every effort to restore influence and authority of the United Nations and its specialized agencies and to repair the damage done by the United States in bypassing international organization?"

McNeil did not reply to Warbey's question. He replied with a quick "no," however, when Laborite Herschel L. Austin asked whether, in view of the "inflammatory situation," he would consider asking the United States to think twice about offering military aid to Turkey.

The discussion broke up amid cheers and boos after Laborite Ernest Tuttle said the great mass of people in Britain "strongly welcomes this magnificent step on the part of America to defend the cause of freedom and democracy."

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, 83-year-old former president of the League of Nations, said yesterday that President Truman's program for aid to Greece and Turkey was "perfectly consistent with the fundamental principles of the United Nations."

"I do not agree with those people who say that the President has bypassed the United Nations," said the venerable diplomat at his home in Sussex. He won a Nobel peace prize for his efforts to maintain the League of Nations as a factor in international harmony.

"The United States is essentially peaceful," he asserted. "Even the wildest anti-American has no right to say she is aggressive. It is lunacy to think the United States would attack any of her neighbors within the thinkable future."

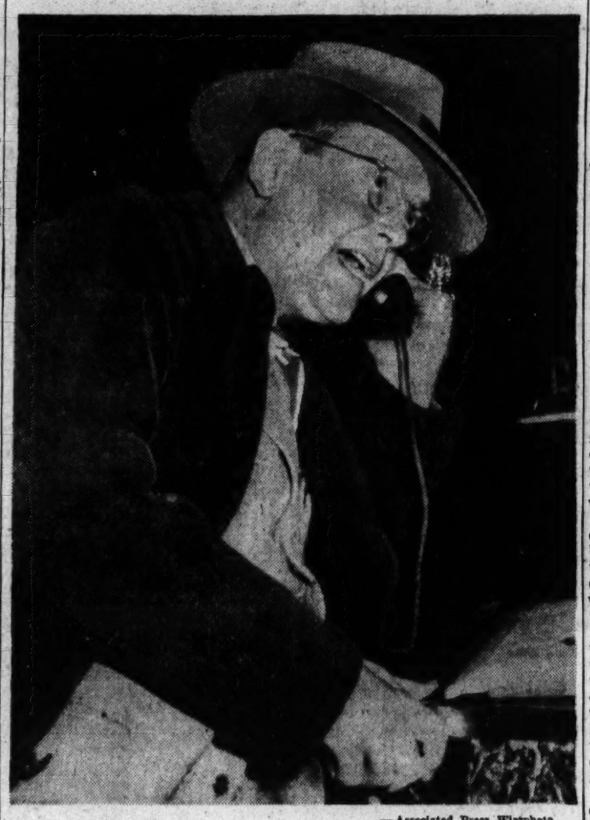

Criticism of President Truman and the new American ambassador to Britain, Lewis Douglas, was voiced, meanwhile, by the co-operative movement's Reynolds News.

"Truman has all but declared war on Russia," said an article by Foreign Editor David Raymond. "He and his new ambassador to Britain have made it clear that America intends to reverse the trend toward planned economy."

Richard H. S. Crossman, leftist Labor member of Parliament, wrote in the Sunday Pictorial that the United Nations "for the time being is a broken reed."

Most Conservative papers approved Truman's stand.

Experts Say U. S. Couldn't Fight A Full-Scale War Before 1948

Military Planners Indicate Army Mobilization Would Be Slow — Navy and Air Forces in Better Organizational State.

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP).

IF the United States should be challenged tomorrow, it could not fight a full-scale war before 1948. This was evident in the answers of military planners to questions about the state of the "interim army"—that force that exists between the late war and the future time when peace treaties are signed and a "postwar army" evolves. They outlined the situation thus:

At least three months would be needed merely to notify, register and start back toward Army jurisdiction the men in the pool of 5,000,000 trained veterans the Army estimates are available.

It would take another six months from the time the first combat divisions were re-formed until they could be organized, equipped, retrained and put into action.

While the United States has the atomic bomb and long-range bombers capable of delivering the missile at 10,000 miles beyond this nation's borders, responsible military thinkers, both Army and Navy, insist that a balanced armed force also should be maintained for two major reasons:

To follow up use of the bomb with seizure of enemy military bases, rocket launching sites or other strategic areas from which attacks against the United States could be supported.

To be prepared for purely defen-

Eliot's View: Prevention Now Or War Later

Argument of Inaction Condemned by Stern Lessons of Past, He Says.

By GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT

(Copyright 1947.)

DO YOU remember Pearl Harbor? Bataan? Corrigidor? Do you remember how often during those terrible days you heard it said: "If we had only had the courage and the foresight to stand up to the Japanese in 1931 when they first broke out in Manchuria, we might have prevented all this"?

Do you remember the chapter of horrors and humiliation which began at Munich and carried on through the successive conquest of Czechoslovakia, Poland, Norway, The Netherlands and Belgium to culminate in the fall of France? Do you remember as we began to arm for the inevitable war with Germany, the bitter clarity with which you realized that all this could have been prevented if only the law-abiding forces of the world had stood up to Hitler sternly when first he violated the Treaty of Versailles by marching into the Rhineland in 1935?

Do you remember the murderous career of Benito Mussolini and the cold refusal of the other members of the League of Nations to heed the pathetic appeal of Ethiopia for the protection to which that nation was by the covenant of the League justly entitled? Do you remember the futile discussions which were the only action taken by the free peoples of the world when Hitler and Mussolini together intervened in the Spanish civil war?

While Yet There Was Time.

We would not act to prevent war while yet there was time.

We and the British and the French and the rest of the free nations talked, protested, wrote notes, mouthed the words of high-flown principle—but we could not act. We thought action involved the risk of war.

We did not realize that inaction involved the certainty of war—and of war under conditions of increasing advantage to the aggressor, who gathered both strength and confidence with each easy success.

So, in the end, we had war. We paid the price of indecision and

Business Outlook

By J. A. Livingston

A SURFACE survey of the financial news conveys the notion that Greece and Turkey are far away, that American business men are free and easy with their money and high, wide, and handsome in their hopes. You read of extra or increased dividends by General Motors, duPont, Republic Steel, Electric Storage Battery, International Shoe, and others; you read also of Eastman Kodak's 5-for-1 stock split-up; Norfolk & Western's 4-for-1; Beechnut Packing's 3½-for-1, and Johnson & Johnson's 2-for-1. Amid such an outward show of largesse, you're apt to gloss over counter evidence—Reynolds Metal's dividend omission or Fafnir Bearing's cut.

Yet, when you analyze the cold statistics, you discover that corporation directors, far from being generous, are close on to being stingy. Last year, corporation earnings reached the all-time high of 12 billion dollars, nearly 45 per cent greater than in 1929, but dividends amounted to only $5,100,000,000, or some 14 per cent less than 1929. There's another way of putting it. In 1946, corporations paid out 43 cents of every dollar earned; in 1929, they paid out 71 cents per dollar of income.

Such conservatism has a familiar ring. History is repeating to the penny. The stockholder who lived through 1919 can now say with sad-hearted accuracy, "This is where I came in." In postwar 1919, earnings were swelled by record sales of goods, just as today. And then, the men who ran American corporations were anything but sure of the outlook. Out of earnings of $6,300,000,000, they let stockholders have only $2,700,000,000 or 43 cents on the dollar; the same as in 1946!

The reasons for such conservatism are more or less the same. The world then, as now, was in a state of suspended peace. As Frederick Lewis Allen, in his "This Time and Last Time" in the March Harper's, writes: "The Armistice which ended the fighting on the battlefronts in November, 1918, did not at once bring amity and order."

Truman's Ditto Mark.

World War I was followed by "recurring fears of a new outbreak of fighting." Civil war raged in Germany, Bolshevism was overrunning Russia, and magazines carried articles about unrest in Hungary, Poland, and Yugoslavia. Thus, President Truman's address to Congress on Wednesday, calling for economic and military aid to Greece and Turkey, is only a ditto mark on the chain belt of history.

International tension is only part of it. During the war, it was good taste to be conservative in dividends. It wouldn't do to pay big extra and-or boost payments when soldiers were being shot overseas and when labor was asked to hold-the-wage line at home. And now, with the war over, it takes a bold board of directors to set a precedent based on the current rate of earnings.

Just operating a business takes more money today than prewar. Prices are some 90 per cent higher than in 1939, average hourly earnings some 80 per cent higher, and the dollar volume of goods and services about 130 per cent higher. So it takes a record volume of working capital to buy inventories and meet a payroll. And last year, the nation's business men borrowed more money from banks than in any year on record. So, prudence calls for dividend conservatism. You don't convince bankers of your soundness by borrowing in order to be a good fellow to your stockholders.

Another point: Corporation executives—as in 1919—are not sure yet that current earnings are anything but a postwar windfall which must be conserved to weather a recession. The 1920-21 deflation is today an over-vivid memory. The price collapse then was preceded by just such a flurry in the commodity markets as is now taking place in hogs, wheat, pig iron, steel scrap, coffee, and other items. Therefore, business men are unwilling to base dividend policies on their 1946 profit and loss accounts. They don't feel sure enough about what this year will produce.

Finally, there's labor. New wage contracts have yet to be written in steel, autos, coal. When they are written, costs will take another jump. That conceivably might provide some fillip to retail sales as pay envelopes fatten. But that's too much to count on. Even an early Easter this year is not sending department store volume skyrocketing above last year.

Prudence Is Nontaxable.

Hence, the business operator, especially if he is in the soft goods

Contrast Between Iraq's Squalor And Potential Riches a Challenge

By STEWART ALSOP

(Copyright, 1947.)

BAGHDAD, March 17.

IRAQ is a small country, which to the casual eye seems to consist entirely of dried mud. It is a perfect laboratory specimen of the whole Middle Eastern problem. Here, with none of the confusing side issues which so bedevil the earnest inquirer, are all the elements of the situation which has forced President Truman to embark on a great new departure in American foreign policy.

To illustrate:

Item: The devastating poverty. The female beggars with their spindly, tired-eyed babies—"Johnnie, Johnnie, something for baby"; the stinking fly-ridden mud huts; the rags and undernourishment; the trachoma and tuberculosis and malaria and typhoid and typhus.

Item: The possibilities, the vision of the alluvial plain between the Tigris and the Euphrates, once more a rich and abundant Eden, a vision to make the engineer's hands itch to be at it, so easy is it of fulfillment.

Before Hulague, fierce son of Khubla Khan, destroyed the Mesopotamian irrigation works, this area supported 30,000,000 people. Now with only 5,000,000 acres under cultivation it supports 5,000,000, the vast majority at the lowest possible level of life.

The American Agricultural Survey Mission to the Near East has reported flatly that there is no area in the world where the standard of living of the people could be raised more steeply by a smaller investment of money and effort. The mission estimated that 10,000,000 acres of arable land could be added by an investment of $100,000,000.

Item: The oil—and plenty of it—lying richly under the feet of the miserable fellahin, its wealth hardly tapped. The British position as a great power, and indeed the whole economy of England, depend on this oil and oil from neighboring Persia.

Item: The British. Here only the laboratory specimen shows itself not quite perfect, a trifle anachronistic, for whereas everywhere else throughout the Middle East, the British are clearly cutting their commitments, here there has been little change. Here the time-honored British imperial technique is preserved like a lonely fly in amber.

A wry Iraqi joke will serve to illustrate the quality of the British position. "Where are you going?" one Iraqi will ask as another leaves the room. "I'm going to get

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

Founded by JOSEPH PULITZER

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare; never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Pulitzer Stamp in St. Louis

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

More than 10,000 stamp and first-day cover collectors in St. Louis and vicinity are disappointed that New York has been designated as the first-day-of-issue city of the postage stamp honoring Joseph Pulitzer.

St. Louis should rightfully be the honored city. Mr. Pulitzer began his journalism career here in 1868 with the old Westliche Post, and in 1878 he founded what is now the Post-Dispatch. He was a St. Louisan by adoption. He served in the Missouri Legislature in 1870 from St. Louis. He served as a member of the Police Board. All his early activities were centered in and around St. Louis.

The Post Office Department has seen fit to memorialize him by the issuance of a postage stamp commemorating his birth 100 years ago on April 10, and it is fitting that such an honor be given to this great man. St. Louis should be proud that one of its own should be so honored.

St. Louis has shared honors with other cities in the past in the issuance of first-day covers and commemorative stamps, but none of its own great has ever been honored before. As we have passed up the opportunity to be THE first-day-of-issue city, we can strongly urge the Postmaster General to designate St. Louis as a first-day-of-issue city, and share the honors with New York.

It is desired that every civic-minded St. Louisan write or wire Postmaster Dickmann, St. Louis, to the Postmaster General at Washington, Senator Donnell, or Representatives Ploeser, Bakewell and Karsten at Washington, urging the Post Office Department to include St. Louis as a first-day-of-issue city. Urgency is requested so that sufficient time will allow for the necessary arrangements.

The Greater St. Louis Stamp Club,
C. D. MITCHELL, Secretary.

Day of the Irish

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Green is the famous color of the Irish, a lavishingly bright reminder of St. Patrick's day.

Congratulations to the O'Learys, the Murphys, the O'Flannigans, and the O'Hallahans, and the top of the mornin' to you all!

SAM ZEBRACH.

Inflation in Scrap-iron

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In your March 6 issue you carried a letter from R. S. Thomas which is critical of the iron and steel scrap industry and the recent increase in the price of scrap. I wish to reply to that letter.

It is true that the market on scrap has increased since OPA ceilings were removed on Nov. 10, but not 300 per cent. The OPA ceiling on No. 1 heavy melting steel scrap at St. Louis was $17.50 a gross ton; the present market is about $32, making the increase not quite 100 per cent. Even this increase the scrap industry deplores.

In a few words, this is what has happened to scrap. During the war many millions of tons of potential scrap were lost in combat; much potential scrap was left overseas in the form of surplus equipment and supplies; much potential scrap remains locked up in government surpluses; wartime salvage drives accelerated obsolescence and borrowed from the future.

OPA compounded all this by refusing to grant any price increases during the entire war period, making scrap ripe for rebound once control was lifted.

Steel mills and foundries are attempting to operate practically at the wartime peak in order to make up deficiencies in automobiles, housing, freight cars, etc.

Monthly consumption of purchased scrap, in excess of 2,000,000 gross tons, is within 5 per cent of the wartime peak.

Enough scrap is moving to meet current requirements, but the margin is so narrow that it has bred excessive competition by consumers.

Believe it or not, scrap dealers are not interested in high prices.

The only beneficiaries of high prices are the originators of scrap, such as railroads and industrial plants. The dealer only gets the margin between the cost of unprepared material and the selling price of prepared.

Brokers are loath to accept orders from consumers because they usually are compelled to cover at a loss.

The remedy for the present situation, both to stabilize the price and to make more steel available, is for the Government to turn loose more surplus, thereby not only realizing a satisfactory price, but also helping to generate more iron and steel.

Scrap dealers are pounding on the doors of the Government, urging surpluses to be marketed.

Incidentally, every dollar that purchased scrap rises actually increases the cost of steel at the ingot only 20 cents.

Steel ingots, the most elemental form of steel, are quoted today at $42 a ton. This refutes Mr. Thomas' argument that scrap is priced higher than commodities made from it.

EDWIN C. BARRINGER,
Executive Secretary, Institute Scrap Iron and Steel, Inc.
Washington, D. C.

What Price Small Loans?

In spite of the fact that it legalizes small loans at rates up to 56 per cent, the State Senate passed its interest code bill by an overwhelming 22-to-4. (The honor roll: Hogan and Horn of St. Louis, McColl of Nodaway and Noble of Kennett.) Why?

Some of the 22 are tools of the loan lobby. The Legislature always includes some lenders and lenders' lawyers. To be fair, however, others must have been satisfied by the lobby's "educational" work that they were acting in the best interest of everyone concerned. We propose to show that they were seriously misled.

Does any Senator assume that lenders will be satisfied with the 26 per cent allowed on one-year loans—that they will not force many borrowers to sign instead for the short period of two months at the usurious 56? If so, he is not informed on the merciless practices found in this trade — for instance, the extortionate scheme described by the Better Business Bureau elsewhere on this page. Borrowers are being forced to buy excessively priced "insurance" from lenders. In one instance brought to the Post-Dispatch's attention, a company whose officers are prominent in the loan lobby made a man take $750 insurance at an exorbitant $18.75 premium—on a loan of only $140!

The only sure mercy must be written in the law itself. Make no mistake that mercy is not needed. Patrons of high-rate lenders commonly lack the financial experience to shop around for lower-cost loans. According to the lobby's own data, most borrowing is to relieve personal emergencies.

No doubt some Senators are impressed that only high rates can keep everyone in the business who is in it now. But there are more lenders than the public needs. For want of sufficient patronage or good management, some could not make a good living if they were allowed to charge 100 per cent. Many spend only a fraction of their time on the loan business. It is not the state's duty to "featherbed" the inefficient. Its duty is to set rates only high enough to procure adequate small-loan credit—a standard which automatically offers reasonable profits to reasonably efficient and busy lenders.

Two strong pillars of evidence prove that the Senate rates are far above reasonableness. First, when lenders borrow at the bank for 3 per cent and lend at 26 per cent, their mark-up is a fantastic 767 per cent. No other kind of merchant dreams of such a margin. No such margin is needed. Lenders do not have to finance slow-moving stocks, they are free of inventory and spoilage losses, they need only modest selling space and office forces. They are amply protected by credit investigations and by requiring co-signers or mortgages on furniture and automobiles. The industry itself boasts that "sour" loans are rare.

The other evidence is experience itself. A downtown bank has specialized for years in small loans at about 12 per cent. Other banks are lending at 8 per cent (plus insurance at actual cost)—and say they are making money at it. The Missouri Bankers' Association is on record for a 16 per cent limit. The difference between bank rates and 16 per cent makes generous allowance for the moderately higher costs incurred by specialized loan companies.

Such evidence argues conclusively that the state should permit not more than 15 or 16 per cent on the smallest loans—and no extra charges of any kind. Such a rate on the first $100 borrowed compensates amply for investigation and clerical expense, so the rate should then decrease—say, to 12 per cent on the next $300 and 9 or 10 on amounts above $400. These rates will make a good income for well-managed, reasonably busy lenders.

The Senate urges the state to experiment with rates only a little lower than the old 36 and 30 per cent and see what happens. That's a trap. A long history of failures proves it is almost impossible to put through rate-reducing bills. There is a chance for reasonable rates now only because lenders want relief from the new Constitution's "automatic" 8 per cent limit.

It is important, therefore, that the 1947 code be one that Missouri is willing to live with for some years. This means, first, that the House, which had a pretty good average formula last year (24 per cent, which is high, on the first $100, and 8 per cent, a little low, on larger amounts), should hold steadfast against the Senate bill and for a reasonable bill. Second, if an unfair bill does come through to Gov. Donnelly, he should veto it as he did the Senate-inspired bill of last year.

On St. Pat's Day

'Tis a fine day it is, with a laughing sun into it, and a fine blue sky smiling back as bright as the Paschal fire on the hill of Slane. A day when never a blathering reptile or Cenn Cruaich dare show the ugly look of him—and why not?

For the day of the son of the Deacon Calpurnius it is like to being, the day of the emerald flower of Trinity, when the Irish get their Irish up, these 15 centuries come and gone. So the top of the morning to ye, and no whit farther down of the afthernoon, and nonetheless high an avening!

When "Yes" Means "No"

There are two very good things about the newly-formed Citizens' Committee to Oppose Repeal of Daylight Saving Time and its statement to citizens of St. Louis who must vote on this issue two weeks from tomorrow.

The committee itself is a splendid demonstration of community activity. It brings together many creeds, civic groups, educational organizations, juvenile societies and welfare and health clubs and associations. Under the chairmanship of former Juvenile Court Judge Fred J. Hoffmeister are to be found representatives of such organizations as the Urban League, Catholic Charities, Church Federation of St. Louis, Y.M.C.A., Y.M.H.A. and Municipal Athletic Association. All these groups are joined because they know that St. Louis is a healthier, better city for the extra hour of daylight for summer play and exercise of its young people.

What makes the committee's statement particularly valuable is its emphasis on the danger that many supporters of daylight saving may be confused by the form in which the issue is presented on the ballot. The danger is that many persons will mark their ballots "yes" in the thought that a "yes" vote will mean they favor daylight saving. The fact is a "no" vote is required to retain daylight saving since the proposal on the ballot is to repeal.

The retention of daylight saving may turn on this very point. Since a generous poll of opinion showed that St. Louisans are in favor of keeping daylight saving, this new committee and its constituent organizations will be wise to follow through closely and see that voters know that, to vote "yes" on daylight saving, the ballot must be marked "no."

Historic Justice

Foreign Minister Bidault's proposal that Germany's population be reduced by organized emigration has two highly legitimate purposes. First, it would reduce Germany's excessively high population density, which has helped make Germany a seedbed of war. Second, the reduction in population would make Germany a less formidable foe if it should attempt to make war in the future.

The population density in Germany is 507 per square mile—two and a half times that of France, nearly three times that of Poland, and about 12 times as great as that of the United States.

Mr. Bidault indicates that France herself is willing to absorb immigrants from Germany. This would help raise France's low birthrate and, as many Frenchmen frankly admit, add vigorous blood to a nation whose racial stock suffered terrible blows in the Napoleonic Wars, the Franco-Prussian War and the First World War.

If emigration under pressure be regarded as a penalty on the German state, it is historic justice. For never in history did any nation undertake such a systematic, brutal extermination of peighboring peoples as Germany perpetrated in the last war.

In an address before the War Academy in Berlin, Field Marshal Von Rundstedt said:

> . . . it is necessary for us Germans always at least to double the number of peoples in contiguous countries. We are therefore obliged to destroy at least a third of their inhabitants. The only means is organized underfeeding (read starvation), which in this case is better than machine guns.

Von Rundstedt is dead, but the people who committed the crime he urged can pay a partial penalty in the forced emigration which France advocates.

An Excellent Free Press Member

For this country's representative on the UN subcommittee on freedom of the press, the United States has nominated Zechariah Chafee Jr. The choice is first rate. Mr. Chafee, Langdell professor of law at Harvard, where he has taught for 30 years, is a specialist in questions involving the issue of a free press. His book, "Free Speech in the United States," stands in the forefront of all works on the subject. Other volumes with titles such as "Freedom and the Modern World" and "Return to Freedom" show this to be his abiding concern. The choice is all the more appropriate since Prof. Chafee is vice chairman of the Commission on Freedom of the Press, whose painstaking studies of press, radio, moving picture and communications problems are about to be issued to the public by the University of Chicago Press.

Aldermen's Baby

City finances get sicker by the day—so the Board of Aldermen took five tax remedies prescribed by the Mayor and Tax Commission and poured them down the drain. What does the loss of $3,250,000 mean against the fact that, as one of the municipal statesmen said, the people are allergic to taxes? Others spoke soothingly about slashing the budget enough to balance the books without new taxes.

And, soaring above all such solo performances, this mighty chorus: Let's not do anything about taxes until after the April 1 election, because anything we do, some voters are not going to like it—or about economy either, because anything we do, some city jobholders and their sisters and cousins and aunts are not going to like that.

Rather than wait for an April Fool present, we have an idea that a good many voters will pester the municipal statesmen to get their budgetary baby house-broken before March is out. There's a beautiful chance here for the Aldermen to show some quick results, and for individual candidates and the two party organizations to explain, exactly, what economies they have in mind. Asking them to seize the opportunity is only reasonable, because the city's financial plight is or should be the only major issue in the campaign, and the Aldermen themselves have given it a sharp point by throwing out ugly new taxes and promising brave new economies.

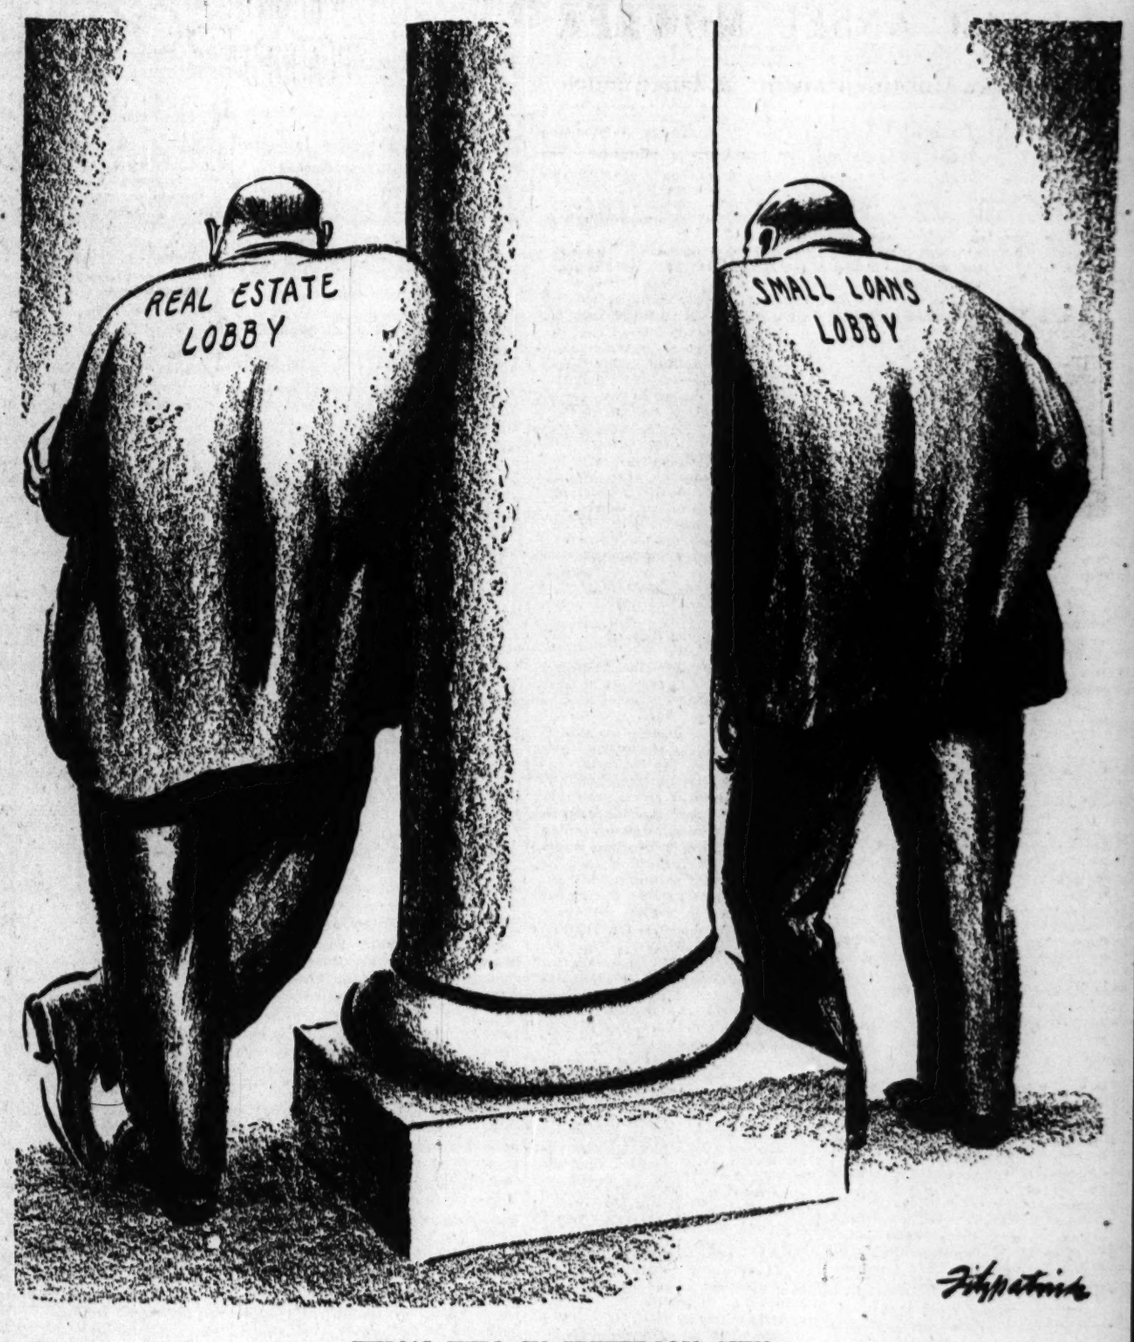

Just as a starter, will all Aldermen and candidates come forward one by one and promise to save the city a painless $1,000,000-plus by transferring City Sanitarium and St. Louis Training School to the State?

Mr. Burton Takes a Collection

At this point, Madison County may be puzzled as to whether C. W. Burton is State's Attorney or a tax collector. He has just succeeded in pinning fines totaling nearly $9000 on 18 gambling operators, yet the gambling proceeds undisturbed. The net result seems to be that the State of Illinois is profiting from what is supposed to be an illegal business.

Several bookies say they understand charges will be filed against them every 90 days as a levy. But they don't seem to be worried, and for good reason. Burton filed nothing more than misdemeanor informations against them. At that rate, they can afford to pay the fines and keep going. They consider they have bought themselves into the official good graces of law enforcement in Madison County.

It's barely possible that State's Attorney Burton thinks what he has done comes under the heading of stern prosecution. Maybe, as a Democrat, he believes he has embarrassed Sheriff Dallas Harrell, a Republican, who is noted for complete inactivity where gambling is concerned. But the slot machines jangle on and the bookies and bingoists are not fooled. To their cynical eyes, the fines look like a legalized pay-off.

WHO'S WHO IN JEFFERSON CITY

The Latest Dodge in Small Loans

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Better Business Bureau urges Legislature to write a lending law; says loan firms have found way to get around 8 per cent interest limit; they charge for insurance and special fees; borrowers pay "terrific toll" for "extras" which were banned by former statutes.

From the Bulletin of the St. Louis Better Business Bureau

Missouri has been a battle ground between loan sharks, (240 per cent per annum and upward) and the so-called licensed lenders (30 to 36 per cent per year) in years gone by. More lately the major battle front was between the so-called licensed lenders and the banking groups who entered into the small loan field in search of new fields for their banking funds.

Out of all this controversy, the State Constitutional Convention attempted to settle the issue by providing for a universal interest rate, applicable to all lenders and borrowers alike. The Legislature worked out a compromise enactment, which the Governor vetoed because in his opinion, contrary to that of the Legislature, the proposed statutes were not consistent with the provisions of the new Constitution.

In an effort to determine what effect the present lack of any law to license and supervise money lending has had upon the borrowers, the Better Business Bureau has compiled data from inquiries made of our office and by special investigation.

More Revenue for Lenders

This study indicates that most of the small loan companies and some banks are now making extra charges of one sort or another (which the general interest laws providing for a maximum of 8 per cent per annum do not sanction or prohibit), such as requiring borrowers to buy life, health and accident, and other insurance from the lenders; or collecting for notary fees and credit investigations.

All these have the effect of bringing more revenue to the lenders, and in some cases making the true cost of the loans equal to or greater than under the 2½ and 3 per cent per month on unpaid balances paid to small loan companies before July 1, 1946, when the old laws became void.

One branch of one of the smaller companies having several offices in this area has for months been collecting an average of over $5000 per month for insurance premiums, covering life, and health and accident insurance on its borrowers. The insurance premiums charged were over five times as much as was chargeable for interest at 8 per cent per annum, simple interest.

As this company operated several offices in Missouri, the borrowers are now paying a terrific toll to money lenders for "extras" which were not permitted under the small loan laws while they were in force prior to July 1, 1946.

A mail handler complained that he went to a loan company to borrow $200 on his automobile. He owed a balance of $67.34 on the car. He asked for automobile insurance which cost $28. He received between $130 and $140 in cash. He was charged $55.50 for life, accident and health insurance, which he did not order, had no use for, and concerning which there was no discussion.

The Borrower Is Confused

He had been given about 45 minutes to read a "lot of papers" before he signed up and just as he was to sign, some other papers were added to the pile to be signed. After he got home and checked through what he had been given, he found a copy of an application for the life, health and accident insurance costing $55.50.

He returned to the office and was told by the manager he had to do what he was told, and it was the regular custom to require borrowers to buy life, health and accident insurance. He was therefore obligated to pay $25 per month, or $300, for about $235 loaned to him.

It is also disclosed that the life insurance usually supplied is "single interest." It protects the lender for the unpaid balance of the account, and that is all.

It is evident that appropriate regulatory laws are needed. Those laws, in our opinion, should provide strict supervision, licensing, examinations and annual reports, and an interest rate fair first to borrowers, and fair also to lenders to the extent that they will not have to impose "companion sales" of unwanted items on borrowers to be able to operate.

For the umpteenth time, therefore, the Legislature of Missouri has to give to this major matter further consideration and it is to be hoped, for the sake of the citizens of Missouri who must occasionally borrow money, that the statutes proposed by the Legislature will merit and receive the Governor's approval.

Harry Truman's Comeback

John S. Knight in the Detroit Free Press

We have listened to a lot of bum jokes about Harry Truman, but the records show that since Nov. 5, 1946, the President has consistently outmaneuvered his opposition. That election made him a free man. He can now be Harry S. Truman of Missouri and not a pale copy of his illustrious predecessor. The Gallup poll shows a steady rise in his popularity rating.

It is a commonly expressed belief that the next President of the United States will be a Republican. That view is not shared either by Mr. Truman himself or his political advisers who, gleefully encouraged by the turn of events, are advising Washington newspaper men "not to sell this little guy short."

They are counting upon Republican mistakes in Congress and the animosities that may develop between the various Republican presidential hopefuls and put H.S.T. back in the White House for another four years. The Republicans have an exceptional opportunity to demonstrate the leadership which they proclaimed has been so sorely lacking in the Truman Administration.

Party leaders would make better progress in living up to their new responsibilities if they stopped making goo-goo eyes at the presidential nomination and really got down to business. It is later than they think!

Between Book Ends

In the Mind of a Child

THE PRACTICING OF CHRISTOPHER, by Josephine Eckert. (The Dial Press, New York.)

In this prize-winning first novel, Miss Eckert has achieved an unusual degree of restraint and balance in dealing with a subtle and difficult subject—the world of a small boy.

Christopher Rosmer, just under 9 years old, is the sensitive, imaginative son of Allan Rosmer, historian and novelist, and Gerry, an exceptional faculty wife. Allan is short with the boy, taking out on his son the impatience which he feels at the slow progress he is making on a novel. Gerry is more understanding toward Christopher except when she becomes absorbed in trying to marry off Christopher's best friend, Binkie, a poet and critic.

Other characters appear from time to time: Susanna, a little girl who is quite as lonely as Christopher and twice as imaginative; her grandfather, a retired professor; Laura, a beautiful blond who writes plays and has a bad effect upon Binkie; several other girls whose effect upon the poet is not what Gerry hopes it may be; and finally Betty, whom Christopher introduces to Binkie rather by accident. One other juvenile character deserves mention—Theodore Haven Fitzgerald, son of a professor of zoology and better known as "Blood and Guts."

These are the more important people in the life of Christopher, and they drift in and out of the story with a casualness that leads one to believe that one is seeing through the eyes of a 9-year-old boy.

Christopher's physical world is limited at first to the yard of the Rosmer home and the park beyond it. Gradually this world expands as the boy ranges farther afield, seeking the companionship which he cannot find at home, and finally it includes even New York, where Christopher goes in desperation to seek Binkie and to avoid being sent away to school.

Allan, at Binkie's urging, follows the boy to New York, and the reconciliation of the boy and his father is attended by many fortunate circumstances for everyone concerned.

"The Practicing of Christopher" is a book written for the person who preserves in himself something of the naturalness and sensitivity of childhood. For the more callous reader, the essential childish attitude of wonder, the delicate humor and even the occasional flashes of satire might be too bland a fare. One can hope, however, that there are enough readers of the former sort to give Miss Eckert's novel the good reception it deserves.

Before Sunday Night

THE TAKEN TOWN, by Dudley Carew. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

Although there is nothing very profound in this short novel, it is written in such a way that you may need to read the publisher's blurb on the jacket to get the novelist's purpose. It is to show how a young Englishman of 25, just returned from six years in the army, might react to the more normal social conventions of life at home.

Robert Singleton is the veteran in the story, which tells of a weekend party at a country house outside London. As an engineer for an industrial company, he tries to push his associates into practices which are somewhat shady, though not illegal, but before Sunday night comes, he has experienced a change of heart. He has also fallen in love with one woman and has made proposals of marriage to her and another as well, but the author makes much less of this than you might suppose.

EDGAR ANSEL MOWRER

American Continentalism: A Dead Duck

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S message to the Congress last Wednesday marked the end of one era and the beginning of another. The era whose end he celebrated saw the rise of the United States to a world power.

To call it isolationist does not do it justice. Our country—strictly speaking—has never been isolationist save in the dreams of Col. Robert McCormick. It has become involved in all of Europe's major wars since 1765. It has been called isolationist for lack of a better word.

Carl Hatch

Really, our philosophy was continentalism. It assumed that until trouble snatched at the Western Hemisphere, Americans could—indeed, should—ignore it. It presumed that up to that point, European or Asiatic wars could not harm the United States. It took for granted that the American people could acquire and maintain unequalled prosperity while the immense majority of mankind hungered. It was based on a refusal of Americans to become their brother's keeper.

For about a century and a half—up until the opening of World War I—continentalism was a wise policy. About 1914, it ceased to be effective.

Since then—some 33 years—we have been trying to make up our mind what to adopt next. While we still wrangled, science and the Soviet Union finally made it up for us. Science reduced the physical globe to be a single neighborhood. Science acquired the means of providing a better living for every human being. Science finally produced the atomic bomb and a number of other weapons that make the threat of war all but intolerable. A new world was born.

What Truman Did.

Our Soviet allies utilized our common victory over an odious political combination to extend a national power, a political regime and an economic philosophy that most Americans considered dangerous. After five years of futile efforts to prevent such extension by friendly agreement, the United States recognized the dilemma: submission or resistance.

Submission is not in the American character. When, after American failures to save even the shreds of freedom in Poland and the Balkans, the rising Soviet tide reached Greece and Turkey, President Truman went to the Congress and urged resistance. Therewith, he laid the tombstone on the era of American continentalism.

The President rose to an emotional height that he has not shown before. Few Presidents have ever revealed more burning belief in free institutions and the national integrity of little nations. But even a President can only ask, he cannot commit, his country to a policy of expending its treasure and, if necessary, its blood, in assisting free peoples to remain free.

Greece and Turkey are a first test. Not all American Senators and Congressmen are bright enough to tell a dead from a living duck. The vision of some still stops at the water's edge. And—more likely but equally dangerous—even a willing Congress may try to buttress the area of freedom with inadequate means doomed to failure.

Senator Hatch's Ideas.

On the same day the President spoke to the Congress, up in New York City, Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico was indicating a long-term policy for peace. He asked: "Are we willing to make the necessary delegation of so-called national sovereignty to insure a world of peace? Or are we still clinging to those age-old, wrong, erroneous and mistaken ideas which have always resulted in war and always will result in war. . . .

"Our country remains the one nation strong enough to provide that leadership which can save the world from complete disaster."

Senator Hatch goes the whole way with President Truman. He wants to go much farther. He proposes:

1. Complete substitution of law for force as the final word in all relations between disputing nations.
2. Complete co-operation and reciprocity in trade relations.
3. Temporary maintenance of our military establishments at whatever level is necessary.
4. Adoption of a complete code of international law.
5. Enlarging the jurisdiction of their international courts of justice and making jurisdiction compulsory.
6. Immediate establishment of an international military force.
7. Complete delegation to the international authority of the right to declare war, with each nation surrendering its present separate right to declare or wage war.

It seems to me that President Truman has indicated the right short-term and Senator Hatch the right long-term policy for the new era.

WALTER LIPPMANN

Policy or Crusade?

THE President's message falls into two parts which may be considered separately. The first part is the argument for assistance to Greece and Turkey in the form of money, supplies, equipment, and of civilian and military personnel. The second part is a statement of "the broad implications involved" if the assistance is extended. It is this second part which requires the most careful examination and thorough debate.

For it is, as the lawyers would say, an obiter dictum, that is to say "an expression of opinion . . . not forming an essential part of the reasons determining the decision."

Global Intervention?

Thus there are sufficient practical, humanitarian, and strategic reasons why the United States should intervene in the Middle East to prevent, as the President put it, "changes in the status quo in violation of the Charter of the United Nations by such methods as coercion, or by such subterfuges as political infiltration."

But since the reasons are sufficient why Congress should vote the authority to intervene in the Middle East, it does not necessarily follow that it should indorse the idea that our interventions are henceforth to become general and global.

In respect to this second part which contains "the broad implications," we shall do well to follow the advice which Alexander Pope gave to the poets, that they should compose with fury but should correct with phlegm. The implications are stated so vaguely, so broadly, so rhetorically that no workable policy can be deduced from them. They can mean everything, anything, or very little, and words of that sort, when pronounced by the head of a state in a time of intense crisis and of passionate confusion, are imprudent.

The Value of Precision.

The pronouncements of a powerful government should be defined and precise, lest they be taken as threatening more than it intends and as promising more than it can deliver.

For experience should have taught us by this time that there are good reasons why a seasoned diplomacy is very chary indeed of the grand pronouncements of policy. "Today they are ringing the bells; tomorrow they will be wringing their hands."

The practice of understatement which we perhaps think of as peculiarly British, is in fact characteristic of experienced and responsible diplomacy everywhere. The big hot generalities, which we have loved so well when the primary responsibility in the world was not ours, are no longer for us. They are an indulgence which a great state must learn to eschew. For, they usually mean, as Elihu Root, I believe it was, once said, that first you shake your fist, and then you shake your finger.

The President's statement illustrates this very tendency: "It must be the policy of the United States to support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressures" . . . but "I believe our help should be primarily through economic and financial aid . . ."

An Anticlimax.

Instead of such a large promise followed by a lame anticlimax, it would be better, much less dangerous, and far more effective to announce, not a global policy, but an American Middle Eastern policy. Instead of not naming the Soviet Union, it would be better to address the Soviet Union directly, and to say that in view of the pressure on Greece and Turkey, we are reinforcing them; that our object is to stop the invasion of Greece by bands armed and trained in Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania; to make sure that the settlement between the Soviet Union and Turkey is negotiated and is not imposed by force; that behind the projection of this temporary special guaranty, we are contributing economic and financial assistance in order to revive and strengthen the national life of these two countries.

The advantage of adopting a precise Middle Eastern policy is that it can be controlled for the purpose of maintaining order. A vague global policy, which sounds like the tocsin of an ideological crusade, has no limits. It cannot be controlled. Its effects cannot be predicted. Every one everywhere will read into it his own fears and hopes, and it could readily act as incitement and inducement to civil strife in countries where the national co-operation of parties is delicate and precarious.

DEATH OF GEORGE E. WULLER

George E. Wuller, former cashier of the Belleville Bank & Trust Co., died at St. John's Hospital here yesterday of a kidney ailment. He was 57 years old and had been in ill health for several months.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Stella Wuller, five sons and two daughters. A sixth son, Thomas, was killed in action in the Marine Corps at Iwo Jima in 1944.

Ex-Congressman Ellis Dies.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Edgar Clarence Ellis, 92 years old, of Kansas City, Mo., who served five terms in the United States House of Representatives, died at his winter home of a heart attack Saturday night. He was a retired attorney. Survivors include the widow and five grandchildren. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

WAGNERIAN SYMPHONY PROGRAM APPLAUDED

Edwin MacArthur Directs Orchestra in Second Post-season Concert.

The music of Richard Wilhelm Wagner filled the program yesterday afternoon at the second of the four post-season concerts given by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Edwin MacArthur in Kiel Auditorium Opera House.

It was typical all-Wagner fare beginning with the "Flying Dutchman" overture and culminating with the Prelude und Liebestod from "Fristan und Isolde." Between were the Dawn, Siegfried's Journey to the Rhine, Siegfried's Death and Funeral March from "Die Gotterdaemmerung;" the Siegfried "Waldweben;" excerpts from Act III of "Die Meistersinger;" the Prelude and Good Friday Spell from "Parsifal," and the Venusburg Scene from "Tannhaeuser."

MacArthur came to popular public attention largely through his Wagnerian accompaniments of Kirsten Flagstad, whom he assisted both as pianist and conductor before the war. His experience with Wagner's music has been broad. But with it, he has not evidently grasped the repose and poetic feeling that Wagner on rare occasions discloses. Yesterday's performances had plenty of excitement and little respite. Details were ample. Wholly lacking was a projection of the lyrical line.

The orchestra under the circumstances lacked the veneer which it had developed this season. The brass responded with such energy that it drowned out inner-voice passages in the strings. And the forcing of tone tended to throw the magnificently balanced brass choir out of focus.

Perhaps it was the excerpts chosen rather than the interpretations which produced an atmosphere of unrelieved tension. Whatever the cause the tension was there. But it won the plaudits of a small audience.—A.W.H.

New Olivia DeHaviland Role.

HOLLYWOOD, March 17 (UP)—Olivia DeHavilland, who last week won an "Oscar" as 1946's top film actress, has been signed for the starring role in "Snake Pit," an expose of an insane asylum, Twentieth Century-Fox announced yesterday. The movie will be made from the best selling book written by Mary Jane Ward.

Robert Taylors in Europe.

AMSTERDAM, March 17 (AP)—Robert Taylor and his wife Barbara Stanwyck paid a 36-hour visit to Amsterdam yesterday and left by car for Brussels. On March 26 the couple will attend the London premiere of "The Other Love," in which Miss Stanwyck is co-starred with David Niven.

DEATH OF WALTER P. SEIM, PIANIST, BAND CONDUCTOR

Funeral services for Walter P. Seim, pianist and band conductor, will be at the A. Kron undertaking establishment, 2707 North Grand boulevard, at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow. Burial will be in the St. Lucas & Park Hill Cemetery, St. Louis county. Mr. Seim died Saturday of pneumonia at De Paul Hospital. He was 58 years old and lived at the Fairgrounds Hotel.

He was born in Sappington and educated in St. Louis county schools. After studying music in St. Louis he toured the country for three years as pianist of a vaudeville orchestra and then returned here as a conductor of public band concerts and a private entertainer.

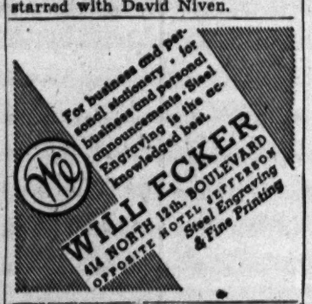

Mr. Seim was for many years an entertainer at the old North Hills Country Club. In the 1920s he held concerts in the island band stand at Forest Park and more recently directed bands in Fairgrounds, Carondelet and Tower Grove parks. He was band leader at both the police and firemen's circuses and played the piano for members of the Veiled Prophet's Krewe in their den after the last five Veiled Prophet parades. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nellie Seim, and a sister, Mrs. Philip Lenz.

Miss Hesse Is Bride.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH in University City was the scene of the marriage this morning of Miss Dorothy Jeanne Hesse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Chester Hesse of Old Bonhomme road, Clayton, and Capt. Roy M. Streckfus Jr. of New Orleans. The Rev. John J. Gilsenan performed the ceremony and celebrated nuptial mass at 9 o'clock before an altar decorated with spring flowers, after which a family breakfast was given at the Gatesworth Hotel. A reception was held at the Hesse home this afternoon.

The bride wore a beige costume suit of light weight wool distinguished by an accordion pleated cape. She complemented her attire with a flowered green hat and light brown accessories and carried a prayer book topped by brown orchids.

Mrs. Charles A. Williams, matron of honor, wore a gold-toned suit and navy blue accessories and Miss Lily Ann Streckfus, the bridegroom's sister, chose pale blue and brown accessories. Both carried lady slipper orchids.

Capt. Streckfus, son of Capt. Roy M. Streckfus of New Orleans and the late Mrs. Streckfus, was attended by his brother, Robert Streckfus of New Orleans, as best man. Ushers were Richard Robertson Uhl, cousin of the bride; Capt. J. Curran Streckfus of St. Louis, the bridegroom's brother, and Mr. Williams.

Mrs. Hesse received in a gray ensemble with which she wore a pink hat and a pink camellia corsage. Greenery banked the Hesse living room fireplace before which the bridal party received and the wedding cake comprised the centerpiece of the dining room table.

The bridegroom attended Tulane University, New Orleans, and recently returned after four years' naval duty. Following a motor trip he and his bride will live in New Orleans.

DR. FRANC L. M'CLUER TO HEAD LINDENWOOD

Westminster President Since 1933 to Direct Girls' College.

Dr. Franc L. McCluer, president of Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., since 1933, has been selected as president of Lindenwood College, for girls, at St. Charles. The selection was announced today by Dr. James W. Clarke, president of the Lindenwood board of trustees and pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in St. Louis.

Dr. McCluer's formal election to the post by the Lindenwood trustees took place today. His acceptance was obtained in advance. He resigned from the presidency of Westminster College at a board meeting Friday. Both Westminster and Lindenwood are Presbyterian colleges.

Dr. McCluer presided at the Green Foundation lecture at Westminster a year ago when Winston Churchill, former British Prime Minister, delivered his famous "Fulton address." President Truman also was present and spoke briefly on that occasion.

The educator took his undergraduate work at Westminster College, receiving his bachelor's degree in 1916. He obtained his doctorate at the University of Chicago.

He taught at the University of Chicago, University of Missouri and the Southeastern Missouri State Teachers College before going to Westminster in 1920 as professor of sociology and economics. He held that post until his elevation to the presidency in 1933.

In 1945 he served as director of the campaign for the adoption of the new Missouri Constitution. He also has served in many educational and civic posts.

8TH GRADERS ADMITTED FREE TO FLOWER SHOW SOME DAYS

Eighth-grade students of St. Louis and St. Louis county public schools will be admitted to the Greater St. Louis Flower and Garden Show without charge during certain periods of the show, George P. Kuehner, president of the St. Louis Flower Association, announced today.

St. Louis eighth-grade students will be admitted as free guests on Wednesday and Thursday between 10 a.m. and noon each day; St. Louis county students will be admitted at the same time on Friday. The show, first since 1942, will open at 10 a.m. tomorrow at Kiel Auditorium and continue through Sunday. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily.

Wednesday and Thursday, when city students will be guests, have been designated as "Garden Club Federation Day" and "Conservation Day." Friday, with county students attending, has been designated "College Day." Theme of the show is "Gardens for St. Louis."

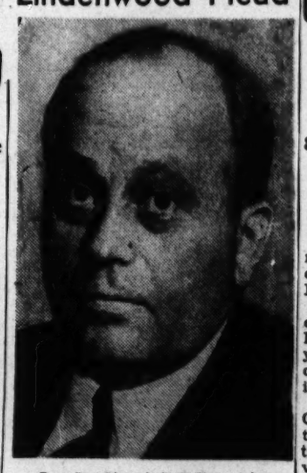

FRED G. WEHRLE DIES; WAS JEWELRY MERCHANT 60 YEARS

Fred G. Wehrle, a jewelry merchant in Belleville for the past 60 years, died yesterday at his home, 305 East D street, Belleville, of infirmities of age. He was 86 years old.

The Wehrle jewelry store was established by Mr. Wehrle's father, Joseph, at 16 East Main street, Belleville, in 1850 and has been doing business at the same location ever since. It is now operated by Mr. Wehrle's sons and only survivors, Fred J. and Leroy A. Wehrle.

DOUGLAS ARRIVES IN BRITAIN, BEGINS DUTIES AS ENVOY

Ambassador Finds Controversy in Press Over U. S. Aid-to-Greece Policy.

LONDON, March 17 (AP)—Lewis W. Douglas, the new American Ambassador to Great Britain, paid a combination business and personal call on Prime Minister Attlee today.

Attlee set aside 45 minutes for the engagement with Douglas, who arrived in Britain yesterday. What the two talked about was not disclosed.

Douglas began his duties amid a growing press controversy over President Truman's plan to aid Greece and Turkey. Douglas himself did not comment on the question, limiting himself to a brief expression of confidence in British-American relations.

The relationships between America and Britain are stronger now than they have ever been," he told reporters at a London airport. "I hope that during my term of office they will become even stronger.

"There's a tremendous sympathy in the United States for Britain's present economic predicament, coming as it does after seven bitter years of war.'"

ST. LOUIS U. HEAD DENOUNCES COMMUNISM IN CLASSROOMS

The Very Rev. Patrick J. Holloran S. J., president of St. Louis University, asserted yesterday that "American educators have no right to advocate Communism in the classroom."

He spoke at St. Francis Xavier (College) Church, Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard, on the teaching of Communist principles in schools.

No private citizen, government official or university professor, he said, has the liberty to choose between Communism and those institutions which he said it would utterly destroy. He spoke against Americans who think it is unfitting for anyone, except a small band of atheists and agnostics, to write the American philosophy of education or determine what will be taught to the generation of young Americans attending America's schools.

GIFTS REACH $623,120 IN RED CROSS DRIVE

84 Pct of Goal — Webster Groves Contributions Total $14,052.

Contributions to the Red Cross now total $623,120, or 84 per cent of the $743,000 goal assigned St. Louis, it was announced today.

Whitelaw T. Terry, campaign chairman, expressed the hope St. Louis for the third successive year will achieve the distinction of being the first metropolitan city in the country to meet its quota.

The Webster Groves Red Cross Chapter, which is participating in the drive with the St. Louis Chapter and its St. Louis county division, has raised $14,052, it was announced by Theodore Setzer, chairman of the drive in Webster Groves.

Mrs. H. K. Hanna, 36 West Glendale road, headed the first Webster Groves zone team to reach its quota, Setzer said.

Incomplete returns from nine St. Louis county school districts totaled $1275 today, former Circuit Judge John J. Wolfe, county campaign chairman announced. They were Ritenour, $362; Normandy, $210; Ferguson, $185; Wellston, $135; Affton, $127; Hancock, $90; Ladue, $79; Pattonville, $47, and Mehlville, $39.

Citizens Bank of Florissant and two employes have contributed $70 to the county total, Wolfe said.

Eight employe groups contributed $3264 through the Commerce and Industry division, it was announced by Victor C. Eggerding, division chairman. They were: Cupples Co., $794.50; Curtis Manufacturing Co., $650; International Business Machine Corp., $521.80; Mutual Bank and Trust Co., $408; G. H. Walker & Co., $359; Lang-Kohn, Inc., $283.25; International Hat Co., $198; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., $50.

Four joint company and employe contributions totaling $1219 were: Fox Bros. Manufacturing Co., $448; Husmann and Roper Freight Lines, Inc., $353; Geo. D. Barnard Stationery Co., $321; Jos. F. Kelly, Inc., $97.

CLASSMATES SEND GIRL RADIO AFTER LEG AMPUTATION

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 17 (UP)—Classmates of little Joan Marie Stumpek sent her a radio today to keep her amused while she recuperates from a leg amputation which she herself ordered so she could "get around" like other youngsters.

The radio was bought with money contributed by pupils at the Central Junior High School in Pittsfield where 12-year-old Joan is an honor student.

The dark-eyed girl, whose right leg was amputated above the knee Thursday, also had another offer of a bicycle. This one came from a woman in New Bedford who read that Joan's ambition, once she is fitted with an artificial leg is to ride a bicycle. She accepted a bike from a New York company last week.

Joan had her first visitors yesterday—her father and mother, her brother Billy and an aunt.

PUNITIVE LABOR LAWS FEARED BY SENATOR

Morse Says Congress, Facing Series of Crises, Can't Give Problem Full Study.

Labor peace will not be assured by the passage of the kind of restrictive and punitive labor legislation now being urged on Congress, Senator Wayne Morse (Rep.), Oregon, told a Liberal Forum audience at the Y.M.H.A. last night.

The very opposite result will follow from attempts to weaken the trade union movement as labor unites to meet this new challenge, he said.

"I am never afraid of any issue confronting the American people if public opinion has had a full opportunity to think the issue through," he said. "But public opinion is hysterical over labor excesses and wants something done immediately while Congress, moving from crisis to crisis, is unable to give the problem the full study it deserves. As a result, I am not optimistic over the type of legislation that congressional labor committees will bring out in the near future."

Outlines 5-Point Program.

Morse expressed the hope the Senate committee bill would meet the four criteria of fairness, reasonableness, moderation and enforceability. He described his own five-point program introduced last Monday in Congress as amendments to the Wagner Act. They would:

1. Expand the National Labor Relations Board from three to seven members with authority to work in departments in order to catch up on the backlog of cases now before it. He estimated the board was 18 to 22 months behind in its cases.

2. Give the board jurisdiction over jurisdictional strikes with authority to appoint arbitrators whose decisions would be enforceable in the courts.

3. Confer jurisdiction over secondary boycotts with similar authority to appoint arbitrators whose decisions on the justification of the particular case would be enforceable in the courts.

4. Restore to employers the full right of free speech in discussing labor problems with their employes provided the discussion be free of coercion or intimidation.

5. Authorize employers to petition against such unfair labor practices on the part of unions as refusal to bargain and breach of contract, among other things.

Assails Move to Destroy Unions.

"I will be no party to an attempt to destroy the Wagner Act or to weaken seriously the trade union movement," he said, "because I believe in the free enterprise system. The broad objective of the trade union movement is a wider distribution of the products of labor and a higher standard of living for the great mass of people. I don't think you business men can risk another depression like that of the 1930s. I don't think you can come out of such a depression with anything approaching the free enterprise system as you have always known it. Any movement to destroy unions will end by destroying democracy."

In a press conference before the meeting, Morse promised his support to President Truman's international program of resistance to Russian advances. "I thoroughly disagree with the loose talk being heard that the President's position means war," he said. "On the contrary, I believe a policy of appeasement at this time would be more likely to lead to war."

He expressed the opinion that Selective Service records should be kept intact at the local level until July 1, when the repercussions of the proposed military and financial aid to Greece and Turkey will have been revealed.

WOMAN'S AERIAL SPEED RECORD AT TAMPA SHOW

TAMPA, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Margie Hurlburt of Painesville, O., flying a clipped-wing Navy Corsair, set a woman's international speed record of 337.635 miles an hour over a standard three-kilometer course at the Tampa all-woman air show yesterday.

Her official time was 453 miles an hour better than the old record of 292.271 which Jacqueline Cochran established in Detroit in 1937.

Miss Hurlburt, a school teacher who served as a WASP in World War II, was clocked at 353.194 for one lap of the special event, but the official time was taken as an average of her four best laps.

$129,455 in Power Dam Sales.

TULSA, Okla., March 17—Sale of electric energy from the Government's Denison and Norfolk hydro-electric projects in February amounted to $129,455, according to the monthly report of the Southwestern Power Administration. The Denison plant sold 20,093,000 kilowatt hours of energy, for $66,509 while the Norfolk plant marketed 26,009,000 for $62,946.

$1,500,000,000 DEBT CUT ANNOUNCED FOR APRIL FIRST

WASHINGTON, March 17 (AP) — The Treasury announced today it will pay off in cash one and one-half billion dollars of an issue of 1-year ⅞ per cent certificates of indebtedness maturing April 1.

This, with a one billion pay-off begun March 15 of other certificates, will lower the national debt below $258,500,000,000 compared with the record high $279,764,000,000 on Feb. 28 last year.

The debt reduction has been accomplished largely by reducing the amount of "cash on hand" in the Treasury, originally built up by borrowing.

Recent redemptions, however, have been made through a surplus of receipts over cash expenditures.

The certificates maturing April 1 total $2,819,694,000. The $1,319,694,000 not redeemed will be refunded by a like amount of certificates which will mature April 1, 1947.

WHEAT UP 10 CENTS AS 'SHORTS' ARE SQUEEZED

CHICAGO, March 17 (AP)—Soaring prices sent wheat to a new 30-year peak and corn to the best level since 1920 on the Board of Trade today.

Both March and May wheat contracts advanced 10 cents, the daily limit, at one time. Volume of turnover was not as large as last week. In the "thin" market wheat at times jumped or declined as much as a full cent between transactions.

New crop wheat was strong, despite an excellent crop outlook, but price changes were not as wide in these deliveries.

A strong demand for cash corn gave yellow grain futures strength. Shipping sales from here totaled 135,000 bushels. Cash wheat was reported as much as 6 cents higher at Minneapolis. Oats rose in sympathy with other grains.

March, $2.96½; corn was 2¾@4¾c higher; March, $1.78¼@¾; and oats, 1@2c higher, March 99@¼c.

Short-covering was pronounced in all pits. The advance put wheat at the best level since May went to $3.25 in May 1917. This was immediately prior to suspension of trading during the first World War. Corn was at a peak since May hit $1.97¼ in May 1920.

The Department of Agriculture announced that it bought no grain during the March 7 to 14 period. However, flour purchases totaled 20,399,000 pounds.

ST. LOUIS CASH GRAIN.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, March 17—In the cash grain market today corn was 4c higher on the sale of 20 cars and oats 2c higher, 1 car.

RECORD STEEL OUTPUT

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—Operations of the steel industry this week are scheduled at a new postwar record of 96.4 per cent of capacity, highest since April 2, 1945, the American Iron & Steel Institute reported. The rate is equivalent to a production of 1,686,900 net tons.

Local Bank Clearings.

Local bank clearings for March 17 were $95,600,000. Debits to individual accounts for March 14 were $83,800,000.

SELECTED STOCK GROUP GAINS ON MEAGER TRADE

Public Generally Holds Aloof Pending More Light on Foreign Affairs, Taxes, Business.

NEW YORK, March 17 (AP)—In one of the slowest markets of the past year, professional bidding for a technical comeback propped individual stocks although many leaders were neglected at slightly lower levels.

Dealings were sluggish from the start. In the fourth hour only 70,000 shares changed hands. Gains of 1 to 3 points were registered for a few "blue chips" on meager sales but most price variations remained in small fractions. Plus signs were reduced or cancelled in numerous cases at the close with declines sprinkled over most departments.

Transfers for the full session were 640,000 shares, compared with 820,000 shares last Friday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed up .3 of a point at 63.9.

The Dow-Jones index of 15 utilities at 35.67 was down .15 and at a new 1947 low.

Of the 906 issues traded in today, 427 were higher, 262 lower and 217 unchanged. Seven made new 1947 highs and 66 new lows.

Quick-turn buying generally was based on the thought that the list had been oversold, having declined in five successive weeks to a new average low since early last December. Commission house customers, on the whole, still held aloof or trimmed accounts because of doubts regarding business, international complications and taxes. Soaring commodities and skepticism regarding the maintenance of labor peace also chilled speculative and investment contingents.

In the curb support was attracted by Atlas Plywood, Cities Service, Creole Petroleum, Standard Cap and Colonial Airlines.

The general "thinness" of the market was exemplified by the first sale today of Lehigh Valley Coal non-cumulative preferred on the Big Board since last May 17. Taking into consideration a $3 dividend, the stock on 100 shares was down 23½ points at 35½.

Holders of carrier securities noted the compilation of the Pennsylvania Railroad revealing a net loss in January of $3,346,319 after taxes and charges. This compared with a net loss in the like 1946 month of $324,083 after revisions to include increased wages, payroll taxes and other adjustments. Prior to the revisions the road reported net income of $2,718,621 for the initial month last year.

CHARGES MAN TRIED TO GET HIM TO GIVE $500 TO WOMAN

A man and a woman were at liberty on bond today following their arrest Saturday on compaint of Chris Cento, part-time real estate dealer, who told police the man tried to get about $500 from him for damages allegedly due the woman, who is a former friend of Cento.

Police arrested the pair at a West End rooming house after Cento reported he was supposed to pay $450 "for damages" resulting from a quarrel he had with the woman when he was keeping company with her two years ago. Cento, who lives at 5383 Northland avenue, told police he went to see the woman Feb. 15 to list her rooming house for sale. She introduced the man as her husband, Cento said. He had known her as a divorcee, the mother of two children by her former marriage.

The man recalled that Cento was arrested for peace disturbance following the quarrel with the woman two years ago and suggested that $500 was a suitable settlement for "damages," Cento related. Cento said he gave the man $47 and signed the $450 note, payable in a month. Police said they found a note, which had been raised to $1450, in the woman's purse. The man, who is 27 years old, denied threatening Cento.

MRS. WILLIAM HORNSBY SUIT TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

Circuit Judge David J. Mruphy took under advisement today a divorce suit cross-bill filed by Mrs. William Hornsby. Hornsby withdrew his own suit and did not contest.

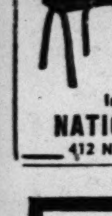

Mrs. Hornsby said in her petion the two were secretly married in June 1942 when each was 17 years old and Hornsby was a student at the Mexico Military Academy, Mexico, Mo. She said Hornsby, son of Rogers Hornsby, famous baseball player, entered the Marine Corps as a "single" man and did not provide any dependency allotment for her. Hornsby's father attempted to have the marriage annulled in 1943, but the son already had gone overseas.

Mrs. Hornsby's attorney said she sought alimony to allow her to finish school, and asked for restoration of her maiden name, Bette Ann Green. Hornsby asked for a deferment in the setting of the alimony until after he signed a contract with the Lynn (Mass.) baseball club. They were separated Oct. 4, 1946. Hornsby lives with his mother at 4958 McPherson avenue.

MOTHER OF TWO ON PROBATION FOR STEALING U. S. CHECK

Mrs. Lucille Ann Williams, mother of two small children, who lives at 2515 North Nineteenth street, was put on probation by United States District Judge George H. Moore today after pleading guilty of stealing a Government check for $50.

lines, is faced with a clear reality: He can no longer charge off increased costs against higher gross sales. He has to operate within narrower margins. And so, before declaring higher dividends, he waits to determine at what level postwar earnings are likely to settle.

That happened last time and it's happening this time, notwithstanding recent apprehension over Section 102 of the Internal Revenue Code. That section penalizes excess hoarding of earnings. If corporations pay out less than 70 per cent of their earnings, then they must show that they are not clinging to cash to enable shareholders to escape high individual surtaxes. In other words, if they can show that they need the money for inventories or payrolls or for rainy-day reserves, then they are not subject to penalty. Prudence is nontaxable.

U.S. COULD NOT FIGHT FULL-SCALE WAR BEFORE 1948

mestic or off-shore area of the United States is occupied or threatened.

Potential M-Day Forces.

Although the planning for a possible "M-day" contemplates a total effective force of 1,750,000 on that day, the force available now and for many months in the future will be far below that.

That is because a National Guard of 680,000 and an organized reserve of 195,000 is estimated in the M-day force figure—and there is neither a trained guard nor reserve force ready now. The only force in anything like a condition of readiness is the regular Army, about 1,200,000 strong.

The number of divisions which could be used immediately can be counted on the fingers of one hand, with spares left, officials said. As examples, they mentioned that the Eighty-second Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, N.C., probably is in a fair state of readiness and that one or two others might be available overseas if they could be pulled out of occupation duties.

War Department officials said the necessity for a quick mustering of the nation's manpower in an emergency makes it imperative that the 44,000,000 records gathered in connection with the selective service system be kept at hand for immediate reference.

Plant Conversion Difficulties.

While equipment and supplies remaining from World War II probably would be sufficient to outfit a reconstituted Army, at the start, officials expressed doubt about the prospect of getting plants back into prompt production of war goods. They recalled that by Pearl Harbor day there was a nucleus for war production in the United States due to foreign orders, but that now virtually all plants have thrown out tools for such production.

In one phase of an attempt to deal with this problem, the Army and Navy have started a collection of machine tools from surplus stocks and production lines where they are no longer required. The equipment is being "moth-balled" in much the same manner as surplus airplanes and naval craft—cleaned, sprayed with preservatives, wrapped and stored.

The currently gloomy picture for the Army's ground forces is offset in considerable measure by the status of the air forces and Navy.

The organizational structures of those services are much nearer being intact than the land forces. Both have found volunteer recruiting adequate for their manpower needs.

The Navy's active and ready reserve fleets are prepared for virtually instant duty; the "mothball fleet" is designed for return to the seas in from 30 to 60 days.

The AAF has the only known fleet of super-heavy, ultra long-range bombers in the world, capable of delivering the atomic bomb. Left over from wartime production was a fleet of about 3000 B-29 Superfortresses. Deliveries have started on the new B-36 bombers, built to carry 10,000 pounds of bombs 10,000 miles, but the deliveries are so limited they amount to mere token output.

SQUALOR OF IRAQ BELIES RICHES IT COULD DEVELOP

my orders from Peronne," the other will reply.

Stewart Peronne is the highly cultivated, coldly intelligent British Colonial Counselor. His omnipotence is no doubt exaggerated by his numerous enemies, but there is little doubt that through him and others the British have a pervasive influence in the formation of Iraqi policy, including the formation of Iraqi cabinets. Yet, even the most Empire-minded British know vaguely that change of some sort is on the way. One senses that British policy here is a policy of puzzled inertia.

Item: The effendis, the shieks, the ruling class, many sincere patriots, some owning a full 300,000 acres of Iraqi land, all jealous of their preogatives. It is through a minority of this tiny minority that British control is exercised. For years the British technique has worked, more or less—rather less than more if it is true that the pro-Nazi regime of Raschid Ali was more widely popular than any government before or since.

Unless the technique is drastically altered, it would be the shieks and effendis who would stand to profit first by any engineering program. The new land would become their land.

Item: The Russians, their eyes assuredly still focused on the rich Middle Eastern prize. Iraq, unlike Persia or Turkey or Greece, is not in the front line, has never felt the full Soviet pressure, yet, there have been signs for any sensible man to read: The short-lived Soviet flirtation with the Iraqi Kurds; the strike in the Kirkuk oil fields, timed to coincide with the Soviet-inspired strike in the Anglo-Iranian fields, the discovery in January of a well-heeled Communist underground, headed by a Moscow-trained Arab, calling himself romantically Fahad, or the Leopard.

The Russians, like the British, know that change is coming to this area. They think they know what direction the change will take.

Item: Last but not least, Palestine. Palestine is a paramount issue in Iraq.

These then are the main strands in the strange, immensely complex political tapestry of the Middle Eastern problem. Only one thing is certain, that no wave of a patented, streamlined American-made magic wand will solve the problem overnight.

Yet either a determined, clear-headed, integrated effort to stabilize the political and economic situation in this area must be made or the United States must be prepared for the total overturn of the world power balance, which will otherwise sooner or later ensue.

That is the unanimous assessment of every competent observer in this area.

PREVENTION NOW OR WAR LATER, ELIOT ASSERTS

inaction in blood, in treasure, in the disruption of our lives, in tears and bitterness. We won, at last—and there is no land on earth where American graves do not mark the cost of this victory.

Now we are faced with a new aggression—the expanding power of the Soviet Union, seeking to impose by force, direct and indirect, its particular form of tyranny on the free peoples of the earth. Once more we find ourselves faced with the choice of preventive action now or war later.

The issue has been put to us in clear and forceful words by the President, who is lacking neither in the vision to understand what is now at stake nor the courage to tell us the facts bluntly.

Once more, of course, we hear raised the voices which warn us of "involvement," of "a plot to rush us into another war," as Senator W. Lee ("Pass the Biscuits, Pappy") O'Daniel of Texas puts it. Once more we hear "This is a matter for the United Nations," as men used to say "This is a matter for the League of Nations." Yet these voices seem to be in a minority. Other and stronger voices, in the Senate, in the House and throughout the country, are raised in support of the President. It would appear that we have learned the bitter lessons which experience has taught us. It would appear that the bloody mistakes of the past are not to be repeated.

Difference in Conditions.

There is, of course, one great difference between the conditions of 1931, of 1935, of 1936, and the conditions of 1947. Then we might have acted in concert with other peoples who were both strong and free. Now we must act virtually alone. The United Nations (like the League) has no power of its own, no strength which is not given it by its members, no means of taking action save through the forces and by the decision of its members. Whatever action the United Nations might decide upon in the way of helping Greece or Turkey, or resisting Soviet aggression anywhere else, would in the end have to be carried out by the United States, since no other member is strong enough to do anything very effective.

China is torn by civil war. France is but beginning to recover from the wounds she has sustained; her military resources have been strained almost to the breaking point by maintaining only two divisions in Germany and two in Indo-China. Britain, strongest of all our colleagues, has signified her inability to carry on in Greece, in Palestine and elsewhere.

If the tide, of Russian aggression is to be checked, it will be checked by our readiness to act. If we are both ready and willing to act, it can be checked without fighting. If we are ready and willing only to talk, then indeed we are on the downward path toward the debacle of civilization. For some dark day we shall be compelled to act—when it is too late, when we are relatively weaker and the Russians immensely stronger, when success has gone to their heads, and they have convinced themselves that we will not or can not fight, as the Germans and the Japanese convinced themselves.

Those who say that to act now involves the risk of war are recommending to us again the policy of inaction, the policy of 1931 and 1935 and 1936, the policy which made war inevitable. Their argument stands condemned by the stern lessons of experience. The President and the Secretary of State have learned those lessons and are applying them.

IN MEMORIAM

DOSKOCIL, ALOISIA—In loving memory of my dear wife and our dear mother: March 17, 1946.
Time rolls on: it will not stay.
What grief we've felt since that sad day.
With one so loving, kind and true;
How hard it was to part with you.
Sadly missed by HUSBAND, CHILDREN, GRANDCHILDREN.

5,000,000 Yugoslavs Reported Facing Imminent Starvation

Tito Government Said to Have Mishandled Food Situation — Poland Also Threatened by Famine.

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS

BELGRADE, March 17 (AP) — Authoritative sources here are agreed that the food situation in Bosnia, Herzegovina and other sections of Yugoslavia has become so critical that, without outside aid, 5,000,000 persons will face the prospect of starvation within 30 days.

Official spokesmen are not willing to be quoted by name, but some of them say they have concluded that, after two drouths which cut food stocks to a minimum, the national government handled the situation badly on several counts.

These sources attribute such errors to inadequate communications, lack of experienced technical personnel, confusion to the point of contradiction in statistics, and misdirection in the use of internal propaganda along political lines.

It was learned that the United States Embassy had sen recommendations to the United States, following the disclosure that the Yugoslav foreign ministry had asked for American aid, but United States Embassy Counsellor John M. Cabot said he could not reveal what the recommendations were.

It was learned, through UNRRA figures and from UNRRA mission Chief Mihail Sergeichic, that even when threatened with shortages, the Yugoslav government had maintained the highest bread ration in Europe during the summer and fall of 1946; that considerable UNRRA goods were distributed to Servian areas which, after a year of reconstruction, had made themselves virtually self-sufficient.

The controlled Yugoslav press has published many articles saying that food stocks were sufficient. But these articles were written as propaganda, aimed at convincing the people that the system of control and distribution was successful. When the crisis came, the government repudiated the articles.

Poland Lost Potato and Rye Crops in Severe Winter.

WARSAW, March 14 (UP) — Poland faces famine in the next six months as a result of the most severe winter in a decade, UNRRA officials say.

The potato crop froze and the rye crop was smothered under snow.

UNRRA Mission Chief Donald R. Sabin said that "there is practically no prospect" of avoiding a cut in rations to less than 1,600 calories from the present 2,000.

Government hope of aid from Russia is waning because the Ukraine harvest was the worst in 50 years and the Russians are facing their own critical food problems. Russian aid last year averted a threatened famine in Poland.

PREFERENCE ON FISH SAID TO VARY WITH LOCALITY

BOSTON (AP) — Your preferences in fish are as much a give away as to the place you hail from as your accent or your colloquialisms, says Edward Sawyer, head of the fish department for A. & P. stores.

He finds that fish preference has remained fairly constant in the last 10 years. In Boston, haddock is preferred while in New York top honors go to cod. Philadelphia wants flounder except when shad is running.

Baltimore buys more croakers but Pittsburgh goes all out for haddock. In Chicago, fresh water fish from the Great Lakes are top favorites while Cleveland, only a few hundred miles away, leans toward North Atlantic varieties.

In the South, preference goes to catfish although Georgia would rather have Florida mackerel. Des Moines, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and St. Louis put ocean perch, commonly called rosefish, at the top of the heap.

TRIES TO END WOMEN'S FIGHT, GETS LECTURED BY COURT

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. — (AP)—A man haled into city court here on a charge of fighting told Judge Charles G. Kelly he actually wasn't fighting but was only trying to separate two women who were fighting.

"You'll always come out on the wrong end by doing a thing like that," advised Judge Kelly.

"You should know better than to try to separate two fighting women," interjected Chief of Police Joe Kimsey, who was in the courtroom.

The defendant walked away a free man after the lectures.

TOO LATE FOR THE HAYRIDE

ELLENSBURG, Wash. (AP)—Friederich Jauda of Vienna, Austria, is a bit late in seeking a date on the Central Washington College campus here.

He wrote the college, enclosing a clipping telling how 420 college girls, planning a hayride, could find only 30 men and had to select the girls by lottery. Jauda wanted in on the next hayride. The lottery was last year, however. This year there are 527 men and 425 girls in the college.

RABBIT TRAPPING IN ERIE YIELDS $2,000,000 A YEAR

45,000,000 Sold to Britain for Food; Pelts Used for Hat Felt.

WEXFORD, Eire (AP)—During the past six years rabbit trapping has become one of Eire's established industries and more than 45,000,000 Irish rabbits have been contributed to Britain's food requirements.

To the delight of the Irish farmer whose crops were damaged, the rabbits were taken out of the country at the rate of about 7,000,000 per annum. The total value of the exports from 1940 until 1946 was some $22,000,000.

The rabbits were paid for by the British Ministry of Food. The bulk of the pelts were also sent to Britain but many of them were shipped to the United States for processing in the production of hat felt and other materials.

Rabbit trapping reached its peak in Eire in 1941. Naturally the heavy drain made great inroads on the rabbit population, but although the trade has been progressively declining since 1942 the industry continues to be worth more than $2,000,000 a year.

To give the rabbit population an opportunity to expand again, the Government has controlled the export trade to the extent that it is confined to the period between October and March.

In addition to snaring, and all the orthodox methods, thousands of rabbits are caught by dazzling them with powerful electric lamps and then simply knocking them over with sticks. Hunters wear electric batteries strapped on their shoulders.

Possum Trot Farm

What Readers Seek In Country Column

By Leonard Hall

THERE has been a marked tendency, during the trying years through which the human race has lived, this past generation, to class as naive anyone who retains a belief in the essential right-heartedness of people. Here at Possum Trot farm we must plead guilty of this naivete—unless it is that we are blessed with a very large number of unusually warm-hearted friends, many of whom we know only through the column. This was brought forcibly to our attention by a recent survey made to determine fields of interest among our readers. It is all too easy for a writer to become so immersed in his own daily doings that he forgets what part of these small affairs is of enough import to be worth recording. We had no idea what the response would be; how overwhelming, immediate and heartwarming; how filled with encouragement and constructive suggestion. So if a belief in the essential goodness of people is naive, let us hereby state again that we are the most gullible of souls.

MAIL IS no novelty to a country columnist; several thousand letters come to Possum Trot each year and they ask questions or present problems covering almost as many fields as there are letters. These we answer to the best of our ability but not always, I am sure, to the satisfaction of our correspondents. It's just that there aren't enough hours in the day and that there are an astonishing number of answers which we frankly don't know. A group of letters such as these of the last two weeks are entirely different. They are addressed to a single subject—"We don't (or do) like that 'news from Possum Trot' and here is why." Believe me—they are a stimulating tonic to a writer. They are, moreover, revealing and leave me with the firm conviction that there is a common longing and a common search today for what a contemporary commentator recently called "a world that makes sense."

IT SEEMS, first of all, that the readers of a country column enjoy hearing all the details of a way of life which many of them have known and look back upon with a pleasant nostalgia, which others look forward to living again in the not distant future and which still others simply like to imagine from an armchair beside the fire. I think that, until this past week, we've been too involved with farm doings; many readers want us to go hunting and fishing oftener, taking them along on trips which perhaps they are too busy to take for themselves.

Where to go, how to get there, what to take; which reminds me it's time to start assembling our camping gear for the season that lies ahead. The songbirds are an interest we share with a large proportion of readers—and as we develop the plantings of trees and shrubs on the new Possum Trot farmstead, there will be much to report about the birds. Youngsters show great interest in the animals—Veronica and Tiny Tim, Randy and Chipper, Daisy and Ribbon—not to forget Charles Earl, the opossum. Surprisingly, many of them show an awakening interest in conservation which bodes well for the future of our natural resources.

IT SEEMS TO ME that a large number of readers are coming to realize how closely tied together are the lives of city and country dweller—and how dependent are both on research and progress in such fields as nutrition, forestry and the management of our soil and water resources. In the country, people are saying "let's show our youngsters that farming as a way of life can be just as attractive as the occupations of the city." And the youngsters are taking home to their farm parents new ideas about the relationship of good farming to wildlife, many species of which live out their entire cycle of existence on a single farm. City people, at the same time, are saying "can I keep my income-producing job in town and still give my children the advantages of country living? We want them to grow up knowing and loving the country."

Well, it is our belief that the interest in nature and in country living are basic; one might almost say instinctive. It has nothing to do with economic status, with political beliefs either liberal or reactionary, with tolerance or prejudice. Perhaps it is touched by the acquisitive instinct, being a way of life which appeals little to those whose primary aim is material profit. Country life is lived for values which are deeper—and more intangible—than "how many dollars can I make and how quickly." But, when we stop and add up the real value which it is possible to get out of life—and consider, moreover, how few really win in the struggle for purely material success—I think there is much to be said for those who live intelligently on the land.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

FROM the publicity department of the B. & O. comes the story of a banker, newly moved to a rural community on the line, who ordered an elaborate, prefabricated chicken house.

When he received word that it had arrived, he set out with a truck and his butler to bring it home. No one was about when he finally located the railroad station, but he spied the chicken house and soon had it loaded on his truck.

Half a mile up the road, they passed a little man in blue who had "Stationmaster" written on his cap. He took one look and shouted, "Stop that car. What do you think you got on that truck?"

"It is my new chicken coop," explained the banker.

"Chicken coop, my eye," shouted the stationmaster. "That's Grisby Junction."

George Heister tells a story about a village marshal who was also the local veterinarian. He was awakened in the middle of the night by a hysterical lady who asked him to rush over on the double.

"All right, all right," he grumbled, "but do you want my services as marshal or veterinarian?"

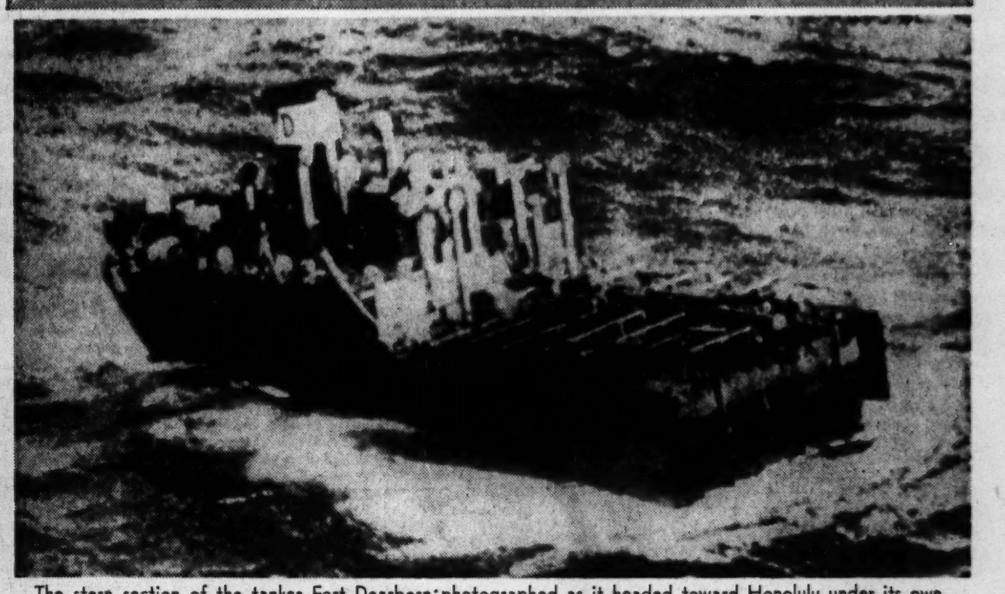

"Both," came the voice over the phone. "We can't get our bulldog's mouth open, and he's got a burglar between his teeth."

PENNSYLVANIA has a law requiring at regular intervals the complete physical examination of every public school pupil. Every state should have such a law. Specifically the law should provide for at least one child guidance clinic "staffed by a competent psychiatric team" in every community. So says Albert Deutsch in the "Woman's Home Companion."

This article, by the way, is chock full of sound advice for parents as well as communities. Juvenile delinquendy, so-called, is the major social problem of this generation but chiefly the problem is one of parental and community indifference and neglect.

WE HAVE a long way to go to catch up with adult delinquency in America. Our children have been the victims of our failures; failures of omission as well as of commission. Today many parents are "blocks" to the proper treatment of their sons and daughters because, while they may seek on their own account the best advice for the medically sick, they too generally hesitate "to seek counsel for children with obvious emotional ills." Here they have a false shame that often breeds disastrous results.

A case in kind is that of the 14-year-old Los Angeles school girl, who suddenly changed in behavior and appearance. School authorities were alarmed and pleaded with the mother to take her child to a psychiatrist. The advice was rejected and the chance to prevent a murder lost, for a little later the mother was stabbed to death—by the daughter. The girl is now an inmate of a state hospital for the insane.

CHILD-KILLERS multiply about us and adolescent criminals steadily increase in number. All of these were first, potential criminals, for those who will rob and kill tomorrow are with us today. Many of these potentials may be caught and cured. "Catch me before I kill. I cannot control myself," was scrawled with lipstick in a Chicago apartment where a young woman had been murdered. The killer was caught but not before he had killed. It will cost money — a great sum—to finance the program herein recommended but the cost is the price of a sound democracy.

Take My Word for It
By Frank Colby

A NEW WORD we given to the world at the Nuremberg trial of the Nazi leaders. There was no word to describe one of the most atrocious crimes which sent them to the gallows—extermination of entire groups or races of people, such as the purge of the Jews, the wiping out of the population of Lidice and other places, the mass slayings at Dachau . . .

The new word is genocide, pronounced JEN-uh-side, the first syllable as in Jenny, gentle.

The word is made of two combining forms: The Greek geno, from genos, "race, kind," plus -cide, "killer, destroyer."

Since no dictionary as yet lists the word, I suggest that you clip the following listing and paste it in your dictionary on the page which lists the words beginning with geno-.

Gen-o-cide (JEN-uh-side), noun. (geno-, from Greek genos, "race, kind," plus -cide, from Latin -cida, from caedere, "to kill; to destroy.") 1. The slaying of a group or race of people. 2. One who kills, or causes to be killed, a group or race of people.

Gen-o-cid-al (JEN-uh-SIDE'-ul), adjective. Of or pertaining to genocide; or mass murder.

Gen-o-cid-al-ly (JEN-uh-SIDE' uh-lee), adverb. In the manner of a genocide.

How to use the words.

Genocide, the noun: The Nazis were hanged for genocide. Hitler and his henchmen were genocides.

Genocidal, the adjective: The Nazis were possessed of a genocidal mania. They paid with their lives for their genocidal crimes.

Genocidally, the adverb: The Nazis genocidally purged entire communities. The Nazis were genocidally obsessed.

What Is "Common Cold"?
Doctor Says There's No Such Thing—Blasts Those Who Do
By William Brady, M.D.

IN old England, the Medical Research Council and the Ministry of Health have been carrying on a research for a year or more in the attempt to "find a cure for the most prevalent of all diseases, the common cold" and a medical correspondent reports from London that the attempt or search is "proving very difficult."

That, children, is what is known in America as understatement.

Now if a few doctors could agree without collusion on a definition of "the common cold" there might be some point in carrying on such research in quest of a cure. But good gosh, fellows, before you can possibly cure anything somebody has to have it, and I defy you to tell how any doctor can determine that a patient has "the common cold" and not one of the numerous other diseases, such as measles, scarlet fever, streptococcus or septic sore throat, infantile paralysis, epidemic meningitis or diphtheria, which are so commonly spread while they masquerade as "common cold." How can a doctor be reasonably sure the indisposition is not such an illness in the stage of onset before the true nature of the illness becomes obvious?

AND IF it is not too embarrassing a question for the medical and health "authorities" to answer I'll ask one more—but it is as tricky as 'When did you stop beating your wife?'—to wit:

How long are the medical and health authorities of the United States going to sanction or countenance the trick of switching the diagnosis—changing "a cold" into whatever the dumb customer proves to have caught in the first place?

For that matter, if you dear kind people who accept that hokum in lieu of a diagnosis or at least an honest admission by the doctor that he doesn't know as yet what the patient is coming down with but whatever it may prove to be the chances are it is communicable, and since all respiratory infections are most communicable, most infectious, in the early stage, the stage of onset, before the nature of the illness becomes obvious, let every one concerned beware. That, children, is the only attitude an honest doctor can take.

Dr. Harold Thomas Hyman, author of the monumental work "An Integrated Practice of Medicine," just published by Saunders, Philadelphia, $50, makes no bones of it. There is no cure for the common cold; U. S. doctors could have their patients millions of dollars on nostrums annually if they frankly admitted it. Hell, Dr. Hyman, there is no common cold. Even if there were such a disease or ailment, it is asking too much of the U. S. doctors to admit any such thing. People simply will not have a doctor who is that frank. They prefer a doctor who pretends to know a cure for it.

AND THIS is one of the truths I tell: There is no such disease or ailment or entity or clinical condition as "the common cold" or "a simple cold" or "a severe cold" or "a slight cold," in my opinion. If I am wrong about this I want to be corrected—by a Doctor of Medicine (I haven't time to read what any one else may have to say about it), and if any M.D. of standing cares to enlighten me, for the good of the public, I'll receive his or her communication in confidence.

For a definition of "the common cold" or "a simple cold" in not to exceed 300 words, if it seems to merit printing here, I'll send the doctor either a set of Hyman's "An Integrated Practice of Medicine," five volumes, which would adorn any doctor's library, together with a set of "Little Lessons in the Ways of Health" (by the w.k. international quack, 25 volumes) provided the doctor gives me written consent to reveal his or her name if any other Doctor of Medicine of standing challenges me—but in no circumstance shall I reveal the identity of any colleague to the public. Should a Doctor of Medicine send me a definition of "the common cold" which merits publication at his or her pleasure I'll send either the books mentioned or the price in cash ($55).

I reserve the right to use in this column any part of any such material, as I use any part of any letter anybody writes to me, so long as I do not reveal the identity of the writer.

"IF A FEW DOCTORS COULD AGREE ON A DEFINITION OF THE 'COMMON COLD' THERE MIGHT BE SOME POINT IN CARRYING ON RESEARCH IN QUEST OF A CURE."

Signed letters, not more than one page or 100 words long, pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease, diagnosis or treatment, will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self addressed envelope is inclosed.

JUST because no one had played boogie woogie on the harp before, didn't stop Daphne Hellman. Blonde Daphne had been playing the three "B's" around New York symphonic circles until one day she happened to swing a popular number on the strings. That opened her eyes to the possibility of "giving out with the hot notes" on her once sedate harp. Since then the lighter side of the entertainment world has seen much of Daphne and her harp.

FLORENCE ELDRIDGE

FLORENCE ELDRIDGE was all set to spend her working days in the marble confines of a bank but . . . It was the but that decided she would become the wife of Fredric March and a well-known actress in her own right. The summer before she was to take the bank job, she met Edith King, the musical comedy star. Miss King persuaded her to take a job in a chorus. From then on Miss Eldridge's star was set. Other acting spots grew out of the chorus beginning. She has deserted the stage at times for domestic life and to take care of her two children, but sooner or later she comes back; often to be her husband's leading lady. Right now they are discussing plans to do a show in England this summer if they don't decide to take a vacation with the kids.

When she completes the night flying requirements, she can ferry the company's planes across country without the stopovers she has to make now.

My Day -o- By Eleanor Roosevelt

LOS ANGELES, Sunday.

ONE of the nice things about traveling is that you meet old friends, and because you are in strange places it gives you a particular sense of pleasure. When my press conference assembled yesterday morning, I was surprised and pleased to see Miss Mary Hornaday, one of the members of my Washington press conference group. The last time I saw her was in London, when she had just returned from a trip to Yugoslavia and was still deeply impressed by the hardships which had been undergone by the women and children of that country.

I wish that the men and women who serve as correspondents on the United Nations could always have had experience in some theater of war. It would give them a greater understanding of the reasons which lie back of some of the situations that come up for discussion, and, I think, would on the whole give us better reporting.

ONE THING has particularly impressed me in our northwestern country, and that is our lack of awareness of the need for conserving and replanting our trees. I see constant reference in the papers to restocking fish and even protecting game, both of which are very important; but I notice less and less reference to the horrible waste occasioned by forest fires and excess cutting. I was told that in some sections we are cutting something like 16 billion feet of lumber and growing only four billion. These figures may not be accurate, but if the proportion is correct we will wake up some day to find we have exhausted our lumber supply, injured our water supply and followed in the footsteps of the Chinese, who prepared years ago for the floods of today by denuding their hillsides of trees and leaving them bare.

I UNDERSTAND perfectly why people who are on vacation love to come to Southern California. As we sat in the dining room eating our lunch, we could watch people sunning and swimming in the hotel pool. My grandson was fascinated as they dived off the board at different heights, and I could not help thinking of the shivering hundreds at home who would enjoy basking in the hot sun with the temperature at 83. However, I have a distinct feeling still that this kind of climate is not invigorating and not conducive to building up energy or the kind of endurance which our New England ancestors developed.

One of my daughters-in-law who comes from New England acknowledged yesterday that, though she enjoys living here very much, she does not think the very slight changes in temperature and the fact that one is never obliged to combat a wintry climate is as good for children.

It does not take long, however, to get up into the mountains, where one can enjoy all of the winter sports; and she told me of a two-week vacation, only two and a half hours by car from here, where the temperature was below freezing every day. I imagine that is the charm of this country; you can so easily get a variety of climate.

I am regretful that I did not plan for a few extra days and drive down from San Francisco through my favorite national park, the Yosemite. It is so early in the spring that I think the water falls would have been at their best, and I have never seen them until they had begun to shrink in volume with the disappearance of the snow.

Life's LITTLE DRAMAS as told to BART HODGES

Back when I was a young assistant district attorney I was detailed to handle the prosecution of a man on a Prohibition charge.

The whole community knew that the man sold booze. Merely to win the case for the State would place no feather in my cap. But I settled on a plan that successfully executed would allow me to strut like an Indian chief. I would prosecute the man in record-breaking time.

LEVERETT SALTONSTALL
Senator from Massachusetts

I decided to press only one charge that the man had sold a quart of whiskey at two o'clock on a certain Monday afternoon.

I tore into the defendant's plea of not guilty like a whirlwind and bottled-up the case quicker than the man could have bottled-up a case of his lethal juice.

"The State rests," I said dramatically. Everyone caught his breath.

The accused, speaking for the first time, asked to make a statement. He arose and walked slowly toward the jury.

"I couldn't have sold whiskey on a Monday afternoon," the man said in a tone that rang with sincerity. "On Mondays I'm down in the basement making it."

The jury freed the accused.

Swordfish

This may seem like gilding the lily, but it is truly an epicurean dish and would make a hit as the fish course at any dinner party.

For each person, order a small swordfish steak, trimmed neatly, and two softshell crabs, with the shells peeled off. Season the crabs with salt, pepper and a little lemon juice. Roll them in a little flour and cook them in butter until browned on both sides.

Prepare the swordfish the same way, in a separate pan, and when both swordfish and crabs are done, arrange the former on a round platter, with two crabs on each slice of swordfish. In the center of the platter, heap segments of grapefruit that have been cooked lightly in the same butter as the swordfish and crabs. Season fish to taste, sprinkle with chopped parsley and served with melted butter to which lemon juice has been added.

Social Problems
By Emily Post

A usual point of view is described by this wife: "Having been called away by illness in my own family, I now am told by my husband that during my absence many friends and neighbors showed him considerable hospitality. I am wondering whether I must return each of these invitations in kind. My husband also tells me that he took flowers or candy to each of these hostesses. In addition, he gave one simple buffet party to which those who had been most kind to him were invited."

Not only has he himself fully returned his obligations—with candy, flowers and a party—but it is quite obvious that he also met his obligations by being a very pleasing guest or he would not have been so popular.

DEAR MRS. POST: How should my wedding be different from that of my sister who did not marry a divorced man? I have not been married, but my fiance was divorced several years before I even met him. From what I hear everywhere, he was entirely in the right and his friends are happy about his marrying again.

Answer: No difference, unless your church does not permit the remarriage of anyone who has been divorced.

DEAR MRS. POST: It is necessary for my young son to write and thank a relative for his birthday present? It was money and given to the child personally, at which time he said, "Thank you," accompanied by an affectionate demonstration!

Answer: His "thank you" was evidently quite enough.

DEAR MRS. POST: Some people are criticizing me because I wear my engagement and wedding rings since my husband died. Is it wrong to do this?

Answer: No, it is correct. You may wear them as you always have, so long as you continue to be Mrs. John Smith.

My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM in love with my neighbor's husband. I have been doing everything in my power to make her leave him but she won't. I have even tried to push my own husband her way but she just walks away and then tells him what I'm trying to do. Her husband does everything for me and nothing for her. Takes her now and then to a show, but takes me everywhere else. I meet his friends and go out with them. When anyone tells my husband about seeing us together he just says okay, he's a neighbor. I have told this man's wife I've been out with her husband, have even told her we are in love. She says she and he made a bargain, that if ever either fell in love with someone else they would tell the other and be freed. Since he has never told her he is in love with me she says she knows he's not, no matter what I think. I made a point not to see this man for several days. He looked me up to see what was wrong and I told him what his wife had said. He said she is ill and when she gets to feeling better he will tell her how he feels about me, and leave her. I think the time to leave is now when she is sick. That would make her really hate him and she would set him free. My husband has always said he would release me at any time. He knows he's too old for me and that I enjoy much more the company of a younger man. This other man's wife is good looking and would have no trouble getting herself another man. Why does she make two people who love each other suffer like this? What can we do to make her realize she should let him have a divorce?

A NEIGHBOR.

Letters intended for this column must be addressed to Martha Carr at the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. Mrs. Carr will answer all questions of general interest but, of course, cannot give advice on matters of a purely legal or medical nature. Those who do not care to have their letters published may enclose an addressed and stamped envelope for personal reply.

Often when I get such letters as yours I wonder if such people have ever heard of the Ten Commandments—particularly the one that begins "Thou shalt not covet." Certainly there seem to be many who have forgotten it if they ever did learn it. Read over this letter of yours, pretend it is from someone you don't know, and then admit to yourself honestly just what you think of such a person. You're right. She is. So do I. Really, words fail me. If you have an ounce of decency left leave this man alone and try to settle down and make something out of your own marriage, in justice to your husband who certainly doesn't seem to have been getting much by way of proper treatment.

Dear Martha Carr:

I AM A BOY age 16. There is a girl in my class at high school of whom I'm very fond. But there is another girl who with no encouragement at all, seems to have a crush on me. Everywhere I go she follows me and practically throws herself at me. When my girl friend and I have a date we can always be pretty sure this girl is going to tag along and make a nuisance of herself. She makes us pretty uncomfortable. She is a nice girl really, I suppose, and we don't want to hurt her feelings, but what can we do? I don't like being tagged, and I would like my girl to myself now and then.

HELPLESS.

If you act toward the girl as unresponsive as you seem to feel, she will not continue to tag you indefinitely. There is no future in that. Pretend not to notice. How about introducing her to some boy you know would like her and see if perhaps that won't turn her attention in another direction. If you and your girl friend don't spread the news that you are having a date how can this devoted admirer of yours manage to go along? Keep the matter dark next time and see if for once you and your girl friend can't be without a third party.

CASE RECORDS

By Dr. George W. Crane

CASE M-268: Barney G., aged 39, is a railroad mail clerk. "It seems to me that I require more sleep than most of the men I know," he began. "I can't feel full of pep unless I have a full nine hours every night. A friend says six are enough for anybody. Dr. Crane, how much sleep should a person get, and is it true that an hour before midnight is worth two hours after midnight?"

The depth of sleep is greatest at the end of the first hour, and after the second hour, we are sleeping almost as lightly as at the end of the eighth or ninth. Probably these facts help explain the adage that an hour before midnight is worth two afterwards. Since it has been customary to retire at 10 or 11 p.m., we would thus naturally experience the soundest sleep before midnight. People who retire early, moreover, are often leading a regular life. They are on a healthful routine schedule of sleep, means and work.

OTHER psychological factors also operate to make an early curfew desirable. For instance, at 4 or 5 a.m., it grows light, which affects our eyes even though they are closed. Street sounds also grow louder. Garage doors open and shut. Motors start.

Because it is cooler, more quiet and darker at night, it is desirable to sleep then and be awake during daylight. The chickens have a pretty good rule, and the more nearly we parallel it, the more refreshment we are likely to obtain from sleep.

The value of sleep also depends on how free from annoyances we are. Darkness is a help. It would also be wise if we slept in soundproof rooms, and if we could float in the air. Obviously we cannot do the latter, so we should see that our mattresses are of the best.

REASONABLE COOLNESS is also a help. A little food before retiring will often quell the gnawing of an empty stomach. A full bladder disturbs slumber. Human bedfellows also often detract from perfect relaxation. A loudly ticking clock is likewise vaguely disturbing.

Worries before retiring, exciting stories, fear of burglars—these are also inimical to slumber. Smokers probably sleep more restlessly since the craving for cigarettes doesn't stop during sleep, for it is partly a chemical hunger.

Since we spend about one-third of our lives in sleep, it behooves us to improve its efficiency so we can reduce this time spent in bed.

Father Has Big Part in Boy's Life

By Angelo Patri

BABIES must be their mothers' care. Fathers can do little for them beyond gazing wonderingly upon them and hoping that in time they will come to bear more resemblance to what they fondly hoped a child of theirs would be like.

But babies have a way of growing into childhood, into youth and on into maturity. Fathers have to be on the watch for the signs that indicate growth and be ready to catch step and go forward with the growing child. It is not possible for a father to be friends with his children if he leaves them completely to their mother until they are adolescents. That will be too late to make their acquaintance much less to gain their affectionate friendship.

A FATHER'S close friendship with his boys and girls is one of the best of human experiences, one of the loveliest relationships, perhaps the most rewarding of all. Children want to know and love their fathers. They want to be seen with them. They long to be able to boast of them when the other children are saying, "Huh, you ought to see MY father—" And as they outgrow the age of dependence and boasting they long for the understanding, the friendliness of this man who, while life lasts will mean more than any other in the world.

A father who stays close to his children, sharing their confidences, their troubles, their good times, has a source of strength that is the real fountain of youth. Long buried memories rise and take on new meanings; almost forgotten experiences waken new understanding and create sweet sympathies; old prejudices grow shabby and wear out in the light of youth's frank gaze; age takes on beauty and wisdom and the heart of the wise father is filled with peace.

FATHERHOOD is a gift that like all other worthwhile prizes life offers must be hard-earned. Father will have to watch through the night by the bedside of the sick child; he will have to walk, hike, fish, play tennis and baseball when he would much, much rather stay quietly in his chair and read his book or enjoy a visit with an old chum. Father will have to forego some simple enjoyments that his age and experience might permit. The extra drink, the black cigar, the smart story, the picturesque language is passed up lest the boy trip. Father must be as close as possible to the ideal he sets up for his son.

The price may look high to those who have no sons but to the real father it is as nothing compared to its rewards. There is no price too high to pay for the friendship of one's son.

THE new, improved, deluxe, breath - takingly streamlined 1947 model mosquitoes will soon be coming off the production line. What kind of shape are your window and door screens in?

To begin at the beginning of this job, see what kind of condition the wood frames of your screens are in. Frames will generally go at the corners first and about the best method of repairing and reinforcing these joints is with metal mending plates. Several types of angle braces can be used and they should be fastened with the proper size wood screws. A corner plate brace can be screwed onto the surface of the joint but it will pay you to cut out the wood and set the brace so that it is flush with the surface of the joint. An angle iron plate that fits inside the joint will do the job too. Probably the best plate is a combination of these two angle braces. This plate is stamped out in such a way as to give both inside and outside support to the joint.

If any portion of the frame has become rotten, replace it now.

Throws Out His Chest and Sings

John Boles, Here on Personal Appearance Tour, Is a Man Among Men

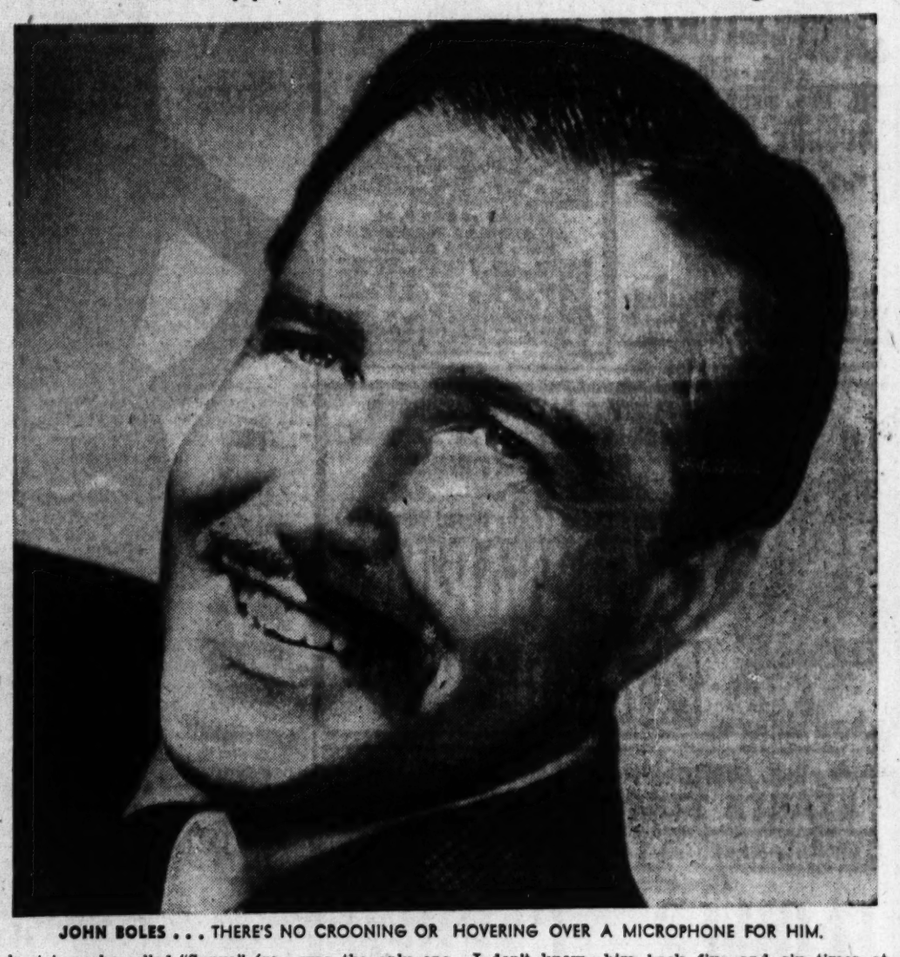

By Dickson Terry

AT 50 or thereabouts John Boles is in possession of his own hair and teeth, stands six feet and one inch tall in his stocking feet and carries his 200 pounds in an unbroken line from chin to toe.

In fact he looks little different from the days when he thrilled the socks off feminine movie fans in "The Desert Song" some 15 years ago, and his approach to life is just as youthful as his appearance. He insists that he looks to the future with the same casual and somewhat carefree attitude which he has always maintained, and with the same confidence. "I never make plans," he says, "If I go back to Hollywood maybe I'll make some more pictures, and maybe I won't, but it doesn't make any difference. I never worry about what I'm going to do next."

All things considered, his position is a fortunate one and he likes it. He sings because he likes to and only as much as he likes to and vows that if it ever gets to the point where it seems like work, he'll just haul off and quit. He sings only as much as he wants to, to satisfy himself and Uncle Sam at the same time. This usually runs from 15 to 18 weeks a year. About the fifteenth week he begins to check up on his income and if it threatens to jump into a higher bracket where he will, as he puts it, find himself work for a dime on the dollar, then he calls it a year and knocks off.

Having done this he usually hies himself to the Bel-Air Country Club near Hollywood, which is a sort of second home and where he spends his time playing golf and relaxing. He is a left-handed golfer, incidentally, and he believes he is the only left-handed golfer in captivity with a pull hook. He does everything else left-handed and says of himself that he is so left-handed that he sometimes believes he only thinks with the left side of his brain.

JOHN BOLES . . . THERE'S NO CROONING OR HOVERING OVER A MICROPHONE FOR HIM.

We talked to Boles in his suite on the twenty-fourth floor of the Park Plaza, where he is singing in the Crystal Room these days, and with him was his wife who has been his constant companion since the day they were married while both were still attending the University of Texas. In those days, Boles was going to be a doctor, but the first World War came along and he enlisted and served overseas in the Intelligence Department. "I lost so much time that I gave it up," he recalls, "and decided, after I had finished college, to go into the cotton business."

But he had been soloist in the Glee club and star of several school shows and when Oscar Seagle came to Boles' hometown of Greenville, Tex., on a concert tour and heard John sing, a star was born. Seagle was also a teacher. John borrowed $1000 from his father and went east to study.

He was getting a fair foothold in musical shows in Broadway when, one day back in 1926, Gloria Swanson went shopping for a new leading man for a picture she was about to make called "Sunya" (remember?) and after looking over a lot of possibilities among the young hopefuls on Broadway, tapped Boles.

Boles made a few other silent pictures, but it wasn't until sound came along and he got a chance to sing that he really began to dawn on the gals. He made "Desert Song," moved up another notch with "Song of the West," and when he followed with "Rio Rita" he was in.

It was about that time, in the early 30s, that he made his first personal appearance tour and got some of the treatment that Sinatra now gets. His appeal, however, has always been to adults rather than bobby-soxers.

"Incidentally," Boles recalls, "I made my first personal appearance here in St. Louis, at the Ambassador theater, and I've always remembered it, not because of what happened to me, but because of another actor. He was a comedian I'd heard quite a lot about, and he was on ahead of me, so I sat out in front to catch his act. I thought he was the funniest man I had ever heard, but y'know the audience never cracked a smile. I laughed until I made myself conspicuous, but I was the only one. I don't know whether the guy's stuff was too fast for them, or what. His name was Fred Allen."

Although Boles hasn't lived in Texas since back in the early 20s when he went away to seek fame, he still looks upon Texas as his home and suffers from what he calls "that Texas trouble." Everyone from Texas has it, he explains. There's just something about the state. And after all his years in the East and in Hollywood, there's still a lot of Texas in his talk.

His fans, Boles has discovered since starting the night club circuit, have remained loyal. They're not the Sinatra fans or the Crosby fans, but the people, especially the women, who loved him as the "Red Shadow" in the "Desert Song" and who have never gotten over it.

When Boles steps to the microphone in the Crystal Terrace he sees few bobby-soxers in his audience, but then there wouldn't be. Boles neither croons nor drapes himself on the microphone. He throws out his chest, opens his mouth and lets his audience have the full blast. And the applause is ample testimony that his hearers like it. They call him back five and six times at every performance, and when he sings numbers from "The Desert Song," a sigh like a mountain breeze sweeps across the room.

"That" says Boles, "is what keeps you young — applause."

Looking back over more than 20 years in show business Boles himself a little surprised and a little awed by it all because, he says, "I still stand in the wings, metaphorically speaking, and I'm still fascinated by people who get out on a stage and do things. It's still as much a lark to me as it was when I started — and one that has paid quite well, I might add — and I still like it. As I said before, if it ever gets to be work, then I'll quit."

Under present conditions there is little danger of it getting to be too much of a chore. He plans to continue the present tour, which started January 1, about four more weeks, then call it year.

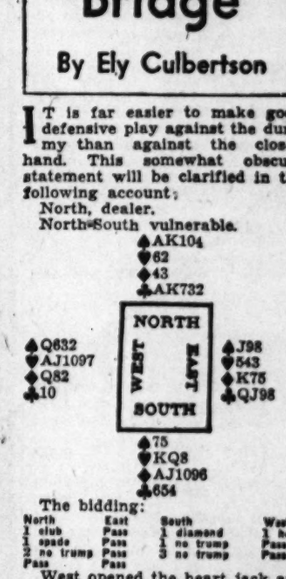

After that — "my wife and I are nomadic. We like to travel. Back to California, maybe to Florida, maybe to Havana; Boston in the summer, visiting, playing golf, swimming, riding — who knows. As I said, I never make plans. That way I'm never disappointed."

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IT is far easier to make good defensive play against the dummy than against the closed hand. This somewhat obscure statement will be clarified in the following account.

North, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	1 heart
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
Pass	Pass

West opened the heart jack and declarer won with the king. A club was now led to the king and a diamond was returned. East automatically played "second hand low" and South put in the jack.

West could have made things very comfortable for his adversary by holding up the diamond queen, but from his point of view it was possible that declarer had started with the A-K-J of diamonds, and if West had ducked with the queen, South could run the rest of the suit by laying down the ace and the king. Therefore, West cannot be fairly criticized for taking the diamond queen and continuing with the hearts in the hope of running that suit. Obviously, however, South had another heart stopper with the lead coming from West, and he eventually finessed against the diamond king to bring home the contract.

Observe that if by chance the South hand had been exposed with North the declarer, it would have been elementary for East to shut out the diamond suit by the simple expedient of putting up the king second hand. In other words, when the four of diamonds was led, East would put up the king because he would not let the declarer duck that trick. Under the actual circumstances East should have made the same play because there was a very good chance that by putting up the king he would sever the connections between the closed hand and dummy.

A giraffe's tongue may be a foot and a half long.

Tribute to Camp Fire Girls

By Elsie Robinson

MOST women smell of kitchens, bridge tables or shops, and very few have interests outside the same.

That's why I'm so interested in the Camp Fire Girls who are celebrating their 35th birthday anniversary this week. The Camp Fire Girls organization catches them when they're young and teaches them how broad and rich a woman's life may be. This is vitally necessary particularly during these times when so many women are grouching about their lack of opportunity.

Boys are natural nomads. Given even half a chance they find out about woods and bugs, swimming pools and water snakes, fish worms and sleeping bags. They take to the earth as naturally as jackrabbits and their whole lives are broadened by these natural contacts.

BUT GIRLS, particularly city girls, are not natural nomads. We have built artificial walls and conventions about girlhood. Nice girls shouldn't be tomboys. Nice girls stay at home and learn how to curl their hair and wear trick hats. All of which is quite necessary and delightful but it leaves a dreadful gap in their education. That again is why I'm so strong for the Camp Fire Girls who have adopted as their slogan this year —"Going Places." For the Camp Fire Girl goes places spiritually and mentally as well as physically. She gets out and lives in the honest soil. She learns the old crafts which were once the pride of all womanhood. She becomes more than a domestic gadget. She becomes a full fledged female.

And she acquires definite standards which are often lacking even in the best of homes. These are the laws which govern her life: Worship God. Seek beauty. Give service. Pursue knowledge. Be trustworthy. Hold on to health. Glorify work. Be happy.

If there's any better schedule for a normal, well balanced life than that, I don't know it.

THERE'S ALSO another reason why the Camp Fire Girls are needed more today than ever before in the history of the organization. Intolerance is spreading like a blight across our nation. If it were only spreading amongst the grossly ignorant or superstitious, that were one thing, but it's spreading in our schools and in our finest homes and in the very centers of our culture and religion.

It's the most vicious problem in America and we can never truly belong to the United Nations unless it is stamped out. But the very first tenet of a Camp Fire Girl's training is tolerance. She can know no distinction as to class, race or religion. Wealthy and underprivileged girls alike are admitted to the Camp Fire and take its simple vows. They share responsibility equally and cooperate with each other. And never has America so needed such a concept of citizenship. While these youngsters are having fun they are also learning the fine art of civilization . . . they are learning that the color of the skin or the ritual of a creed does not necessarily make any person superior or inferior.

Space does not often permit me to boost the program of any organization in this column. But I'm 100% for the Camp Fire Girls and all they represent. And I'm thinking that a lot of us oldsters could profit by the simple faith which these children express.

Nylon Net Dresses

Dreamy dresses, the ticket for spring dances, favor nylon net in all sorts of delicate pastels, especially for youthful wearers. Pale lilac and rose net—the bodice softly draped; the skirt in alternating panels—makes a lovely frock. Soft pink velvet roses cascade from the waist down the side.

Before glass blowing was discovered, hollow vessels were made by winding rods of hot, softened glass around a sand core.

How It Started

By Jean Newton

"FILTHY LUCRE."

THE word "lucre" derives from the Latin lucrum, meaning "gain," whether in money or goods, or whatever the nature of the profit, in the sense of our word lucrative. To us its meaning is colored more especially with the idea of the money itself, gold, cash—a narrowing down, but not a weakening of one of the most powerful expressions in our language. For of all the admonitions and sermons and tirades that have been written, in prose or poetry, about the evils of money and of greed, none has the impact of those two words, "filthy lucre."

It should not be surprising then, that the source of the words is in the Bible. In the First Epistle of Paul the Apostle to Timothy, in the third chapter, which describes how bishops and deacons and their wives should be "qualified," we find: "A bishop then must be blameless, the husband of one wife, vigilant, sober, of good behavior, given to hospitality, apt to teach;

"Not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; but patient, not a brawler, not covetous."

Famous Fables

By E. E. Edgar

Shortly after his marriage in 1875, a young publisher named Cyrus H. Curtis started an agricultural weekly which has long since passed into oblivion. Among the features was a women's column which was not too successful. One evening, while reading the magazine, Mrs. Curtis cast it aside impatiently.

"The person who writes this women's column certainly doesn't know anything about women," she criticized.

"I write it," confessed her husband, his pride wounded. "Do you think you can do better?"

"I do," she said.

"Then why don't you try it?"

Mrs. Curtis readily accepted the challenge. The column rapidly gained in popularity. It was expanded to a full page, then to a supplement. Then one day Curtis decided to build a magazine around it. He brought the copy to the printer.

"What shall I call the magazine?" asked the latter.

"Oh, call it anything you like," said Curtis. "It's going to be a sort of ladies' journal."

Taking his cue from this, the printer went to work. In this casual manner was born one of the magazine giants of modern times — The Ladies' Home Journal.

Chartreuse

Chartreuse, per se, is a liqueur originally made by the monks of the French monastery of Grande Chartreuse and is served after formal dinner along with brandy and other liqueurs. But a class of dishes also has been given the name of hartreuse—such as "Chartruese of Chicken" or "Eggs Chartreuse." In principle, these dishes are all the same—two or more foods are used, one of which serves to conceal the others. The story goes that the monks of the Chartreuse monastery developed this system for indulging in forbidden foods on fast days, for meats and savory viands were hidden under simple cabbage or other uninteresting foods.

Today most chartreuses are made by lining a mold with rice, a vegetable or a forcemeat and filling the center with a different food, such as chicken, fish, eggs or what have you. The top of the dish also is inclosed in the rice or vegetable thus concealing the filling entirely.

Grilled Spring Chicken

By the Chef

EVEN though there has been a lot of cold weather, it won't be long, now, before you start getting out the charcoal grills and outdoor fireplace equipment. Open air meals are just around the corner and here are some suggestions for you to have ready for your first venture.

Grilled spring chickens are wonderful picnic fare. To cook them over the grill, have them cleaned, dressed and cut in half. Brush them with barbecue sauce—I've given you several recipes for this and also there are wonderful prepared ones now on the market—and broil them over the glowing coals, turning constantly. This will take quite a while, so start them well in advance of when you plan to eat.

WHEN FRESH CORN comes along, try cooking it outdoors this way: Remove the shucks and silk, wash and dry the corn, after examining carefully for any unwelcome guests. Use a long handled fork, or your shish-kabeb skewers, and hold the ears of corn over the coals, turning all the time. The corn will turn black, but that only seems to improve the flavor. Test the grains to see when they are tender, then brush all over with melted butter to which salt and pepper have been added. If you have an outdoor oven or pit, you can put the corn, silked and cleaned, but with the shucks pulled back on and dampened right into the hot coals or ashes and cover them with more coals. They roast beautifully this way, but take some time, depending on the temperature of the coals, etc.

If your budget allows, get a sirloin steak, cut to two and one half inch thickness and weighing about six pounds. Pepper it heavily on both sides, after rubbing it with a clove of garlic. Put the meat on the grill and turn it often. After 15 minutes or so it will have a semicharred crust and will be beautifully rare inside. Now put the steak in a pan and salt it on both sides. Then heat it again with one half pound of butter which has melted in the pan. Baste the meat well. When it is heated through, slice in inch-wide pieces and serve with a handful of crisp, chilled watercress on each plate. Rib lamb chops can be prepared the same way.

IF THE BUDGET says "no" to that one, try this version of the humble hamburger:

Add one and one half teaspoons salt to two pounds chopped beef. Mix in a teaspoon of pepper, a whisper of thyme and a tablespoon of onion juice. Form into patties—bun size. Grill very quickly, so that they are rare inside. Have waiting for them toasted hamburger buns, of which the bottom slices have been buttered. Put the meat patty on that, and spread with a little mayonnaise, India relish and a slice of onion. Spread bun tops with mayonnaise, put the works together—and start making another batch. They'll really go for these.

Fresh citrus fruit was consumed by civilians at a rate of slightly more than 60 pounds per capita in 1946.

Economical Menus for Tomorrow

By Meta Given

NOW and then some homemaker who seems to be acquiring skill in the making of omelet suddenly is surprised to turn out a green one onto the platter and she wonders if it is poison and what in the world caused it. Usually such cooks have learned the importance of not beating the whites to the point where they become dry in appearance in order to get the biggest, puffiest omelets possible. The green color on the bottom of the omelet means that some of the egg has separated out either when the beaten whites and yolks have been combined and stand around a little while before cooking, or the whites were not beaten sufficiently, or the beaten yolks and beaten whites were not blended thoroughly.

The cause is due to the formation of hydrogen sulfide in the whites combining with the iron in the yolk to form the greenish colored iron sulfide. It is perfectly harmless but not attractive. The way to prevent it is to beat the whites thoroughly but not until they are dry in appearance, blend them immediately with the beaten yolks, and start cooking promptly. And omelets cook more rapidly on top of the stove than in the oven, so there is less danger of obtaining a green omelet cooked on top of the stove than when cooked altogether in the oven, because the oven omelet takes longer and gives the eggs more chance to separate out.

Stay-Puff Omelet.

Three tablespoons butter or margarine, three tablespoons flour, three-fourths cup milk, one-half teaspoon salt, four eggs, separated, three-fourths teaspoon salt, two tablespoons shortening for skillet.

Prepare a thick white sauce from the first four ingredients. Cool. Beat the egg yolks slightly, add white sauce and three-fourths teaspoon salt and beat thoroughly to blend. Then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Heat shortening over low heat in an 8-inch skillet. Pour in the omelet mixture. Level surface gently, and cover with a domed-shaped lid greased on the inside. This will allow the omelet to rise without sticking to the top.

Menus for Tuesday.

Breakfast — Grapefruit halves, milk toast with crumbled bacon over top.

Luncheon—Omelet with Spanish sauce, hot buttered toast, jam, baked apples.

Dinner—Veal croquettes ground veal left over from Sunday roast), chili sauce, or welsh rabbit, creamed diced potatoes, buttered green beans, molded vegetable salad, rye bread and butter, grapenut pudding with lemon sauce.

Mutiny among Republicans in Congress, says Reece, will not be countenanced by the party high command. (Applause, laughter, indescribable sounds from the rear of the hall.)

A hit seven months on Broadway is still $65,000 short of paying off the original investment, and we guess this shows that nothing fails like success.

SANITARIUM TRANSFER BILL UP IN COMMITTEE TOMORROW

The aldermanic public welfare committee will consider tomorrow the bill which would authorize transfer of City Sanitarium to the State, Alderman Clara Hempelmann, committee chairman, announced today. It has been estimated that the transfer would save the city about $1,000,000 annually.

Mrs. Hempelmann, who introduced the bill twice last year, only to have it defeated each time, was hopeful that the Board of Aldermen would approve the transfer. Pointing out that the board defeated five revenue bills introduced last Friday, she said, "I don't see how they can raise the issue of economy with one hand and slap it down with the other."

Give Your Eyes Fresh, Young Look

UP roll hat brims for spring smartness and up roll your eyelashes to complement the fresh, young look.

You will want to keep your eyes well groomed this season. Your eyes are the focal point of your facial beauty, the moving, alert part of your face to which others' eyes are drawn instinctively.

Curling one's lashes makes the eyes appear larger, since more of the iris is revealed. The upward sweep, too, is more youthful and a wise beauty knows a drooping line is aging.

A professional tweezer, which works on the scissor-handle principle, is the handiest and it assures a firm hold while you are plucking the straggling hairs. Pluck only the stragglers—across the nose bridge and those which mar the winged curve of your natural brow arch. Good grooming means helping nature to be her best, never distorting her handiwork which she has created specifically for you.

Pull each hair in the direction of its growth. Use hot applications to open the pores for greater comfort and cold water or astringent after plucking.

Another aid is a rich, colorless, lubricating cream. Applied generously at night to lashes and brows, it promotes luxuriance while you sleep. Applied lightly during the daytime, it give a dewy sheen to lashes, brows and lids. Because it is colorless, it is not classed as make-up—yet it gives a lustrous quality to the eyes.

A third aid is a curler, an efficient tool with a scissor handle. Its functional design leaves no opportunity for chance results. Simply slip the lashes between the curved, rubber-lined bows, close the handle firmly and hold while you count to 25. Remove the curler and your lashes will be swept up glamorously with an attractive sheen.

Dobos Torte

One cup flour, seven eggs, separated; one-eight teaspoon salt, one cup confectioner's sugar, one-half pound sweet chocolate, three tablespoons water, three eggs, one and one-half cups confectioner's sugar, one-half pound butter or margarine, one teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour and measure. Sift four times more after measuring. Beat the seven egg yolks, salt and the one cup of confectioner's sugar until thick. Fold in flour and egg whites, which have been beaten until stiff but still moist. Spread thin layers of dough on buttered and floured layer-cake pans. Bake in a 375-degree oven for six to eight minutes. Remove at once from pans and repeat until dough is all used. Melt chocolate with water in double boiler. Mix three eggs and two cups of sugar and add. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Remove from stove, cool, add vanilla and butter or margarine, which has been creamed until light and beat mixture until blended. Spread between layers and cover top and sides. To keep layers from slipping place toothpicks through top layers until filling sets. Allow to set 24 hours before using. To glaze the torte, melt three tablespoons of sugar in a skillet. Put it over the top and spread with a hot knife.

Flowers on Hats

Flowers bloom to give a spring look to late winter hats. A bonnet cloche in caramel beige felt has one rose at the crown, a nice cabbage rose in beige and a larger cabbage rose at the brim in moss green to match velvet ribbon trim. Veiling in rose beige lace.
